Stranger Who Was Passing Through Sayre Yesterday Amazed Crowd at the Station

One of the most remarkable and entertaining characters that has been seen in Sayre for a long time alighted from a Lehigh Valley south bound train yesterday afternoon. He was a man past the meridian of life, well dressed, wore iron gray hair and whiskers, and had every appearance of once having been a man of intellect. From the train he wandered to the ladies' waiting room and once inside he began to quote scripture. A crowd gathered and as Officer DeGroff believed that the best interests of the traveling public were being interfered with he told the man that he would have to go outside if he wished to continue handing out scriptural quotations. The stranger, undisturbed by the officer's orders, stepped to the platform of the station, and despite the fact that the rain was descending in torrents, he proceeded to exhort the crowd that followed him. He cut loose again and chapter after chapter from holy writ fell from his lips in a manner which plainly told that to him the bible was an open book. He started in at Genesis and it is believed that had he been given time he would not have finished until the end of Revelations. The conductor's "All aboard" put a stop to his quotations, and leaping aboard the train he disappeared in one of the coaches, leaving his crowd of listeners staring in amazement at his wonderful ability to read the bible from memory. Whoever the man was he was doubtless demented.

Advertiser's Story that a Man Was Fined Ten Dollars for Spitting in a Street Car Purely Mythical

In an editorial printed in yesterday morning's Elmira Advertiser the statement was made that a man had been fined ten dollars in Sayre for spitting on the floor of a street car. Where the Advertiser obtained its information for the story is not known, but wherever it came from the information is decidedly erroneous. A search of the police records in Sayre fails to find where anyone has been fined ten dollars or any other amount for spitting in a street car or anywhere else. The Advertiser's story is mythical from start to finish. In the first place it tells too much. Magistrates under the borough ordinance are not permitted to assess a fine of ten dollars for spitting in public places. A year ago last spring an ordinance was passed by the borough council prohibiting spitting in public places and imposing as a penalty a fine of one dollar for the first offense and two dollars for the second offense. So far there has never been a single arrest under the provisions of the ordinance. The reasons therefore are easily assigned. When an officer or other person in authority is present the spitee does not spit, and if another person sees him spit that other person does not care to go before a magistrate and make a complaint. So there you are. The spitting ordinance amounts to as much as does a figure nine with the tail knocked off.

The suit of William Ackley versus the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for damages was heard before M. J. Long, E. J. Ayres and Charles P. Welles monument from a freight car at the Towanda station when some cars were shoved against the car where they were working. Ackley was thrown from the car and sustained, it is said, quite severe injuries. Ackley was represented by D. C. DeWitt, Esq., while Henry Streeter, Esq., and Hon. W. T. Davies defended the case for the railroad company.

When He Learned the Price of Sayre Real Estate He Nearly Fainted

The other day a farmer sauntered into the office of the Sayre Land Company, dropped into one of the comfortable chairs which the office affords, and asked if he could see the proprietor. A member of the clerical force surmised that the gentleman from the rural districts wanted to see Mr. Goodnow and he was ushered into that gentleman's presence. The farmer lost no time but explained the object of his visit at once.

"Say neow," he began, "does that air company o' your'n own the ar vakent lot on the street that goes from the hospital to the bridge what runs across the railroad?" and being given an affirmative reply the tiller of the soil continued:

"Waal, ye see I'm sunthin' of a speckalator; 'tother day I sold a lot I owned in West Sayre; made a nice little spec and I'll be gol derned if they ain't a lot of money in buyin' and sellin' lots in Sayre. I'll be ding busted if I didn't clean up $400 on the ar deal; 'gin $200 for the lot two year ago, and sold the gul derned thing for $600; closed the deal today, got the cash, have put the stuff in er bank, and if you fellers want ter git red of the ar lot I'll tell the bank ter turn the money over to yeou."

Mr. Goodnow listened attentively to the farmer's recital, and when he had finished informed him that the last offer the company had received for the lot in question was $6,000. The gentleman from the rural districts gasped for breath.

"W-h-a-t," he yelled, "yer want $6,000 for a lot with all them ar shanties settin' longside of it! Yer must think I'm er derned fool!"

"Sir," said Mr. Goodnow straightening up and looking like a man whose feelings had been irreparably injured, "the 'shanties' to which you have so disrespectfully referred, are Sayre's public building."

The farmer was carried to the outer air and a stiff breeze blowing from the west caused him to recover from the shock.

LOCAL MENTION

Roses and carnations for Easter at Weber's book parlors. 284-3

E. J. Connelly, the well known proprietor of the beer bottling establishment, is making extensive improvements to his place of business.

Mrs. Johanna Mannix, wife of Patrick Mannix, of Barclay, died at her home in that place, Friday. The remains passed through Sayre today for Towanda, where the interment is to take place. A large number of Sayre friends of the deceased accompanied the remains to Towanda.

The Lehigh Valley railroad company has purchased the Bartlett house at Wysox, owned and conducted by Stephen Sullivan. It is not known just what the company will do with the property. It is understood, however, that the new Lehigh tracks which are to be built at that place will run close to the hotel porch.

THIS MAN CONFESSED

A man who confessed that he is Myers, the man who killed Mrs. Payne of Jackson Summit, Tioga county, two years ago, was brought to Wellsboro from Sunbury on Saturday night. He was intoxicated when found and claimed that he was Troinkle, the murderer, for whom the police and officers of this section have been on the lookout since the day the crime was discovered.
