REESER, KESSLER WIELAND COMPANY

KLAUFELT BROKE

UP THE FURNITURE

And Also Did Several Other Stunts Which Caused Him to Be Landed in Jail

Athens.—Oysters and meat which he had brought home for his supper on Saturday were the means of getting Henry Klaufelt into serious trouble. Klaufelt had been about town in the early part of the evening, and when he arrived home he carried considerable whiskey in his stomach. Words with his wife resulted in his losing his temper and he began to break up the furniture and perform in a manner that thoroughly frightened the inmates of the house.

Two men were informed of his actions and they went to the Klaufelt home and tried to get in but were met at the door by the lord of the mansion who threatened to beat their brains out with a double bitted axe which he had in his hands. Later the police department was notified and Klaufelt was arrested. On his way to the police station he struck at one of the officers. This morning he was held in the sum of $200 bail on the charge of assault and was also compelled to give bail in the same amount for striking an officer.

Successful Rummage Sale

Athens.—The ladies in charge of the rummage sale in the vacant store in the Stimson block say our people have been very liberal in their contributions and that the sales are good. A goodly sum will likely be realized for the Packer hospital. The sale will close with an auction this evening.
