BRUTAL COSSACKS.

Mrs. Spiridonova, who shot her husband, tells of her treatment. ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 24.—Great wrath has been aroused in Liberal circles by the publication of a letter from Mrs. Spiridonova, the seventeen-year-old girl who shot M. Lushenofsky, chief of the secret police at Tamor, in which she describes the indignities and brutalities to which she was subjected. On account of her youth and her self sacrifice in executing the sentence against M. Lushenofsky, who was dejected on account of his cruelty in suppressing the peasant dignitaries, she has been made one of the heroines of the revolution and is called a second Charlotte Corday.

The letter says that after the shooting of Lushenofsky, whose bodyguard of Cossacks did not save him from five well aimed bullets, Mrs. Spiridonova was knocked down and beaten with the whips of the Cossacks and rifle butts. She was then dragged by her hair downstairs to a slight by the enraged Cossacks, taken to the police station, undressed and thrust into a damp, cold cell, where she was subjected to eleven hours of torment in order to force her to reveal the names of her accomplices. The girl says that two officers took brutal pleasure in kicking her back and forth across her cell, tearing her hair, burning her flesh with their cigarettes and threatening her with abandonment to the Cossacks unless she confessed.

Mrs. Spiridonova is now in a hospital in a serious condition. Her skull is fractured in two places, one eye is injured, and her body is a mass of bruises from head to foot.

The newspapers demand the instant trial and punishment of the two officers, whose names are given, but the vengeance of the revolutionists will probably anticipate official action. The Russ condemns the organization "which sent this child on such a mission."

HENDRICKS' DEFENSE.

Insurance Inspector Issues a Statement on Armstrong Report.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Francis Hendricks, state superintendent of insurance, has furnished for publication a statement relating to the recent report of the Armstrong committee of the legislature, in part as follows: "My attention, of course, has been called especially to the portion of the report of the Armstrong committee which criticizes the administration of the insurance department, and I desire to say a few words in reply.

"In the public attention which of late has been almost exclusively directed toward the affairs of a few of the large life insurance companies, I think the fact has rather been overlooked that this department is equally charged with the examination and supervision of fire, marine, casualty and credit guarantee corporations and business, assessment and fraternal beneficiary associations, numbering 433 companies in all, operating under separate and widely different provisions of law.

"During my term of office there has been no insolvency or default resulting in loss to the policy holders, except in the case of one comparatively small fire insurance company, where there was a loss to policy holders of some 25 per cent of the insured premiums, and during the recent scandals so well informed persons has doubted the entire solvency of the companies most concerned to meet all of their liabilities to policy holders.

"Beyond the limits mentioned I do not believe that it has been the theory or expectation that this department would or could exercise a daily watch over the acts of officers and directors with reference to compelling the exercise of ordinary business ability and honesty in the management of the details of the business committed to their care."

Battling Nelson Figures as Hero.

BUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Battling Nelson, the champion light weight pugilist, who is spending a few days in the mountains at Blue Sulphur, near here, prior to going into training at Philadelphia, was painfully injured in stopping a runaway at that place. He rescued Mrs. Frank Howland with her two small children, from a perilous situation. Mrs. Howland had taken the children for a drive, and the horse, becoming frightened, bolted and ran. As the runaway neared Nelson the pugilist leaped for the horse's neck and succeeded in stopping it only after he had been dragged a considerable distance.
