PITCHER M'GINNITY AT HIS BEST.

Athletics' One Error During Almo Faultiess Play Gave New York the Victory-Quakers Failed to Score.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.-In the closes

Superb pitching and the hardest kind of "inside work" dld the trick. The Athletics were as putty in McGinnity's bands and were never able to solve his 'raise ball' and gatling gun "cross fire." For the third time the Quakers failed to score and were pitiful objects when McGraw began to whoop things up from the side line.

Plank was effective, but an error and Giants to score in the fourth inning. The Giants Jumped in with a dash and pushed the winning and only rue across the plate by the most scientific playing ever seen here. The run was cored in the fourth after two men lengths. were out. Mertes reached first on a slash which Monte Cross could not handle. Dahlen died on a high fly to Sevbold. Then Devlin advanced the runner with a neat bunt, and little Gil-bert came to the bat.

He had died ignominously in the first nning in Lave Cross' hands. Whether mashed a sizzier between his bowlegs and Mertes came romping home. McGinnity was an easy out to Lord. Credit must be given to Plank for his work in the box. He was beaten by the narrowest of margins by a bet-

Hartsel was given his base on balls, with McGinnity and Bresnahan protesting. From that moment to the end of the game the Giants' battery flashed fire. Seldom have New Yorkers seen the "Iron Man" shoot them over with such speed. Lord went out to Donlin and Davis died in Devlin's hands. Then Cross made a men's golf championship of Illinois, hit, and little white haired Hartsel was was won at the Onwentsia club links plate confidently. McGinnity shut finals.

wa on him like a steel trap. He fanned ignominiously.

The crowd was delitious for five minutes. Cheers for the "Iron Man" were sand feet sounded his praises, and 500 infernal neise making instruments add ed to the fun.

Three other Giants loomed up big during the struggle. Doulin accepted six chances in center field, three of them in the fourth inning. In the ninth inning Mertes, who had not had an opportunity to distinguish himself up to that time, pulled down a ball meant for three bases from Burkeville's high front. He picked the ball right off the boards after a hard run. There was more delirium in the stands, and when the game was over the roly poly left fielder was escorted to the ouse by an admiring and demonstrative crowd.

They were confused in the eighth by the Giants' fast hit and run game. One Giant reached first because there was nobody covering the bag. There were other serious lapses, which good fortune alone saved from serious errors. The ovation given to McGinnity as he left the field was the best possible testimonial to attest the confidence which the fandom of Gotham have in a truly great pitcher.

Sir Henry Irving was England's mos famous actor. He was born in 1838 of very humble parentage, his father's name being Samuel Brodribb. He was christened John Henry, which name be held until 1838, when, by royal license, he assumed the name of Henry Irving. He made his first appearance on the public stage in Sunderland in 1856. His mother was greatly opposed his desire to become an actor, but Irving succeeded in winning her over to such an extent that in 1859 he made his first appearance in London. On Dec. 30, 1878, he played Hamlet with Ellen Terry in the role of Ophe lia for the first time.

He made his first tour to America in 1883. His last tour of this country was made in 1903. He was knighted in 1895 by Onese Victoria.
