HORRORS IN DETAIL

San Francisco Scene of Ghastly Deeds.

SOLDIERS METE OUT STERN JUSTICE

Death Reports Differ—General Greely Gives 277 as Total, While Cooney Watah's Estimate is Not Less Than a Thousand.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—An official report sent by General Greely of the extent of the loss of life in San Francisco is as follows: "Very careful investigation made by Captain Winn limits as far as information is obtainable the entire San Francisco death list from late disaster to 277 victims; of these about fifty unknown gathered from various parts of the city have been temporarily buried in Lombard and Ray streets, Washington square and Portsmouth square. In the Valencia hotel fourteen bodies were recovered and fifty-six others are believed to have perished in the ruins."

Secretary Shaw has sent $15,000,000 of treasury funds to San Francisco for bank deposit to relieve money stringency.

Danger of pestilential epidemic appears averted, but hundreds of cases of pneumonia are now reported in the refugee camps. Rains added to the general misery.

Several cases of intermittent insanity have appeared among quake survivors owing to overstrained nerves. Fortifications at the Golden Gate suffered severely in the earthquake, and nearly all the big gun batteries are useless.

Chinatown is gone forever from its old site. Mayor Schmitz has ordered that all the Chinese be concentrated on Hunter's point, several miles from the city's center.

Willis Ames, a Salt Lake man who escaped from San Francisco, makes a ghastly statement, saying: "While I was walking about the streets I saw men after man shot down by the troops. Most of these that the total number of dead will not be less than a thousand.

His reports are complete, and his estimate is made up from all the data he has been able to collect.

A late report says that 400 more bodies have been uncovered in the clearing away of Market street ruins. Fatality estimates are steadily rising.

Once the pride of San Francisco, Van Ness avenue is flat as the earth from dynamite and gun cotton. Every pound did its work, and though the ruins burned it was not feebly. From Golden Gate avenue north the fire crossed the wide street in but one place. That was the Glass Spreckels place on the corner of California street.

There the flames were writhing up the walls before the dynamites could reach it. Yet they made their way to the foundations, carrying their explosives despite the furnace-like heat.

The dynamiting squad of Captain MacBride saw that a stand was hopeless except on Van Ness avenue. The ruined block that met the wide thoroughfare formed a trench through the clustered structures that the conflagration, wild as it was, could not leap.

The desolate waste straight through the heart of the city is a mute witness to the most heroic and effective work of the whole calamity. Three men did this, and when their work was over and what stood of the city rested quietly for the first time they departed as modestly as they had come. They were ordered to save San Francisco, and they obeyed orders, and Captain MacBride and his two gunners made history on that dreadful night.

One of the greivous scenes that has followed the fire was that witnessed on Telegraph and Russian hills and along the entire north beach front of the city when scores of half starved dogs were found eating human bodies. The animals were discovered gnawing and tearing at the corpses half burned in the ruins. In response to appeals that something be done bluejackets were detailed to cover the sections designated and kill all dogs found in those localities. All morning rifle reports could be heard on the hillsides and along the beach as the dogs were killed.

MANIACS' TERROR.

Denver Man Describes Burning of Asylum Near San Jose.

DENVER, Colo., April 25.—Nothing could be more terrible than the calamity at St. Agnes' asylum, near San Jose, as described by R. L. Drinkwater of Denver. He fled to San Jose from San Francisco only to find that he had gone from bad to worse. He said: "We went to St. Agnes' where we had a friend, and found the asylum in ruins and 200 demented creatures buried there. It was a sight to transfix one with horror to see scores of mad men and women strapped to trees all over the grounds, crying, shrieking and cursing.

"Ordinarily troublesome in their way, the excitement of the falling building made them mad indeed, and their uncanny looks and their eyes were terrible to behold. Nothing could be done for them, as there was no place to put them, and every sane man, woman and child available was digging to release the other unfortunates buried in the ruins.

"Oh, such cries as came seemingly from the bowels of the earth: The devils have got me. Let me out. I am the king. You cannot kill me. I want my supper. I want my dinner. Just as the vulgar said then they called out their disordered thoughts or even guessed their true condition."

SAN FRANCISCO'S SPIRIT.

Workman Burned His Hands Using Hot Bricks to Rebuild.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 25.—W. D. Wood, former mayor of Seattle, who came to San Francisco immediately after the receipt of the reports of the earthquake to search for relatives who had been visiting in that city, expressed his impressions as follows: "San Francisco is a world lesson in proportionate to her misfortune. The spirit of her forty-niners and her native sons falters at nothing. Already she is raising ruins her ashes. The man who burned his hands because he could not wait for the bricks to cool truly represents the San Francisco spirit.

"The new San Francisco will be better than the old, as was the case in Boston, Chicago, Seattle, Galveston and Baltimore, but on a much larger scale. Thirty days will see 50,000 men at work in the burned district."

Her Finger Was Cut Off.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., April 25.—Passing through this city was a San Francisco fugitive who said her name was Miss Logan. She wore a bandage on her left hand and said that while she lay unconscious upon the floor of the lobby of the St. Francis hotel, there after the earthquake last Wednesday morning the third finger of her left hand was cut off, and she was robbed of rings that she had worn there. The young woman is about twenty years of age and is almost prostrated with grief and indignation.

