ENGINEER KILLED NEAR WELLSBURG

Presumed That He Stuck His Head Out of the Window and That It Came in Contact With Some Object

Joseph Leslie, an engineer who resides at Susquehanna, this state, was killed while handling the throttle on an Erie freight engine, near Wellsburg last night. In just what manner Leslie met his death will perhaps never be known, but it is presumed that he had stuck his head out of the window and that it came in contact with some object, the nature of which could not be ascertained. Between Chemung and Waverly the fireman of the engine had occasion to go the engineer's side of the cab and found Leslie lying on the floor with an ugly wound in the forehead, from which a stream of blood was gushing. The skull had been fractured and the engineer was stone dead when found by the fireman.

The fireman took the dead engineer's place and ran the train through to Waverly, where the authorities were notified and the body was removed to Hanford's undertaking rooms and was taken in charge by friends today.

The dead engineer was 45 years old and was well known to all the railroad men on the Erie.

The following story of the mysterious affair is told by our Waverly correspondent:

Erie fast freight No. 86 came from Corning to Wellsburg last night about midnight with the engineer dead in his cab. This state of affairs was discovered at Elmira, where the train passed the station going at the rate of nearly a mile a minute, just a minute after another train had backed into the switch from the main track. An order was sent to Wellsburg to put the block signal against the train. The firemen, who curiously enough had not noticed anything wrong, then climbed into the cab and discovered the terrible truth. Orders were sent from Elmira to have the engine detached from the train and the dead man brought to Waverly, and with this ghastly freight lying in front of him, over which he had to reach to grasp the throttle, the fireman carried out the order. Undertakers Hanford and Dodd, Erie Surgeon R. S. Harnden and Coroner Hilton had been notified and were at the depot. The body of the dead man was taken to Hanford's undertaking rooms, where an examination showed that the whole back of his head was crushed, and that death was caused by a fractured skull.

His cap was found on the track one mile this side of Corning, at what is known as Mossy Glenn crossing, and it is generally believed that he had put his head out the window and had been struck by the gates. Railroad men speak of him as a careful engineer and say that he undoubtedly had the injector on, which prevented the boiler from going dry. His fireman was Ray Mosier of Hornellsville and the conductor was C. E. Stickle of Owego.

Joseph H. Leslie had been in the employ of the Erie for thirty years, working in the capacity of engineer a greater part of that time. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and has resided in Susquehanna for the past twenty-five years. He is survived by his wife and one son, Bruce, aged 23 years, and a daughter aged 17.

His son arrived in Waverly this morning and had the remains taken home on train No. 2 this noon.

Claim Agent Blades of Hornellsville was in Waverly today looking into the matter.

STEPPED ON GLASS

Some three months ago Mrs. Frank Murphy, wife of Frank Murphy, the well known clothing merchant, of No. 512 South Elmer avenue, stepped on a piece of glass which cut a gash of some extent in the bottom of the right foot. The wound healed quickly and nothing more was thought of the matter until recently, when the foot began to give her considerable pain. As the pain did not cease, she visited a physician, who advised that the foot be opened at the point where the wound from stepping on the glass was made. An incision was made and a piece of glass nearly three-quarters of an inch in length was found imbedded in the flesh. The glass was removed and it is thought there will be no further trouble.

GONE TO THE JURY

The taking of evidence in the Casey murder trial at Elmira, which has been in progress several days, was finished yesterday and this morning the judge charged the jury. The two hastened to the place, but as they approached the spot where the man was lying two men were taking the unfortunate fellow away. Where they went with him is not known.

STATE HEALTH BOARD WILL RENDER AID

Local Sewer Situation Will Be Given Exhaustive Study by the Department of Health at Harrisburg

The committee of the council in charge of plans for the new sewer system for Sayre have felt for some time that the whole question is of such vital importance to the people of Sayre that they should have the benefit of the experience of the best engineering experts possible to obtain. The committee has given the whole question a great deal of study and hard work, and while they have well formulated ideas of their own, which they have worked out in conjunction with the engineers, at the same time they feel that they are taking a great deal of responsibility in recommending the system to be installed. They have felt for some time that it is a matter which should be referred to some department of state, and with that aim in view, have been corresponding for some time with the authorities at Harrisburg. Dr. Dixon, state commissioner of health, has generously offered the services of his department, and has invited the committee to send a competent representative here to carefully look over the town and study the local conditions, giving the committee such necessary aid as the state is amply able to afford, and the department will make such recommendations as it may consider necessary to obtain efficiency and economy in design.

The committee have already forwarded the plans to Harrisburg and have requested Dr. Dixon to send a representative here as early as practicable. The services performed by Dr. Dixon's department will be entirely free of charge to the borough. The action of the committee is to be highly commended, and while it will probably delay the sewer question a few weeks, it will be a source of great satisfaction to the people of Sayre to know that the system will have the approval of the proper state authorities.

The question of sewerage for Sayre is rapidly becoming a question of vital importance and the department of health can be of the greatest assistance in deciding upon the system to be used.

All theatre goers are interested in a great play, written by a great author, one which has been played by such artists as the elder Sothorn, Goodwin, Willard and Charles Wyndham, before the crowned heads of Europe and the elite of America. So all the scenic artist, the actor, stage manager, costumer, musicians and electrician can do, has been done to equip the eminent actor Mr. Clifton Mallory for his appearance this season in the great English comedy, "David Garrick." Each actor in Mr. Mallory's support has been chosen, with but one idea, he must look the part, as drawn by the great author, T. W. Robertson. The beautiful on the stage as in nature, deserves admiration, and all lovers of the highest and grandest in the world of drama, should see this production at the Loomis February 21 and 22.
