INDIANS IN NEW YORK.

About Five Thousand in the State, Most of Whom Get Government Aid.

The state of New York has had for more than a century "an Indian question," but so judiciously has New York handled it that few persons are aware of the fact that there are more than 5,000 Indians living on reservations in this state, maintaining tribal relations without controversy, dispute or disorder. The new census shows the number of such Indians on reservations to be exactly 5,000, of whom 1,472 are in the Cattaraugus reservation in the western part of the state, 1,200 are on the St. Regis reservation in Franklin county, fronting on the St. Lawrence river, and 225 in the Onondaga reservation of 7,200 acres near the city of Syracuse.

Twenty years ago the number of Indians on reservations in New York state was 4,800. Thirty years ago it was 4,707. Forty years ago it was 4,129. Fifty years ago it was 3,534. Instead of New York Indians on reservations dying out they appear to be increasing.

The Indians on the Cattaraugus and Allegheny reservations receive an annuity from both the state and federal governments. The Indians on the St. Regis reservation get an annuity from the state only. The Tonawanda Indians, who number 500 and who have a reservation of 7,500 acres not far from Buffalo, receive for their support what is known as the "wood tax," which is paid by those who occupy any of their lands. The Onondaga Indians get an annuity from the United States government under a treaty made with it, and they get an annuity also from the state, in addition to which they receive a certain amount of salt each year—in part compensation for their surrender to the state of lands now in use for salt works near Syracuse.

The state of New York pays to Indians on reservations about $8,000 a year in annuities, in addition to such amounts as come to them for relief or for the maintenance of Indian schools.

First Wall Paper.

The manor house at Saltre, Lincolnshire, England, has what is said to be the first wall paper used in England. The paper, which is like blotting paper in texture, and has a cream-colored ground and chocolate design, is fastened to the wall with small tacks.

Post Mortem Arrest.

A splendid funeral procession was proceeding from Honjo, Japan, to bury the remains of Tarou, the head of a gambling den, when the police stopped the ceremony, as the dead man was believed to be an escaped convict. This was found to be true, and the body was taken to the prison burial ground.

Simulate Sickness.

Many animals feign illness. In military stables cases are recorded of horses pretending to be lame in order to avoid going to a military exercise. A certain chimpanzee had been accustomed to receive cake when ill. After his recovery, he often feigned coughing, in order to procure dainties.

GIRLS' SCHOOL IN CHINA.

An Event Which Marks the Progress of Education in That Country.

Consul Hayes, of Nanking, writes as follows about female education in China:

"The viceroys of the Liang Kiang provinces, Chou-fu, one of the most progressive of the higher Chinese officials, has recently founded a school for girls in Nanking. At the opening exercises, which were largely attended, the viceroys delivered an address, which impressed the people that this girl school was no ordinary institution. It is supported by subscriptions from a number of leading talents of Nanking, who have raised $4,256, and the viceroys has subscribed $1,422, annually. The school is located in a quiet place with spacious buildings. Six lady teachers have been engaged, three to teach English and three Chinese.

"The opening of this school is an important event in Nanking, as it is really the birth of female education in this ancient city, for, as has been remarked, 'In every new undertaking for the advancement of China, unless the Chinese themselves feel the need, and assume the responsibility, it can hardly be said to have taken root in Chinese soil.' The interest taken in this school by the leading officials of Nanking indicates the dawning of freedom for China's girls and women. For the last few years the missionary girl schools have been doing good work, but this is the first school established under the patronage of the viceroys. China is awakening to realize that a nation's strength and prosperity lie in the education of her daughters."

USED MAP FOR A WEAPON.

Unrolled with a Quick Flip, It Frightened a Tiger Into the Jungle.

While a well-known local surveyor, who had been kept out late at work at night, was driving in a rikisha along Tampeis road, his rikisha coolie suddenly dropped the shafts and ran for his life into the edge of the jungle, relates the Strata Budget.

On peering into the darkness (the vehicle was not carrying a light) the gentleman saw a large creature standing in the middle of the road. He got out of the rikisha and went toward the beast, thinking it some large dog that had frightened the coolie. When within six or seven yards away he perceived that the obstructor of the path was a large tiger.

He had no weapon except a large district survey map rolled up. He saw the futility of attempting to disable the tiger with the rolled-up map, but a thought struck him that he might manage to frighten it by means of his roll. Suddenly he unrolled it with a quick flip, spreading it to its full area of four or five feet square. With a single bound the tiger cleared off into the jungle.

The next thing was to find the coolie, who eventually was discovered in a state of collapse in the ditch. He was quite unable to pull his fare back, and it was not until three or four miles had been traversed that he recovered sufficiently to drive the European home.

JAPANESE AS SERVANTS.

Are Willing to Do Half the Work of Others Employed with Them.

Japanese servants long ago won, by their industry and efficiency, the respect of their American employers, and they would not be able to get salaries that range from $50 to $75 a month. Their yellow servants of other races are just as appreciative of their abilities. They know that they can be relied on to do their own work and all that the other servants neglect.

