KING CHRISTIAN KICKED.

And the Bandmaster Returned to His Place and Resumed Playing.

The late Rear Admiral Alexander Murray once related the following incident which occurred at the time when Gustavus V. Fox, then assistant secretary of the navy, visited Europe with a fleet of United States warships. While in Copenhagen the late King Christian invited Mr. Fox and the principal officers of the fleet to dine. A correspondent of the New York Times gives Mr. Fox's account of what happened:

"After the principal business of the dinner was over, at the invitation of King Christian the glasses were filled, and all the table being at attention, his majesty arose and with due formality proposed 'The president of the United States.' Glasses were raised, but the king paused, glanced over his shoulder, and abruptly left the dining hall. The guests, upon invitation of an aide, resumed themselves.

"In a few minutes I saw the bandmaster come hurriedly into sight, followed by the king, who kicked him across my field of view. Shortly after the king returned to the dining hall, took his place at the head of the table, and the guests having arisen, again proposed 'The president of the United States.' As he raised his glass the band struck up 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' With a satisfied smile, his majesty emptied his glass.

"King Christian was democratic and kind, and beloved by his people, but all things had to be done decently and in order, or he'd know the reason why."

REFORM'S THORNY PATH.

Story by Gov. Folk Illustrative of Some of Its Hardships.

"Reforming are always difficult to start with," said Gov. Folk of Missouri. "New Year's resolutions are no exception to the rule.

"Hence it is that so many resolutions and reforms fail to be permanent. Men lose heart at the beginning. They should persevere, for the first week of a reform, the first week of a resolution, is harder always than the rest of it.

"At the beginning the reformer is sneered at. Everyone tries to take advantage of him.

"I know a young man who decided on New Year's day that he was giving too many of his evenings to the club. Accordingly he resolved that throughout 1906 he would go to the club only twice a month. And that night he proceeded to put the resolution in force.

"Amy," he said to his wife at dinner. "I know that since our marriage I have been too constant a frequenter of the club, and I am aware that this has caused you a deal of silent wretchedness. My dear, I am sorry. I am going to turn over a new leaf. And I will begin to-night."

"The young woman's eyes shone. Her face lighted with joy.

"Oh, Harold," she cried, "how happy you have made me. Uncle Jim wants me to go to the theater with him to-night, and you can stay home and mind the baby."

DESPERATE FIGHT WITH BIG EAGLE

FEROCIOUS BIRD BOARDS FLYING LOCOMOTIVE.

MAKES ATTACK ON ENGINEER

Latter Calls Fireman and Brakeman to His Assistance and Combined Efforts of Three Necessary to Subdue It.

Denver.—Fighting desperately not only for themselves, but for the lives and safety of over 100 passengers, Frank Barlow, engineer, and William Brewington, fireman, battled for half an hour one night recently in a swaying locomotive cab with a great eagle.

The hand-to-hand combat started when the Rocky Mountain limited on the Rock Island road was three miles west of Agate, and the two men were unable to subdue the ferocious bird until the train pulled into Limon. It was a running fight for 20 miles.

Frank Barlow, who lives in this city, has been connected with the Rock Island for 35 years, and he says that this is the first time that such an adventure has ever been encountered on a moving train in the history of railroading.

Two big eagles have made their nest near Agate for the past ten years, and they appeared fearless of man or rushing trains. The other night the Rocky Mountain limited to Chicago had just passed Agate, Col., when one of the eagles raced with the train. The bird became infuriated and flew into the open window of the engine cab. The other eagle followed, and although the train was speeding across the prairies at over 50 miles an hour, it circled time and again over the cab, screaming wildly, while its mate engaged in its terrific fight for life with the trainmen.

The eagle struck Engineer Barlow a terrific blow on the chest as it flew down through the front window of the cab, and he fell from his seat.

The throttle was wide open and the engine pounded out the miles, sudangering the lives of all on the train. While Barlow and Fireman Brewington struggled with the ferocious bird, Barlow started back to his levers, when Brewington called out for help, as he could not fight the bird off alone.

The roar of the train drowned their cries, but John Snyder, the brakeman, noticed that something was wrong and went ahead. As Snyder crept down over the coal in the tender the eagle left Barlow and Brewington and attacked him savagely. Snyder carries his left arm in a sling as the result. The eagle fastened its talons in his clothes and, bracing itself against the sides of the cab with its wings, tore viciously at Snyder's arm.

By combined efforts the other two men finally pulled the talons out of the flesh, leaving a very dangerous wound, but still fought fiercely, lying on the floor and striking up into the air.

This dramatic battle was lighted only by the lurid flames shining through the furnace door.

"The screams of the eagle, the three men fighting and cursing like fiends, with the ghastly light under the boiler flickering up red, made that engine cab, rocking and reeling, seem like a section of some strange hell," said Barlow.

The eagle was bound with leather thongs and brought to Denver, where it will be played on exhibition in the window of the Rock Island ticket office.

It is a magnificent bird, and measures seven feet and eleven inches from tip to tip of its wings.

It is one of the largest eagles ever captured alive in the world.

Escapes Awful Death.
Niagara Falls, Ont.—Edward Fenton, of Ontario, has had a thrilling escape from a terrible death at the falls. He was walking along the top of the cliff of the gorge just opposite the whirlpool, when he slipped on the ice and went over the ledge. Just as he was disappearing he seized hold of a thorn bush on the brink of the precipice, and to its toughness Fenton owed his life. He could not gain a foothold, but his companion, Harvey Wetmore, also of Toronto, took off his overcoat and let it down to Fenton, who succeeded in transferring his hold from the thorn bush to the coat, and was gradually drawn to a place of safety as the imminent risk of both his own life and Whitmore's.

BOLD HORSE THIEF STRIKES WAVERLY

Steals a Rig There This Morning and Succeeds in Escaping

Waverly—The horse thief is abroad in the land. He went to James (Biddie) Mathers' place at 78 Lincoln street last night, entered the barn and took therefrom a bay horse. He then led the animal down the street to 25 Hickory street, near the corner of Lincoln, where he appropriated an open buggy, harness and whip. Here he hitched the horse to the buggy and departed for places unknown, though the officers are diligently searching for him.

The horse is a bay, about 14 years old, weighs 1,000 pounds, and has a swelling on the right front leg. The animal is rather poor and has a bad attack of the heaves, which precludes any great amount of travel. The buggy was without a top and had a tin dashboard. The front end of the box was higher than the rear, and the cushions were torn. One thill was broken and had been mended with leather. There was a yellow drop top whip, a laprobe and a horse blanket in the wagon when it was taken.