Labor's Appeal For San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, through President Samuel Gompers, issued an appeal to all organized labor throughout the country to contribute one day's pay in aid of the California earthquake and fire sufferers.

May Irwin Contributed $1,000. TETACA, N. Y., April 25.—May Irwin, the actress, gave $1,000, the proceeds of her performance in Tibaca, to the Red Cross society for relief work in California.

FRANCE IS IN PERIL

Law and Order Bows Before Mob Violence.

CLEMENCEAU UNDER THE RED FLAG

Riots Increase Because of Mild Measures of the Government—Troops Prevented From Enforcing Order—Big Strikes Are On.

PARIS, April 25.—France at the present moment is face to face with the gravest peril that can menace a democracy or any form of government.

The law has bowed before the mob in more than one disturbed district, with the inevitable result. Rebellion has begun, and anarchy threatens to follow swiftly not only at the scenes of the prevailing riots, but in Paris itself.

The ranks of the strikers are being constantly augmented, and on May day, the labor day of France, a serious general movement is probable.

Since the retirement of Prime Minister Waldeck-Rousseau the country has not had a strong government in its internal administration. Virtual treason has been talked openly in certain quarters for months past.

When Clemenceau, who is the real head of the Falloux administration, came into power six weeks ago every one expected a stern, Draconic administration. He had been known for twenty years as the lion of French politics.

He had made and remade cabinets at his pleasure, scorned to take office himself, yet he was the most feared man in French political life.

His first action, or that of the cabinet, was virtually to suspend the execution of the separation law. Then he regarded the calamity as a visitation of God to punish France for divorcing the church and state, and they made violent demonstrations against the representatives of authority. This outbreak exhausted itself and popular wrath turned against the mine owners.

A strike began. Clemenceau went to the mines and had all but restored order when several survivors of the disaster, brought to light three weeks after the accident, disclosed the fact that many more might have been reached if the work had been intelligently conducted. The miners became convinced that the companies had deliberately sacrificed many lives by covering certain shafts in order to smother the fire. This was untrue, but the idea naturally infuriated the populace. High handed outrages were committed and soon developed into a reign of terror. More than 40,000 men joined in open defiance of the law and its representatives.

M. Clemenceau sent troops to Pas de Calais, but they were instructed to be mild with the erring miners. The strikers attacked them. More than 100 soldiers were wounded, yet not a shot was fired.

The minister of the interior went once more to the disturbed districts. He told the leaders of the strike that they really must not act in this violent way. He even went so far as to intimate that if things got much worse the soldiers might be compelled to use their weapons.

At the close of his visit there was an amazing scene. M. Clemenceau walked in a friendly way down the street with a large company of revolutionists. There was a red flag in the group and some sang the seditious song "Internationale."

They met a column of cavalry and M. Clemenceau's companions joined in loud hisses and jeers, and the minister of the interior listened in silence. He made no attempt to identify himself with the insult to authority.

It is not to be wondered at that the movement is spreading like wildfire among all the malcontents in the country.

Great strikes are now in progress at Brest, Toulon and most of the seaports, and every preparation has been made in Paris for a general outbreak on May day or earlier.

The Royalists, Clericals, anarchists, all the enemies of the government, have reinforced the great body of organized labor. What the end will be God alone knows.

About 40,000 miners are still on strike, and frequent affrays take place, but the presence there of 25,000 troops and wholesale arrests of the ringleaders have measurably restored calm. In the same part of the country the iron and glass workers of Denais are on strike, but most of them resumed work owing to the stern repression of the authorities.

Patrols traverse the streets and boulevards, giving outward evidence of strong military preparations.

The foregoing is merely a precursor of the national labor movement to be inaugurated May 1, when it is expected that the entire proletariat will quit for a day and perhaps for a longer period of time.

Stillmann-Barbour Wedding at Detroit. DETROIT, Mich., April 25.—Miss Estelle Barbour, daughter of George H. Barbour of this city, was married yesterday afternoon to George S. Stillmann of New York in the Fort Street Presbyterian church. Nearly 2,000 guests were present.

Her Ashes Sent to America. MILAN, April 25.—The ashes of Mrs. L. H. Daloz of Boston, who died suddenly last week, have been sent to the United States, as has also the body of Mrs. W. Townsend of Boston, who died of heart failure at Monogah.

WHEN GREEK MEETS AMERICAN.

Daniels of New York First in Swim at Olympic Games.

ATHENS, Greece, April 25.—Phalaron was the scene of the principal earlier events of the Olympic contest, consisting of boat racing and swimming. The Italians distinguished themselves in the rowing, and Daniels of the New York Athletic club distinguished himself in the swimming contest.

C. M. Daniels, N. Y. A. C. holder of the world's championship 100 yards swimming record, won the first heat of the 100 meters swimming race in 1 minute 17 3/8 seconds. Healey of Australia was second, 1 minute 17 4/5 seconds. J. H. Darbyshire, England, was third. There were six starters.

