HAMILTON SENDS DEFIANCE.
Quaestio Letter to Mackay, Chairman of Public Inquiry.
NEW YORK, March 22.—The former legislative agent of the New York Life Insurance company, Andrew Hamilton, forwarded to Clarence H. Mackay, temporary chairman of the Fowler (investigating) committee of that company, a caustic letter, in which he made known his refusal to appear before that committee and at the same time defiantly challenged its members to do their worst.
The communication is in response to an invitation sent to the "Judge" soon after his return from Europe, in which he was asked to furnish evidence to the New York Life's investigating body.
The "Judge's" letter follows:
"I am replying to the only communication received by me from your body since my return.
"It is doubtless quite evident that by this time you should be yourselves satisfied that the statements contained in your report of Feb. 7 in regard to your examination of my account are seriously wrong and that when you rushed into print in order that you might wear a newspaper halo you had not, as your report incorrectly states, obtained all the information about this subject that is accessible.
"Your published interviews, which I take to be correct because I know the facts so covered, betray a startling loss of memory during your deliberations upon the subject of the weekly audit for years of my accounts by some members of your committee and from time to time by other members of the board of trustees.
"Documents in the company's office files (if they have not been suppressed), official action spread upon the record of your proceedings and correspondence to which you must certainly have had access have been deliberately ignored by you to give to the Paris policy fee account and to the refunded New York premium tax collections a false color upon which to base your unwarranted accusations.
"Notwithstanding this, I was prepared to accept the suggestion contained in your letter—'Will you walk into my parlor, says the spider to the fly'—when you practically retreated from your position in choosing to proceed by the commencement of a civil action against me.
"I can appreciate that the events of the past week so far as I have participated in them, are not perhaps calculated to put you in a judicial state of mind. I will therefore accept your latest challenge and meet you in a tribunal where there will be no vanity to be tickled and the scales will be held on an even balance."
At the Hoffman House the "Judge" was asked whether he had ever said that he had been prevailed upon to remain longer in Paris than he had intended by the New York Life trustees.
He said, "I did not make that assertion but I could have said it with truth if I wished to."
Hamilton intimated that he would soon have something very interesting to say about George W. Perkins.

PRESIDENT ORDERED ON.
Alaska TO CAPE HORN.
Line That Will Follow Route of the Gray Plover Most of the Way.
The gray plover nests in the sedges of Alaska; and when the short summer wanes, it leads its young in perilous flight southward across plains and mountain ranges, and then, guided by the coast-line, wings its way steadily onward until it reaches its winter home in Patagonia, says the Technical World.
For more than one-half of the immense distance of its migration, the flight course of the gray plover is almost coincident with the surveyed line for the projected Pan-American railway, a commercial connection between the northern and southern continents that a few years ago was regarded as the dream of enthusiasts, but which to-day has passed far beyond the realm of visions.
Men whose lives are well behind them will probably live to see the day when they can make an unbroken railway journey from the river Yukon in Alaska to the river Limay in Patagonia.
This journey, from the north to the south means more than the traveling of an immense distance within a short space of time, though this thought alone is impressive. It means the passing through alternate cold and heat, moisture and dryness, bare fields and green fields, treeless plains and tropical forests, fertile valleys and sterile mountains; it means acquaintance with men of every hue of skin and of every habit of life.
Wrecks.
Two dilapidated specimens of the genus tramp were crawling along the parade of a seaside resort when they came upon a coast guardman looking through a telescope at a passing vessel. Thinking to have a little fun at his expense, one of them saluted him with "Hi, coasty, have you seen any wrecks to-day?"
After calmly looking them over he replied, "Not until I saw you two!"
Also... Student.
Attendance at lectures is not compulsory in Germany, and there are all sorts of yarns about the students' idleness. They say that a young man in Heidelberg once approached another young man and asked:
"Where are the university buildings?"
The second young man replied:
"I really don't know. I am a student here myself."

GOT OUT AND PUSHED
Athens—A party of 40 persons from Athens and Sayre went to Sheshequin last evening and enjoyed a supper and dance at the hotel at that place. There were two loads of them and they report a very enjoyable time. The only trouble experienced was in coming up the Sheshequin narrows, when one of the teams balked and the masculine portion of the load was obliged to get out and push.
NEW ELECTRIC MOTOR
Athens—L. C. Miller of Waverly has just completed the work of installing a new 500 volt electric motor in L. T. Hoyt's printing office. The greatly increased demand for the legal blanks which the office turn out rendered the necessity of the new power.
