

Are You Troubled With Eye Strain?

Eye Strain Is Not a Disease

But arises from mechanical defects in the construction of the eye or its controlling muscles. Relief in such cases can only be had through application of suitable glasses made to correct all existing defects. I make a special study of eyesight testing in all its branches and can assure a perfect correction wherever it exists.

I Do Not Use Drops

Belladonna, Atropine or other mydriatic, injurious drugs, all of them, and belonging to a past stage in the science of optics as applied to eyesight testing. I make use of the latest and most improved scientific instruments for determining the possible presence of disease, and to measure accurately all errors of refraction and muscles.

I Recommend Glasses

Only when positively needed and clearly promising good results. Considering the character of the work I do my charge for a thorough examination of the eyes and glasses is moderate.

HIS FRIEND ED.

HOW THINGS LOOKED TO TOMMY LATER ON.

One of the nicest boys in the office is Tommy Swickhart, but how he used to bore us about his friend, Ed Kempley, when he first blew in from where the fall grass waves. You ought to have seen him then. Honest, he looked as if he was just going to do a vandyke stunt and was dressed for the part. I didn't think they made that kind of clothes any more, even in Lichtenburg, where Tommy came from.

Wattles, the manager, turned the kid over to me, to give him pointers on the work. Then he noticed Tommy's shiny black satchel, where he'd laid it down. "Where are you going to stay?" he asked, and Tommy looked bewildered and said he hadn't found out yet. "You take the afternoon off and find him a place, Sumter," says Wattles to me; and so that's how he came to be my roommate.

"I guess I'm pretty green," says Tommy, as he toddled along with me to the joint. "Ed Kempley told me that the cow'd eat me if he saw me on the street. Ed's been here twice."

"Who's Ed?" I asked.
"Ed's my friend back in Lichtenburg," he says. It might have been, "Ed's the prince of Wales and all the royal family," from the way he said it. "His father runs the bank there," he went on, "and Ed's in the bank now. We always run together a good deal. They don't make any smarter fellows than him."

"Oh, you'll catch on, all right," I told him. I kind of took a fancy to him, you know. He looked at you like a lost dog that's found somebody to pat him—kind of scared and yet as if he trusted you and was tickled to death anyway. He thought the room was the greatest ever, although Ed had a mighty fine room all to himself in his father's "residence."

"I took him around to a barber shop when we'd settled about the room. His hair was lopping down over his coat collar behind. Then we went back to the room and I showed

UNDERWENT OPERATION

Waverly—W. H. Ballenstedt was operated on this morning by Dr. J. T. Tucker. Mr. Ballenstedt received a serious injury to his back more than a month ago due to falling through a hatchway at his store.

He recovered sufficiently to return to his work, but was forced to go to bed again a few days ago. A large lump had appeared in the small of his back. This was opened and cleaned this morning, and his speedy recovery is looked for.

WAS A FINE ATTRACTION

The comic opera company which appeared at the Loomis last night was excellent in every respect. The music was of a high character, the solos were fine, and the chorus the best ever heard in the house. Miss Paula Edwardes captivated the audience while the comedy portion of the opera produced merriment in every quarter of the house. The attraction was in many respects superior to anything that has been seen at the Loomis this season

TRIUMPHANT CAREER

It is not surprising that Virginia Drew Trescott should now be announced as Princess Mary Tudor, the winsome heroine of Charles Major's beautiful novel "When Knighthood Was In Flower." Her triumphant career is absolute proof that any woman known to the drama is within the scope of her wonderful dramatic ability and finely studied art. In the charm of her own personality, in her raven-haired beauty and in the glory of her great dark eyes one might also imagine Charles Major's wilful and lovable heroine to have stepped from the pages of romance on to the actuality of the stage. Like the fascinating creature she impersonates, she is gifted with the power to move with her tears and to cheer with her merry pranks. Beauty of face and figure, a most fascinating presence, eyes that beam with gentleness or flash with the fires of great emotion, a beautiful voice that soothes with its softness or thrills with passionate utterances, winsomeness and the demeanor of a gentlewoman, and you have Virginia Drew Trescott, the Mary Tudor of Romance.

CANDLEMAS DAY

Today is the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, or as it is more properly called, Candlemas day. Services were held in the Church of the Epiphany this morning. The candles used in the Catholic church were blessed today, that is all the candles used during the year, and it is the custom of Catholics to bring donations of candles to the church and at the masses and leave all but one. That one they take back home with them and leave it in the house, being a blessed candle and used on the occasion of a visit from the priest to give the last sacraments to the sick or dying persons, or on any occasion when its use would be proper. It is a custom, too, to light the blessed candle on Christmas eve and leaving it burning until bedtime.

DEFENDANT DISCHARGED

At the hearing in the case of the commonwealth versus Mary Craft, in which her cousin, Lena Craft, charged her with assault and surety of the peace, the defendant was discharged, the court holding that the evidence was insufficient to insure an indictment by the grand jury.
