TROOPS OVERTAXED

General Greely to Be Re-enforced by 2,500 Men.

MILITIAMEN TO BE SUPERSEDED.

Governor Purdee, Visiting San Francisco, Defends National Guard, City Hall and Other Buildings to Be at Once Re-erected.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The war department decided to send General Greely, at San Francisco, 2,500 more troops after receiving from him the following telegram:

"Desire especially to call attention of secretary of war and chief of staff to necessity for additional troops. Not only is the present force inadequate to fully guard the interests of the city, but they have been necessarily overworked in the past and are overtaxed. Distances are simply enormous and conditions demanding military action can best be observed by sending as large a force of mounted men as is practicable.

"The spirit and conduct of the troops, officers and men, have maintained the high standing of American army, and a continuance of physical stress and mental responsibility is not advisable in the present high tension of affairs."

In another telegram to the war department, urging the sending of additional troops, General Greely said:

"Estimates from various sources place the destitute between 200,000 and 250,000, which leaves me but one soldier to every hundred destitute people, and the additional force would give only two to the hundred. While inclined myself to place the number somewhat below 200,000, yet the judgment of others can be as well ignored."

General Greely immediately upon his arrival in San Francisco, when he superintended General Funston, wired for 2,500 more men. The department requested him to reconsider the situation and see if he could not get along without them.

Friends of General Greely here interpreted this action as a snub. A prominent newspaper man, also a telegraph operator who was being depended upon to send news through the country, was asked to go to work as a laborer. He was missed by his associates, and a search was made for him in the city of ruins, but not until two days later was he found.

He was in a state of utter collapse from loss of sleep, lack of food and exertion which few men could have stood.

This is one of the reasons why Major General Greely decided that militiamen and the citizens' patrol are not capable of doing even ordinary patrol duty and must be superseded by regular troops.

Three of the handsomest buildings in San Francisco are to be restored as soon as men and material can be secured. The first of these buildings is the city hall, which will be immediately rebuilt.

President E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fe railroad has given instructions to immediately spend the $300,000 recently set aside for the completion of the company's China basin terminal. This will give hundreds of men work for many months.

Coroner Walsh had a gang of men at work removing the debris from in front of the Valencia hotel and searching the ruins for bodies that might still remain in that building.

Governor Purdee, visiting San Francisco, brought up the request of Mayor Schmitt and his committee for the withdrawal of the national guard from San Francisco.

Governor Purdee spoke highly in favor of the national guard and referred to the splendid services performed in the way with Manila. He said he regarded the request for its withdrawal as a reflection on a well organized and highly efficient body of men. The governor said that he was indignant over the attitude taken against the guard and the charges preferred against them. In fact, he was so indignant that he thought it best not to make any further remarks.

Mayor Schmitt immediately replied that he and his committee had not made any charges against the guard. On the contrary, they had thanked the governor for the militia's services.

OTHER TOWNS DAMAGED.

Oakland, Cal., April 27.—In Lakeport, Lake county, a large portion of the fire wall of the Lakeview hotel crashed through the porch and brick annex. The two-story brick walls of Masonic hall, in course of construction, were reduced to ruins.

At Alhambra, Mendocino county, the Occidental hotel is a wreck. All the big sawmills in this region are badly damaged. They will have to shut down for some time. So far as can be learned there were no lives lost.

At Anderson, in Shasta county, chimneys tumbled down and windows, dishes and furniture of houses were demolished. There were many wide fissures in the earth. Slides along the southern Humboldt Lumber company's railroad line took place.

"We Have a Right to Assist." BERLIN, April 27.—At a meeting of the Berlin city council last night President Langerhans referred feelingly to the disaster at San Francisco and in the vicinity of Mount Vesuvius. He said that, although President Roosevelt had proudly declared that the United States was not in need of foreign assistance and notwithstanding the munificent amount that has already been collected, it was Berlin's duty to contribute. He moved that the mayor express to Ambassador Tower Berlin's deepest sympathy and inform him that "we have a right and duty to assist."

Burnham to Create a City Beautiful. NEW YORK, April 27.—Daniel H. Burnham, an architect appointed two years ago by the Association for the Improvement and Adornment of San Francisco to prepare plans for a new city beautiful, is here from Europe. "If the people of San Francisco can only pull themselves together," he said, "I am confident that they will have in a very short time the finest city in the world. Courage and work is all that is required, and I believe both will be forthcoming."

CRAPSEY'S DEFENSE

Judge Stiness of Church Court Defines Case.

TESTIMONY OF PASTORS RULED OUT

Rectors Have to Determine Whether the Statements of Accused Amount to a Violation of Doctrines of Christ or Not.

BATAVIA, N. Y., April 27.—The trial of Rev. Alexander S. Crapsey of Rochester before an ecclesiastical court of five rectors of Protestant Episcopal churches is nearing its close.

Dr. Crapsey stands charged with heresy and a violation of his ordination vows, the evidence against him being a book of sermons printed over his name and the Book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal church.

The prosecution abruptly ended its case, and the defense endeavored to present the testimony of a number of prominent clergymen as to whether or not Dr. Crapsey's sayings constituted heresy, but the court ruled that no man could qualify as an expert in doctrine and on the further ground that the witnesses were called to express opinions on subjects which were before the court for decision. The lawyers for the prosecution and defense will sum up today.

