NEW YORK BY NIGHT

Patrons of the Bowdoin theatre got some good views of New York last night during the production of "New York by Night," which was produced there for the first time. Places where humanity ebbs and flows in steady streams were picked out for reproduction and the scenes were admirably brought out. Broadway, Long Acre square, and Harlem bridge were the three principal scenes, and it took no great stretch of imagination to believe one was in the metropolis. The story begins in the Adirondack mountains and is woven around a guide. He comes to New York and meets a charming young woman and there is a genuine love affair. But some schemers manage to thwart the plans of the leading characters. However, justice triumphs and there is a joyful reunion. Incidentally there are a great many amusing incidents brought out to add a touch of liveliness to the play. The piece scored a big hit. Charles Miller had the leading role and in the part of Paighton, the guide, was excellent. Later on he assumed another role which he played with fine effect. Fern Foster made her reappearance with the company after an absence of several weeks and she was given an ovation. She scored a big hit by her capital portrayal of one of the leading female roles. Annette Marshall was very good in her role, and Pearl de Sossior created a favorable impression by her good work. Wilner Walter played his role with excellent judgment and Edwin Denison, Butler Haviland, Harry Brooks, Thaddeus Gray, and Henry Alexander all did good work.

DEER HUNT TAKES PLACE IN CHICAGO

AN ESCAPED ANIMAL SPREADS PANIC IN CITY'S STREETS.

PEOPLE FLEE FOR SAFETY

One Policeman Injured Before It Is Captured and Returned to Home in Lincoln Park.

Chicago.—Pursued in wild flight by a wild throng of police and other men and boys, a big deer which had escaped from captivity by leaping the high fence of the animal corral at Lincoln park, spread excitement for miles over the North side streets the other day, scattering women and children and leaving panic in its wake. The animal was finally captured at Dearborn and South Water streets, where it was forced to slacken its pace. It was brought to bay by policemen.

In the capture, Patrolman John Foley, of the Central station, was gored by one of the animal's horns. His clothing was torn and his body bruised.

The deer, one of the largest in the herd in captivity at Lincoln park, leaped the fence of the corral and fell on the gravel walk surrounding the inclosed space. Heading westward it ran across the park until it reached the main driveway which leads to Clark street. By that time an alarm had been spread and the park police were preparing for a long chase.

Capt. Busch's buggy was taken by Lieutenant Charles Shaw, who called several mounted policemen, and the pursuit was taken up.

Through the fashionable north shore district, the more plebeian stretches nearer the heart of the city and crowded, busy North Clark street, the unique chase continued.

Pedestrians, alarmed by the clatter and the wild appearance of the on-coming wanderer from the zoo, fled precipitately, seeking safety in stores, hallways and houses where they were strangers.

The streets were completely cleared as though by magic.

Shaking its horned head and beating loudly, the deer appeared at the Clark street bridge, followed by an excited throng of citizens.

Far in the rear clattered mounted officers, and a buggy filled with policemen bounded over the rough pavement in pursuit of the animal. Despite the wagons, street cars and traffic which blocked Clark street in the loop district, the deer sped on until it reached South Water street, where it turned eastward, when it was headed off by a huge wagon which was driven directly into its path.

The animal, swinging its horns from side to side, to warn persons who gathered near, continued eastward. Great excitement prevailed.

In and out among the wagons in South Water street the animal galloped and jumped. Finally the animal reached Dearborn street. At that place Police-men John Foley and Peter Kelly were waiting its arrival. They tossed a rope over the animal's head and it was dragged to the ground, where many volunteers gathered to hold it a captive.

When the crowd had been dispersed by other policemen who hurried to the street crossing, the deer was taken to a store and the authorities at Lincoln park were notified of its capture.

Hangs from Railroad Trestle. Manitowoc, Wis.—George Schadeburg saved his own life and that of his four-year-old son the other day by clinging to the ties of a railroad trestle with one arm while a heavily loaded train passed.

The man was crossing the Wisconsin Central bridge near the city with his two boys and the younger boy had trailed in the rear. Schadeburg heard a train approaching and ran back to save the boy, but was unable to clear the bridge. Grasping the rail in one arm the father swung from the side of the bridge with the other and held on until the train had passed. Schadeburg's arm was badly wrenched and he was completely exhausted when assistance reached him.

Is Half Cat, Half Rabbit. London.—For the many who dispute the existence of the cat-rabbit hybrid I am prepared (writes a correspondent of the Sydney Bulletin) to land one in Sydney from the modest sum of $20. Its body, head, and fur are those of a cat, and it also "mews" and eats meat.

On the other hand, it has bunny's legs and a peculiarly stumpy tail, about an inch long. It sits in an upright attitude on its hind quarters, and runs along rabbit fashion and eats grass as well as meat.

Suspicious. Every man thinks every other man has his price.
