LODGE AT BOSTON.

Banquet of Republican Club of Massachusetts.

MEN AND MEASURES WAS HIS THEME

"We Propose to Make Good Laws Still Better," Said Guild-Senator Secured Corporation Gratters' Work in Legislatures.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Oratory and enthusiasm were uppermost at the annual dinner of the Republican club of Massachusetts, held in Symphony-hall. The principal speaker was to have been Charles J. Bonaparte, secretary of the navy, but he was unable to come to the city on account of the death of a relative of Mrs. Bonaparte. His place was taken by former Governor John L. Bates. The principal speaker of the evening was United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Among the guests were George von L. Meyer, ambassador to Russia; Lieutenant Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., candidate for governor, and the other members of the state ticket.

The first speaker, Lieutenant Governor Guild, dwelt at length upon the conditions of trade and industry in Massachusetts, which, he declared, were indicative of prosperity. He dwelt particularly upon the fact that Massachusetts has always been a leader in the cause of a man who works with his hands and that Massachusetts was the first state to prohibit child labor, the first state to regulate the employment of women and the first state to establish factory inspection.

"We propose," he said, "to make good laws still better. We propose not merely to keep the old commonwealth in the ranks, but in the front rank of the great sisterhood that is striving for prosperity and progress, for loyalty to law as well as to liberty."

Men and measures were the subjects of Mr. Lodge's remarks. In the course of his address he spoke of the qualifications of the various candidates on the Republican ticket. It was against Mr. Draper, the candidate for lieutenant governor, the speaker pointed out that the Democratic attack was directed. The Democrats demanded his defeat solely on account of his views on tariff. Yet those views, Mr. Lodge contended, were those of the Republican party.

Senator Lodge asserted that it is well for the people to realize that the defeat of any Republican candidate for the state would be a direct blow against President Roosevelt's administration and the Republican supremacy in congress. He added:

"Public policies are very grave matters, but the character of those charged by a free people with the duties of government is infinitely more serious. At this very time we see in at least two great states an uprising against the use of corporate money and corporate influence to secure legislation from state or city. Fifteen years ago Massachusetts condemned such methods. Is she going to reverse her judgment now?"

HAMLIN WANTS REVISION. Democratic Rally at Lynn—Speaker Answered Lodge.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 20.—Charles S. Hamlin at the Democratic rally in this city severely scored Senator Lodge. Mr. Hamlin said in part:

"The campaign upon which we are entering is far above the plane of partisan contention. The industrial salvation of Massachusetts is at stake, and men of all parties should forget partisanship and vote for the best interests of our grand old commonwealth. The present industrial policy which is fastened upon us is slowly but surely crowding Massachusetts to the wall. Our merchants and manufacturers are among the most enterprising in the world. They recognize, however, today as perhaps never before our precarious industrial situation."

Mr. Hamlin then devoted considerable attention to a discussion of the Republican state platform, of the party and of the attitude of its candidates on the question of tariff revision. He referred to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge as "the high priest of Republicanism," whose "word is law in the Republican party," and said:

"When Senator Lodge proclaims that neither he nor his colleagues will engage in any tariff revision where they have to seek Democratic assistance it is tantamount to saying that in the opinion of the Massachusetts Republican senators and representatives the interests of the Republican party are of greater importance than the interests of the people of Massachusetts. Such a proclamation is equivalent to stating that they do not desire that any relief be given to Massachusetts industries. When our Republican friends want anything very badly they do not scorn Democratic support. At this very moment, when Senator Lodge is securing Democratic assistance to secure lower taxes, the president of the United States is traveling through the south, appealing to southern Democrats to support him in his policies, against which a large fraction of the Republican party is in opposition.

The best interests of Massachusetts today demand the earnest, determined effort of every one of her representatives to secure tariff revision and free raw materials and to insist upon those reforms even at the expense of party loyalty."

General Charles W. Barlett, Democratic candidate for governor, also spoke. He devoted the principal part of his speech to the duty on hides and its effect on the shoe manufacturing industry.

