RESCUED FROM RAFT

Topeka Picks Up Twenty Survivors of the Valencia.

CAPTAIN, A HERO, STICKS TO HIS SHIP

Terrible Tale of Suffering From Cold and Dreaching Seas-Another Raft With Eight Women Left Wreek and May Be Saved.

SEATTLE, Wash, Jan. 26.-A special dispatch from Port Angels says that the rescue ship City of Topeka has picked up a life raft six miles off Cape Beale with twenty survivors of the steamer Valencia on board. The survivors rescued from the raft were in a pitiable condition. They were half frozen and practically unconscious from the exposure. When the raft was sighted, owing to the thick weather it was supposed to be a log. At last by the aid of a powerful glass. its true nature was determined.

A terrible sea was running. One minute the raft was poised on top of a wave and the next it would be lost from view in the gulley formed by the mountainous billows.

The twenty men on their frail support battled bravely with a pair of oars to reach the City of Topeka, which, owing to the dangerous coast, could not run closer to them. Within half a mile from the raft a boat was lowered from the Topeka, in charge of $18,000. The Brandow company, he line to the raft.

In the stern of the raft sat an old features were creased and torn by the flying spray, but the instinct of life was strong in him, and he held bravely to his place. The work of rescuing them was dan zerous. The men were too exhausted to tie a rope about themselves.

The survivors told terrible tales of the wreck of the vessel. When they left the ship there were about ninety persons on board, most of them clinging to the rigging. Men, women and children were being swept away by every sea. Passengers and crew during the aight prior to the departure of the life pafts from the Valencia, according to those saved, begged Captain O. M. Johnson, the commander, to place a life belt about his waist. This he pereletently refused to do. In spite of the fact that those near him begged him to think of his family and friends, Captain Johnson would not do a single thing to help his condition. He made the statement that he would never leave the wreck alive.

According to survivors, about thirty persons left the wreek on the two life rafts and in a boat. Captain Gibbs, who went from Beat-

Topeka, said the survivors told him that the best of order was preserved on beard "When the time came for the lifebeats to leave the Valencia," said Captain Gibbs, "the officers ordered all the women to take to the rafts. The sur-rivers say that in spite of the fact that the Valencia was beginning to break up the women refused to go on the life rafts or in the lifeboats, stating that they would take their chances with the ship rather than leave.

"The efficers did all they could to impress upon their minds the fact that there was little chance for help after the last boats had gone."

A survivor says that men, women and children, singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," shivered and clung together on the hurricane deck of the Valencia when the steamer Queen hove into sight. The women on the ill fated vessel took off their underskirts and burned them as signals to attract passing vessels, but all in vain.

The whaling steamer Orion reports a fire. It was thought that these men were survivors as yet unaccounted for. The Valencia lay submerged, with only a portion of a mast sticking out of the water.

Senator Armstrong Says Committee L Hampered by Intentional Delay. ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.-Senator Armstrong and Assemblyman Cox of the joint special committee which has been investigating life insurance methods introduced in the respective houses of the legislature a bill authorizing the printing of 5,000 copies of the testimony taken at the investigation at a cost not to exceed $20,000. The bill was immediately advanced to third reading and referred to the senate finance and assembly ways and means committee, after sensational charges had been made in both houses against the Brandow Printing company of Albany, the state legislative printers.

Assemblyman Cox declared that the printers had hampered the committee by "piratical and insolent" actions and evidently intended not to furnish a volume of the testimony while the legislature was in session, thus preventing the legislators from giving due consideration to the foundation of the committee's report, which, he said, would be submitted to both houses during February.

Senstor Armstrong declared that be had full proof that the state printers were purposely delaying the printing of the report and would thus retard the action of the legislature on insurance matters. He had received assurance from one reputable printing company that it could print and deliver to the legislature within twenty days 5,000 copies of the testimony at a cost of Second Mate Burke, who with much said, had been endeavoring to sell the difficulty succeeded in making fast a fifteen volumes of the insurance testimony at a cost of $10 a volume.