The second heat of the 100 meters swimming race was won by Radmilovic, Wales, 1 minute 41 seconds. Halmay, Hungary, was second, 1 minute 48 seconds. Marquand Schwartz, Missouri Athletic club, St. Louis, Mo., champion swimmer of the Western association A. U., was third. There were twelve starters.

The six men named above will contest in the final heat of the 100 meters race.

The Italians won the four oared gigs, six oared navy and the whalers in slashing style, the French taking the second place in the four oared gigs and the Greeks finishing second in the six oared race.

The mile swim was won in a magnificent manner by Taylor, English. At no time was he pressed. He received a great ovation.

WOODHAVEN STAKES.

Bertram, Second Choice, Won Feature at Aqueduct.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Bertram, the second choice, scored an easy victory in the Woodhaven stakes at Aqueduct, defeating Atlanta, who was played down from 5 to 2 to 7 to 5. Athens was the pacemaker to well into the stretch, when Bald brought Bertram up and won by three lengths. The winner opened at 8 to 5 in the betting, but the heavy play on Athens forced his price back. Two favorites were successful. Summaries:

First Race.—Calabash, first; Benevolence, second; Warning, third.

Second Race.—Clements, first; Mirza, second; Economy, third.

Third Race.—Elbow, first; Parkville, second; Jaqueta, third.

Fourth Race.—Bertram, first; Athens, second; Molesey, third.

Fifth Race.—Chimney Sweep, first; Tommy Waddell, second; Sailor Boy, third.

Sixth Race.—Belle of Pequest, first; Sahara, second; Duenna, third.

OUR FIRST ADMIRAL

President and Brilliant Assemblies Pay Last Honors.

JOHN PAUL JONES' BODY BURIED.

Roosevelt Praises Hero-Patriot and Gives His Reasons For Selecting Annapolis as a Resting Place For Remains.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 25.—President Roosevelt and his cabinet, high dignitaries of the federal government, governors of states and representatives of the French republic, headed by Ambassador Jusserand and Rear Admiral Brevée de la Peyrere, attended the burial here of John Paul Jones, father of the American navy, with all the honors which were his due. For 100 years John Paul Jones had slept in an unmarked grave in Paris. Rescued from obscurity by General Horace Porter, ter, the great commodore's body now lies in one of the most beautiful buildings of the Naval academy, whose genius he is to be. French and American warships boomed out a magnificent salute, French and American bands played dirges and a chorus of 350 voices sang a requiem as the funeral procession moved from the armory, where the ceremonies were held, to Bancroft hall, where the hero's remains will rest until the crypt planned for its reception is completed.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

The Baltimore Oratorical society sang the "Star Spangled Banner" as President Roosevelt rose to speak, and the "Marseillaise" preceded Ambassador Jusserand's address.

General Horace Porter, who restored John Paul Jones to his adopted country; Secretary Bonaparte of the navy and Governor Warfield of Maryland also spoke. The president said in part: "When the body of John Paul Jones was brought home to America the representatives of many different cities wrote to me, each asking that it should find its last resting place in his city. But feel that the place of all others in which the memory of the dead hero will most surely be a living force is here in Annapolis, where year by year we turn out the midshipmen who are to officer in the future the navy, among whose founders the dead man stands first. Moreover, the future naval officers who live within these walls will find the career of the man whose life we this day celebrate not merely a subject for admiration and respect, but an object lesson to be taken into their innermost hearts. Every officer in our navy should know by heart the deeds of John Paul Jones. Every officer in our navy should feel in each fiber of his being the eager desire to emulate the energy, the professional capacity, and the courage of the man whose life we this day celebrate not merely a subject for admiration and respect, but an object lesson to be taken into their innermost hearts. Every officer in our navy should know by heart the deeds of John Paul Jones. Every officer in our navy should feel in each fiber of his being the eager desire to emulate the energy, the professional capacity,

Every officer in our navy should feel in each fiber of his being the eager desire to emulate the energy, the professional capacity, and the courage of the man whose life we this day celebrate not merely a subject for admiration and respect, but an object lesson to be taken into their innermost hearts. Every officer in our navy should know by heart the deeds of John Paul Jones. Every officer in our navy should feel in each fiber of his being the eager desire to emulate the energy, the professional capacity,

GENERAL HORACE PORTER.

The indomitable determination and dauntless scorn of death which marked John Paul Jones above all his fellows.

"We have met here to do honor to the mighty dead. Remember that our words of admiration are but as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals if we do not by steady preparation and by the cultivation of soul and mind and body fit ourselves so that in time of need we shall be prepared to emulate their deeds.

"Let every midshipman who passes through this institution remember as he looks upon the tomb of John Paul Jones that while no courage can atone for the lack of that efficiency which comes only through careful preparation in advance, through careful training of the men and careful fitting out of the engines of war, yet that none of these things can avail unless in the moment of crisis the heart rises level with the crisis.

"The navy whose captains will not surrender is sure in the long run to whip the navy whose captains will surrender unless the inequality of skill or force is prodigious. The courage which never yields cannot take the place of the possession of good ships and good weapons and the ability skillfully to use these ships and these weapons, but its presence will often atone for many other shortcomings."