ADAMS EXPRESS THIEF CAUGHT

George Cunliffe Held at Bridgeport and $80,000 Recovered.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 20.—Edward George Cunliffe, the Adams express employee who disappeared from Pittsburg with $101,000 in cash, has been arrested here. He made a confession and expressed his willingness to return at once to Pittsburg.

He declared that the money which he had taken was intact and that it could be restored, but he declined to tell until his return to Pittsburg where it is hidden. In his pocket was found $250 in cash.

Nearly $80,000 of the plunder stolen by Edward George Cunliffe from the Adams Express company in Pittsburg was recovered at the home of Cunliffe's brother-in-law, Joseph W. Boardman, in Bristol. The money was in a suit case sent from Bridgeport to Boardman and had not been opened up to the time that Boardman's house was visited. Boardman knew nothing of the money being in his house.

Detectives under the direction of Daniel C. Thornhill, superintendent of the Pinkerton agency of New York, traced Cunliffe here, and upon their arrival early in the morning the aid of the local policemen and detectives was enlisted.

All the hotels were watched carefully, but Cunliffe was not arrested until late in the forenoon, when he was seen by Superintendent Thornhill walking down Middle street.

Thornhill called to the local policeman John O'Connell, who was a piano mover before he went on the force and is the strong man of the department, and O'Connell placed the man under arrest. Cunliffe made no attempt to deny his identity and offered no resistance.

"Yes, I'm Cunliffe," he said in reply to the officer's questions. "I guess the jig is up."

The prisoner then promised to make no attempt to escape and accompanied the policeman and detective to the office of Superintendent of Police Birmingham, where he made a statement about the robbery. In the presence of Superintendent Birmingham, Detective Thornhill, Henry Curtis, the local agent of the Adams Express company, and Captain Arnold of the Bridgeport detective force Cunliffe admitted that he had taken the money.

"Five minutes after I took the money I was sorry," said the prisoner, "but it was too late then to do anything. What can you expect from a man getting a salary of only $65 a month and handling thousands of dollars a day? I was tempted, and I fell. I have handled larger sums. I remember once when I had $250,000 in cash. I was tempted then, but I thought it over, and I decided to be honest."

"I want to go back to Pittsburg, restore the money and throw myself upon the mercy of the courts."

NOW IN DIXIE LAND

President's Great Welcome to Empire of the South.

OVATION GREET'S NATION'S IDOL.

Troops Reviewed at Atlanta—Visited Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham and Roanoke—Meets Mrs. Stone-Well Jackson.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 20.—Lusty cheers of welcome from the throats of thousands of men, women and children greeted President Roosevelt as he stepped from his car when the special train bearing him and his party arrived here.

The president responded by smiling, bowing and waving his hand to his enthusiastic audience. He greeted the committee of citizens from the chamber of commerce and board of aldermen and received from the mayor in a few words the official welcome to the city.

The ovation which President Roosevelt received during his journey through a portion of Virginia was continued as he traveled through the states of North Carolina and Georgia. He was greeted by cheering crowds at Durham, Greensboro, High Point, Lexington, Salisbury and Charlotte, the demonstration in this city being a fitting farewell of the citizens of the old Tarheel State.

The president visited the fair, which is in progress at Raleigh. Here he delivered an address which dealt with the important questions of railroad ownership and the organizations of capital and labor. His speech was given close attention, and he frequently was interrupted by hearty applause. He was accompanied to the fair grounds by Mrs. Roosevelt, and she, too, was the recipient of much attention.

At Durham, where a stop of about ten minutes was made, the president devoted his remarks to the students of Trinity college, who were gathered in force to greet him. A flat car had been converted into a gayly decorated stand, and from this the president spoke. He was accompanied to the stand by Lieutenant Governor Winston, who officiated at Raleigh owing to the absence of Governor Glenn caused by the death of his brother, and by United States Senators Simmons and Overman. Both of the senators are graduates of this college.

Of special interest was the president's visit to Roswell, the birthplace of the president's mother. In Atlanta the president reviewed the militia, was entertained at luncheon and taken for a drive about the city. From Atlanta he goes to Jacksonville, Fla., spending tomorrow night and Sunday in St. Augustine.

