GREAT OLYMPIC RACE

Lightbody of Chicago Wins at Athens Stadium.

AMERICA NOW SURE OF TROPHY.

Terrific Struggle For First Place in Long Distance Event—McGough, English Athlete, Second, and Barker Third.

ATHENS, May 1.—By their splendid victory in the two great runs, the 400 meter, which went to Lightbody, the 1,500 meter, won by Lightbody, the American team is now a certain winner of the classic Olympic trophy in the fourth revival of the Olympic games.

The triumph of the Americans at Athens makes the glorious record of four Olympic triumphs to the men of the United States, for they have now won every Olympiad since the revival in 1896.

The conquering run of James D. Lightbody of Chicago in the longer race added the needed points to America's score. The race was watched with intense interest, and the great concourse cheered lustily for these strange, lithe men from over the sea, whose neither storm, illness nor injuries could daunt.

The great crowd understood that a victory for an American in this race would mean that the fourth Olympic trophy would follow its predecessors across the ocean to the home of the starry flag that was waved so often by the soldier at the head of the Stadium.

As the bugle called the men to the starting point in the long race a silence fell on the benches and the feet Lightbody, the hope of the Yankees, was eagerly pointed to as he walked to the mark. Near him was the dreaded McGough of England, Nigel Barker of Australia and many another athlete whose name in his native land is a synonym for speed and endurance.

The men crouched to their marks, then—bang! The line leaved forward, and, sprinting like a frightened deer, an athlete with a red, white and blue sash leaped out in front.

"Lightbody, Lightbody!" yelled the Americans.

"An American, an American!" was the answering roar in a dozen different tongues.

But the wing footed Englishman and his Australian cousin shot out after him, and the others followed hard. For 200 yards the terrific sprinting lasted, and then McGough and the other quietly dropped back to await the weakening that must overtake the flying Yankee. It was not in bones and muscle to keep up that pace very long.

Into the second quarter, and Lightbody slowly slackened his speed. Then the long gap narrowed and the bulging Englishman began moving yard by yard, stride by stride. Barker was close behind, but by this time the others were hopelessly beaten, and a tense, drumming roar of encouragement from thousands of throats cheered the bounding figure that carried the stars and stripes across his chest.

They turned the last turn and away down the smooth straightaway for home. Now the early sprinting would tell on the Yankee. Now was the time for McGough to make his move. The English colors flashed out and the runner set sail for the flying figure ahead. Slowly he gained. The semidivine crowd leaped over the benches and urged the tiring man to one more effort. With victory less than thirty yards away down the black path Lightbody put his remaining strength into one final mighty sprint and staggered across the line a good wide two yards in front. Then—pandemonium!

His brother athletes seized the Chicago runner and carried him around the track with yells of joy, while the dense mass of cheering men and women fairly shook the Acropolis.

It was a magnificent race and an even more magnificent victory.

England won the triple jump. Thomas E. Croan of the American team took third place.

In the 100 meters hurdle race the three preliminary heats were all won by American contestants.

The 1,500 meters walking match was won by George N. Bonhag, Irish-American Athletic club. Time, 7 minutes 12-5 seconds. Louden, Canadian, and Spetziois, Greek, were second and third respectively.

The events won by Americans so far are:

One thousand five hundred meters run, first; 400 meters run, first; discus throw, first; standing broad jump, first, second and third; putting the shot, first; 100 yard dash, first and second; pole vault, first; putting the stone, second; 100 meters sprint, first; running broad jump, first and third; triple jump, first; walking match, first.

ARREST LEADERS.

Paris Authorities Meet Miners Today With Stern Repression.

PARIS, May 1.—The Paris police arrested M. Griffuelhes, secretary of the General Confederation of Labor; M. Biber, a newspaper man, and Major Feuillat, a Bonapartist, formerly of the imperial guards. In addition Count Durand de Beuregard was taken into custody at Nice. Arrests were also made at other places, and warrants were issued for the arrest of M. Levy, secretary of the Confederation of Labor, and M. Promentiu, a wealthy anarchist, both of whom were found to have fled from this city. All the prisoners are charged with complicity in organizing a rebellion and with intriguing with anarchists. The charges were based on papers seized during the recent police searches.

Judge Audre summoned the police commissaries of the central districts of Paris and directed each of them to proceed with a squad of police and make the arrests in various sections of the city. At the same time telegraphic orders were sent to proceed with arrests at Nice, Brest and other points.

M. Griffuelhes, who is the principal labor leader, was found at his house and was taken into custody, but his associate, Levy, was not located.

Count de Beuregard is the head of the supposed plot recently unearthed. Henri Biber is editor of L'Autorite, a Bonapartist organ.

Two additional warrants have been issued, but the names of the persons to be arrested will be withheld until they are in the hands of the police.

The men at the labor headquarters here were stunned by the arrests.

The government officials declare that the arrests will break the backbone of the violent element.

The strike centers outside of Paris are calm.

M. Lepine, the prefect of police, conferred during the day with the commanders of the troops and gave final instructions for the military occupation of the main points in Paris. The troops received two packages of cartridges and two days' rations.

The official announcement of Mr. Sarrien, the premier, that the government would meet all revolutionary disorders with stern repression, has had a good moral effect.

The many arrests have served their main purpose in disorganizing and discouraging the violent element, which finds itself practically without leaders for the monster demonstration planned for today. Nevertheless the Confederation of Labor headquarters gave out a declaration that the demonstration will proceed, each trade pursuing its own course.

The police, supported by the troops, occupied all the principal strategic points of the city at daylight today.

STONE STATE POLICE

Striking Miners in Fight With Constabulary.

TWENTY HURT; THREE MAY DIE.