The most interesting incident was an exchange between Judge Stiness, for the prosecution, and Edward M. Shepard, for the defense. This followed the placing on the stand of the Rev. Joseph Alexander Leighton, chaplain and professor of philosophy in Hobart college, the first witness called by the defense. After Dr. Leighton had read the full text of the presentment against Dr. Crapsey, Mr. Perkins said to him:

"In your opinion, is there anything contained in the specifications which is contrary to the doctrines of Christ as the Lord had commanded and as this church had received the same?"

"I object," emphatically announced Mr. O'Brien of the prosecution. "I do not understand that the witness is impeaching the doctrine of the Protestant Episcopal church. He has no more right to characterize and interpret the doctrine of this church than a man never heard of, because the church is an organization, with its constitution and bylaws. The church speaks as a church. This is a question of law and not of fact. Such testimony as this is manifest absurdity."

"It is charged," replied Mr. Perkins, "that Dr. Crapsey has violated his vows as a clergyman in that he has advanced statements contrary to the doctrines of Christ. What is this church if the argument of the prosecution is correct? Who is the church but the laity and the clergy? We are the church! Suppose somebody, as my friend says, held to some doctrine contrary to his interpretation and the whole church was this man. He would have the whole church heretic except the standing committee."

"This is an important question," Mr. Perkins continued. "It goes to the essence of the whole matter. We want to show what people think, not necessarily what is right and wrong."

At this point Judge Stiness, former chief justice of the supreme court of Rhode Island, spoke for the first time. "My associate," he said, "has requested me to define this case to the court. I do. This court has to determine two things—first, whether Dr. Crapsey made the statements cited in the presentment. There is no proof necessary, because this is admitted by the defense. Second, whether these statements amount to a violation of the doctrines of Christ. It is not a question whether that doctrine is true. The great question is, Are these things said by Dr. Crapsey in accordance with the doctrines of the church?"

"I assure my friend," said Mr. Perkins in reply, "that he has not lost the art of the advocate."

Rev. Mr. Alexander testified that he sat in his place at the chance and took notes of what Dr. Crapsey said. This is what he heard:

"Jesus was born of parents belonging to the middle class. He was born of a simple father and mother. He was the son of a carpenter. The fact that the early Christians predicted a miraculous birth of Christ is to be regarded as one of the greatest misfortunes that has ever befallen mankind."

"Had you heard him preach on similar questions before?" asked Mr. Perkins.

"Yes, I heard him lecture for twelve consecutive Sundays, and it was most painful to hear."

Lawyer Perkins tried to draw an admission from the witness that he got evidence against Dr. Crapsey so he could get the rector dismissed and secure his place. Mr. Alexander dodged the point.

Governor Higgins Declined to Receive Hearst Deputation.

HISSES RESOUND AT ALBANY CAPITOL

Angered at Robust, Many Joined in a Demonstration That Almost Approached a Riot—Brackett Reads Them a Lecture.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 27.—Governor Higgins declined to receive a delegation of nearly 500 men appointed at a meeting held in New York city to protest to him against the killing of the Murphy recruit bill. The delegation was headed by Clarence J. Shearn.

The delegation then marched upstairs and demanded admission to the senate lobby. They were refused, but Senator Brackett, as chairman of the senate judicial committee, came out into the hall and, surrounded by the crowd, heard several speeches appealing for the passage of the recruit bill. In reply he said his committee had reported the bill and if it came up for a vote he would vote for it. Many senators, he said, undoubtedly believed that the existing law gave Mr. Hearst all the opportunity needed for investigation of the election.

At the meeting in Carnegie hall, New York city, where the delegation was appointed, several thousand men, women and children cheered the name of William R. Hearst and booed that of Mayor McClellan.

More than 4,000 persons were at the meeting and after listening to a score of speakers, who denounced the mayor and his followers, they resolved to send a delegation to Albany on a special train to register a protest with the members of the legislature.

Henry Powell, who presided, said that unless the legislature did something to aid in giving the people of New York a recount the people would do something next fall that would surprise the politicians.

Angered by the refusal of Governor Higgins to receive them and hear their protest, the deputation joined in a demonstration somewhat approaching a riot in the capitol building. One of their acts was in giving three cheers for "next Governor Hearst!" "Hurrah for W. R. Hearst!" in the executive chamber and within twenty feet of the private office where Governor Higgins was at work.

There were hisses for Higgins and shouts of derision and angry talk.

Another feature of the affair was the making of speeches denunciatory of the Republican organization in general and the legislature and of its particular on the steps of the capitol. The Hearst folks also protested against their exclusion from the senate chamber, which followed the refusal of Higgins to see them, and demanded of the doorkeepers what right Lou Payne had to enter the sacred precinct while they were shut out.

Senator Edward Truman Brackett of Saratoga, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, gave the Hearst folks a piece of his mind for their disorderly actions, but finally wound up and assured them in an impromptu speech that he would not oppose a bill providing for a recount of the New York election if a measure properly drawn were introduced.

"But how about the last bill?" "Why did the legislature refuse us justice?" and other interruptions of this sort finally got a rise out of the Saratoga senator, and he replied, "You had better go and ask the men who think they are running the Republican organization now."

They were packed solidly in the big chamber and stretched far out into the corridors.

The governor was in his private office and in response to a request for an audience sent word that he was "too busy." The crowd of Hearstites began to grumble their dissatisfaction, and finally one of them began to hiss.

Others joined in, and soon the executive mansion was filled with expressions of dissatisfaction and derision.

The governor declined to make any comment upon the incident.