Monday and Tuesday will be spent in Alabama, the first stop being Mobile. On Tuesday the president will visit Booker T. Washington's institute at Tuskegee. Wednesday morning will see the president at Little Rock, Ark. He will arrive in New Orleans on Thursday.

The president's brief stop at Salisbury, N. C., was signalized by a most cordial reception. Ten thousand persons greeted him. In the party were 1,500 school children bearing small American flags. A salute from the Ramsey battery, which did conspicuous service for the Confederacy, announced the approach of the president's train. United States Senator Overman accompanied the party from Raleigh.

A young man with a huge bouquet of chrysanthemums tied with a bow of white silk ribbon to which was attached a small envelope which bore the name "Mrs. Roosevelt" came through the crowd at Raleigh with the bouquet above his head, and the president received the tribute with a smile and a few words of thanks.

The feature of the president's visit to Charlotte was his meeting with the widow of General Stonewall Jackson, the great Confederate leader. Mrs. Jackson lives in a stone's throw of the station. She was present as the head of a committee of ladies to receive Mrs. Roosevelt. When the president was introduced he took her hand and remained talking for fully five minutes. "Mrs. Jackson, it is worth the whole trip down here to have a chance to shake your hand."

Czar Proclaims Peace. ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 20.—An imperial manifesto was issued proclaiming the ratification of peace between Russia and Japan. It says: "God has caused our fatherland to suffer sore trials from the blows of fate in a sanguinary war, but the struggle has afforded manifold proofs of the bravery and courage of our glorious troops against a brave and mighty enemy. This war, so painful for us all, is now over."

HAVANA, Oct. 20.—The British chargé d'affaires has had a lengthy interview with President Palma regarding the Anglo-Cuban commercial treaty, which is now awaiting ratification by the senate. MAY HAVE TO REFUND

Mutual Life President Again on Hughes' Rack.

PROFIT IN VARIOUS SYNDICATES.

Attorney General Might Ask Return of $25,000 From McCurdy—Writing Expert Said to Have Examined Plunkett Voucher.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—In addition to his salary of $150,000 a year President Richard A. McCurdy of the Mutual Life Insurance company testified before the legislative committee that he went into various syndicates in which the insurance company was interested and from which he aggregated profits of $25,000 in recent years. If Attorney General Mayer should adhere to his original intention, as expressed when disclosures of Equitable syndicates were made, he may formally demand that President McCurdy return those profits to the insurance company, although Mr. McCurdy was very emphatic in denying that he was ever in a syndicate which sold securities to his own company.

President McCurdy also admitted that whereas the Mutual Life Insurance company was getting only 2 per cent interest for its deposits in the Morristown Trust company, of which Mr. McCurdy owns 512 shares, McCurdy himself and many other depositors were getting 3 per cent on all their deposits in the trust company. Counting the stock which President McCurdy and his various relatives own in the trust company, together with the block the Mutual owned, the McCurdys controlled the trust company.

Counsel for James Hazen Hyde, formerly vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, went to the hearing to ascertain when Mr. Hyde would be required as a witness. He was informed that the committee would not call Mr. Hyde before next Tuesday.

Chairman Armstrong of the committee said in the afternoon in discussing testimony given at the inquiry that it was not the province of the committee to stop its labors or be sidetracked merely because the testimony developed that a crime had been committed. "Our business," said he, "is to investigate the condition and methods of life insurance companies doing business in this state. If the testimony happens to show that a murder has been committed it is not our intention to chase the murderer, because the local authorities are quite competent to attend to such matters. We will follow certain testimony when it is a symptom of existing conditions. When it ceases to be an exponent of certain principles and methods of conducting the companies we will drop that line of testimony for the time being."

The chairman refused to make any comment upon the specific testimony of George Plunkett and Edgar W. Rogers of Lawrence & Co., stationers for the Mutual, relative to the signing of Plunkett's name to the "legal voucher" for $90,115, which young Plunkett said he never received and which voucher he declined as genuine.

Some significance is placed on a visit which David S. Carvalho, the handwriting expert, paid the office of Assistant District Attorney Rand. It is said that he was there to examine the signature on the Plunkett voucher. According to the report, the members of the committee had received information which led them to believe that the signature was a forgery.