Mount Carmel Mob Started Battle With Volleys of Stones, to Which Officers Repplied With Bullets Aimed With Violence.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., May 1.—The first serious collision in the anthracite coal region since mining was suspended on April 1 has occurred here between a mob of idle workers and a platoon of the new state constabulary force and resulted in the injuring of probably twenty men, and three of them will likely die.

The disturbance was caused by an attack on a detail of the state police by several hundred foreigners, who became incensed at the presence of the policemen and otherwise endangered their lives to such an extent that they were forced to fire on the crowd, which had swelled into thousands. The riot caused the greatest excitement in the many mining villages of the southern coal fields when it became known that mine workers had been shot down, but the affected territory is now comparatively quiet.

While it is believed that a score of persons were injured during the day, only ten are accounted for. The three who it is thought will die are:

Louis Wilson, shot through the body; R. Miserevich, shot in the stomach, and Stanislaus Watakoski, shot in the groin.

Wilson was shot while standing in front of his home, a block from the scene of the conflict. R. H. Gibson, trooper, was struck on the head with a rock and seriously hurt.

The affray was the result of an attack upon nonunion men made at various times last week. The attacks became so numerous that Sheriff Sharples of Northumberland county appealed to the state constabulary for help in accordance with orders from Captain John C. Grooms, the superintendent of the state police, Troop C, which was marching from Reading to Hazleton, was divided, and half of the men under Lieutenant Smith was sent to Mount Carmel.

After looking to their mounts the troopers started out to get breakfast and immediately ran into trouble from an unexpected source. At the first hotel they went to the dining room girls refused to serve them, and they received the same treatment at two other places. In most of the small mining towns the help about hotels and other places are related to mine workers or in sympathy with them and during strike times they do all they can to help the workers.

The presence of the troopers on the main street of the town caused a crowd of mine workers to gather about them, and the bolder ones in the crowd began to stir up trouble. The crowd closed in upon the state police and began throwing stones. The troopers charged the mob and scattered it, but not before several men were hurt, including a trooper. Lieutenant Smith drew his men into line and threatened to shoot if the mob renewed the attack. In the meantime local leaders of the mine workers circulated through the crowd and ordered the infuriated foreigners to disperse and keep the peace.

The chief Burgess, who is a member of the miners' union, addressed the crowd from a window and advised them to go home. This action had considerable effect, and the detail of troopers started for the Sayre colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company on the outskirts of Mount Carmel, where nonunion men had been attacked by foreigners Saturday night.

Some of the mob persisted in following the troopers, and some one threw a stone at them, which was followed by a shower of others. Lieutenant Smith wheeled his men about, gave the order to fire and, it is said, sent three volleys into the mob before it broke and ran. Half a dozen men were left lying on the ground, and they were later picked up and cared for. The troopers did not pursue the crowd, but continued on their way to the Sayre colliery. From that place Lieutenant Smith communicated with state police headquarters at Pottsville, and word immediately came back to hold his ground until reinforcements arrived.

In the meantime local constables on behalf of the mine workers arrested Lieutenant Smith on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. He was held in $500 bail, which was furnished. Three foreigners were also held in the same charge.

The troopers are now encamped at Stuartsville, near the Sayre colliery.

HONORS FOR PORTER

Congress Thanks Ex-Ambassador For Paul Jones' Body.

DEWEY, VANDERBILT AND STANLEY

Recovery of Remains of Naval Hero at Paris Involved a Personal Expense of $38,000—A Monument For Captain.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—General Horace Porter, late ambassador to France and who directed the movement for the recovery of the body of John Paul Jones, has received a tribute in the house of representatives, both in words and in the unanimous adoption of a resolution, extending him the thanks of congress and of the people of the country for the recovery of the body of the century dead admiral.

The thanks of congress are reserved to be extended only on very rare occasions and consequently at long intervals. The last time such action was taken Admiral Dewey was honored. The battle of Manila bay had just been fought, and the country warmly applauded the resolutions then passed. Aside from thanks to army and navy heroes, the last resolution of this character was passed during the civil war, when Commodore Vanderbilt was thanked for presenting a ship to the nation. Henry M. Stanley also received the honor as a reward for his scientific explorations in Africa.

The thanks of congress carry the privilege of the floor of both senate and house for all time to the recipient.

Representative Olmsted (Pa.), in whose district General Porter makes his home, initiated the resolution and obtained unanimous consent for its consideration. Representative William Alden Smith (Mich.) had introduced a similar resolution, and Representative Rainey, the only Democratic member in the house from Illinois, stated that he also had prepared a resolution honoring General Porter.

As an added compliment, General Porter was asked in an amendment to the resolution to furnish for publication in the Congressional Record a copy of his speech at the recent exercises at Annapolis.

The resolution of thanks reads as follows:

"Be it resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled that the thanks of the people of the United States are justly due and are hereby tendered to General Horace Porter, late ambassador to France, for the disinterested and patriotic service in conducting upon his own initiative and at his own expense a series of researches and excavations extending over a period of six years and resulting in the recovery of the body of John Paul Jones from a forgotten grave in a foreign land and in its return to the country which he had loved so well and so heroically."

General Porter's services involved a personal outlay of not less than $35,000, for which he has declined to be reimbursed.

This resolution involves no expenditure of money. It confers neither rank nor title. It is the simplest possible method of saying to General Porter on behalf of the American people: "For enabling us to reclaim and do honor to the remains of one whose name and fame are so gratefully and enduringly wreathed in the folds of our flag, we thank you."

The house committee has made a favorable report on a senate bill appropriating $60,000 for a pedestal to a monument to John Paul Jones, to be erected in the grounds of the Congressional library, adjacent to the capitol.
