Not Extravagant Praise. "What did the editor say about your story?" asked the young man's friend. "I don't believe he liked it very well."

"Well, there are differences in the appreciative faculty as well as in the ability to create. The same man's taste will vary according to circumstances."

"I suggested that, and he agreed with me. He said that if a man found himself on a desert island with nothing to read except my story and a back number city directory, he might read my story."—Stray Stories.

Benevolent Soul.

The following advertisement recently appeared in a London paper: "Milk—If the individual who stole the milk off my doorstep this morning will be good enough to knock at the door on the occasion of his next professional visit I'll give him a drop of rum to put in it. Milk taken neat on cold mornings and an empty stomach is likely to injure the internal economy of outdoor workers. Address, etc."

Herring in Kaiser Canal. Among the benefits brought to Germany by the Kaiser Wilhelm canal are shoals of herring. The fish enter the canal, according to an official report, on their way from the Baltic to the North sea, and when the Brunshutzel lock is closed they congregate in such large numbers as to be captured with ease.

Unique Publication.

The Cavalry Journal, which is the latest British military periodical, and is edited by Gen. Baden-Powell, has its pages perforated, postage stamp fashion, on the inside page, so that if a reader wishes to save a page for reference or send it to a friend he can easily tear it out.
