MIXTURE EXPLODED; PIERCE FIRE FOLLOWS

The Night Watchman Painfully Though Not Seriously Burned in Conflagration Which Occurred Early This Morning

While Albert Kenyon, a night watchman, was mixing gasoline with a quantity of asphaltum, by the light of a torch, at an early hour this morning in a building erected between the new power house and the old car shops by the Walworth Manufacturing Co., the mixture caught fire and in an instant the flames were communicated to other combustibles and one of the fiercest little fires that has occurred here in years followed. Kenyon was badly burned about the arms and feet and the ambulance was summoned to take him to the hospital for treatment. Though painful the burns are not of a serious nature and Kenyon was able to return to his home on South River street after having his injuries attended to.

The building in which the fire occurred was about 20x14 and contained two rooms, one of which was used for office purposes. In the other room were kept asphaltum, gasoline and other materials which the company used to carry out a piping contract for the Lehigh Valley at the shops. Kenyon was employed as night watchman and it was his duty to mix the asphaltum and gasoline so that it would be ready for the workmen at 7 o'clock. He began operations about 6 o'clock while it was still dark and used a lighted torch. The wind blew the flames of the torch into the mixture and instantly there was a conflagration. The head of a barrel of asphaltum blew out and its contents were thrown over Kenyon. His right arm and leg were severely burned. The entire building was a mass of flames in less time than it takes to tell it when the shop firemen arrived. A general alarm was turned in and in a short time the fire whistle blew a second time. The fire was extinguished before it communicated to other buildings in the vicinity. The loss will reach about $200, with no insurance.

"A HOT OLD TIME"

The most successful comedy ever produced, "The Rays" howling musical farce, "A Hot Old Time," is announced for the Loomis tomorrow night. This announcement will undoubtedly be welcomed by our theatre goers, who remember this funny comedy, as it has always been clean and witty and full of good specialties. The characters are strongly individual and are portrayed by a competent, evenly balanced company of players, while the costumes are elaborate and the musical numbers catchy and up to date. They will unquestionably play to the same big business here as they have been elsewhere.

COULD MAY BUY LEHIGH VALLEY

Latter's Stock Has Been Soaring Recently and Is Now Looked Upon As Valuable Proposition. Other Lehigh Notes

Lehigh Valley stock has been soaring upwards during the past few weeks, which has given rise to the sensational rumor that the Goulds are after the road. The rumor has gained considerable credence. Several years ago when the stock was selling at 25, several well known Philadelphia gentlemen suggested to Mr. Gould at a dinner given in New York that he buy the stock, assuring him that control could be secured at less than par value. At the time Mr. Gould promised to look into the matter. Within the past year, however, Lehigh Valley stock has slowly risen until now it is a factor in Wall street. It is said that this sudden rise is accounted for by the fact that Mr. Gould has recently been making inquiries and has come to the conclusion that he wants the road.

The Lehigh Valley has already begun to make changes in the conduct of the D. S. & S. railroad which was recently acquired by it along with the Cox interests. Yesterday Long Run Junction was abandoned, which will dispense with one train crew and a telegraph operator. The latter, however, will be given a similar assignment with the Lehigh. The coal which was formerly sent via Long Run Junction will henceforth be taken over the Lehigh via Jeddo.

People occupying the Lehigh Valley houses south of the railroad at Hazleton have been notified to vacate as the company is about to begin stripping operations there.

Edward Fowler, a Lehigh engineer who was injured in a collision at Hazel Brook a few weeks ago, has been discharged from the hospital, having almost entirely recovered from his injuries.

SAYRE'S POPULATION IS ON THE INCREASE

Many Outsiders Come Here Last Month and Others Are to Follow

According to statements made by the real estate men Sayre is likely to enjoy an appreciable gain in population during the coming six weeks. In fact during the past month and a half many outsiders have removed to this place and are now comfortably housed in various places about town. This morning E. E. Reynolds, the well known real estate dealer, said to a Record representative that during the past six weeks he had rented 18 houses and that in each instance the houses had been rented to men at the heads of families who had come here to work in the shops or had been attracted to Sayre by its evident thrift and the opportunities that it offers to those willing to work. Despite the fact that it has been given out that Wilkesbarre men have steadfastly refused to come to Sayre four of these houses were rented to men from that city. Mr. Reynolds also said that he believed that the time had come when Sayre would be confronted with the problem of what to do with the families which will necessarily come here to work in the shops. The company is bound sooner or later to secure men. It was recently estimated by a man, whose position gives him an opportunity to be on the inside, that at least 1,500 men would be required to take positions in the new shops. This will not include, it is said, the men already employed, but will mean that 1,500 men from abroad will come to Sayre and become residents. How many of these will be married men is of course a matter of speculation, but if 10 per cent of them have families it does not take an expert in figures to foretell that Sayre's population will be increased by a handsome number.

When the shops were nearing completion there was some disposition to convey the impression that many men would not be needed as the huge machines would take care of the most of the work.

There has been a decided change in this opinion, however, which has been brought about in a large measure by the efforts of the company to secure men to come here to work. That the officials are experiencing considerable trouble in this direction is well known, but they say that they will eventually get all the men they want, and when they do get them it will mean the beginning of unprecedented prosperity for Sayre and its suburbs.

REMAINS SHIPPED HOME

The remains of Mrs. Amelia Thrasher, whose death occurred at the Packer hospital yesterday morning, were shipped to her home at Dushore this morning and the funeral will occur in that place tomorrow.

HEARING ARGUMENTS

Arguments for a reduction of the fees for boarding the prisoners in the Bradford county jail are being heard by the county commissioners and auditors at Towanda today.