It is surprising to see how much a Japanese will do of the work that five or six maids are hired to accomplish in a house. He will help the parlor maid at her duties one minute and the next will find him assisting the waitress to set the table. He is not above helping a chamber maid to clean the rooms and he loves to help the laundress to carry the bundles of clothes upstairs. He is delighted to run errands for the cook and is amiable enough to help the kitchen maid to peel potatoes when she is late at her work.

All this aid and comfort to his fellow servants is given with no neglect of his master's business. So there is nothing for the housekeeper to say against his varied efficiencies.

He does, however, have the effect of making servants more lazy and careless than before. He usually does about half their work.

Remarkable Bonnet.

Mrs. MacLean died the other day at New Ross, county Wexford, Ireland, at the age of 99. At a recent exhibition at New Ross a black straw bonnet that had been worn by Mrs. MacLean for 59 consecutive years without a change of shape or trimmings was on view.

Unpleasant People.

The most satisfied and successful people in the world are those whose practical achievements correspond exactly to their inner desires and ambitions. They are also generally the most blameworthy and nauseating—Chicago, Chronicle.

FACES DEATH TO ## SAVE A STRANGER

HEROIC ACT OF A YOUNG NEW YORK GIRL.

MAN BREAKS THROUGH ICE

Brave Maid Hears Cries for Help and Goes to Her Rescue—Drags Her Exhausted Victim from Water.

Gouverneur, N. Y.—An instance of unusual heroism has just come to light from the shores of Black lake, a long body of water lying in the extreme eastern portion of St. Lawrence county. Unaided and alone, with the judgment of a mature mind and the determination of one who knows no fear, Diantha Apple, 22 years old, saved a man from drowning one night recently.

John Cassidy, whose widowed mother resides in this village, is the teacher at the Stark district school. On the night in question he skated up the swamp to the home of one of his pupils who was ill. After spending an hour in the visit he started for his home, taking the course down the lake. As he passed home-ward, a dark figure silhouetted against the whitened surface of the ice, his approach was discerned by Diantha Apple, who stood looking out of a window of the John Mandigo home, where she was employed in caring for Mr. Mandigo's sister.

Cassidy quickly passed out of her sight behind an island and entered a narrow channel where the water runs swiftly. Suddenly he broke through into the icy water. He fought desperately to gain the shore, which was 30 feet distant to the left. He managed to remove his gloves and tried to take his skates off, but the task was impossible. When he realized that he could not save himself he cried loudly for help. In the stillness of the night his call was faintly heard by the girl in the house a quarter of a mile away. Knowing the frail nature of the ice in the channel she at once realized that the man she had seen passing two minutes before was in the water. She ran to the shore and saw out in the swift current the man struggling for his life. The little woman called to

"HANG ON FOR YOUR LIFE."

Cassidy that she would save him if he could keep up a minute longer. Unassisted, she placed a rowboat that was on the shore on a large hand sled and moved it out upon the ice. As she advanced cautiously out toward the figure in the channel he called to her not to come nearer, adding that she, too, would break through.

"I don't know who you are," she said, "but one life's as good as another and if you will keep up I'll save you. She then pushed the boat off the sled upon the ice and carefully pushed toward the man. The thin ice sank under the weight until the girl stood ankle deep in the water that rushed back. With never a thought of the possibility of the ice giving way she then called out:

"Take hold of that boat and hang on for your life."

Cassidy reached up and took hold of the end of the boat, but his hands were numb with cold and he slipped back into the water and sank. On coming to the surface he said: "It's no use."

"Don't you give up, mister. I know I can save you. Take another hold on that boat and don't you dare let go this time."

Encouraged by the sharp commands of the little woman, Cassidy got another grip on the boat, this time more securely. The woman then forced the small heel of her shoe through the thin ice to brace herself and slowly hauled the boat toward shore. She then jabbed the other heel through and moved still farther back. This performance was repeated until the ice was thick enough to hold them both, when Cassidy fell back exhausted. The brave girl then dragged the prostrate form to land and assisted Cassidy up to the house. A roaring fire was started, dry clothes and liquor provided, and in two hours the man was none the worse for his awful experience except for weakness.

The following day Cassidy sent the girl all of the money he had saved from his salary as teacher, and the trustees of Stark district have made a cash donation.

Miss Apple is attractive in appearance and, though slight in build, has the hardihood and strength of one accustomed to an active, outdoor life.

SPECIAL SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

Waverly—Every seat in the large auditorium of the Methodist church was filled last evening, fifty extra chairs were also added and others were obliged to stand. A special song service was given by a chorus of thirteen young men under the direction of Rev. C. W. Smith. The Rev. M. S. Godshall preached a very eloquent sermon on the subject of "Song" which was listened to with great interest. The selections by the choir were as follows: "Glory song," "Southern Glory Song," "Nearer My God to Thee," "Grace Enough for Me," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "The King's Business." The music was rendered in a spirited way and was very inspiring.
