The imperial party came by train from Tsarskoe-Selo to the palace at Peterhof, where they boarded the yachts and came up the river, landing at the imperial dock in front of the Winter palace, thus avoiding the necessity of passing through the streets of the capital.

The emperor was escorted by his personal escort of picked Cossacks and

The first session of the parliament accomplished nothing beyond the election of officers, which under Russian procedure was a long drawn out affair.

Charles L. Spier Shot With Bullet From Own Pistol.

MURDER, SUICIDE OR ACCIDENT?

Coroner Cahill Mailed Funeral For Second Postmortem When Mistle That Killed Young States Islander Was Extracted.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Following the funeral of Charles L. Spier, the traction manager, who was found dead in his home on Staten Island following an alarm of burglars, a second autopsy was performed on the body and the bullet extracted. It was found to be of .32 caliber and fitted Spier's own pistol. The bullet was located in the back under the left shoulder blade. In its course through the body it had penetrated the heart.

The physicians and officials at the autopsy declared themselves puzzled as to how Spier could have staggered or walked the distance he did after the bullet had pierced his heart. His body was found fully eighteen feet from where the first blood spots in the hallway of his home were noted.

Having been shot with his own revolver, it is the theory of the family that Spier grappled with the burglar he is said to have detected at work and that the intruder turned the weapon upon his owner.

DEFIES A SENATOR

Counsel For Panama Railway Refused to Answer Morgan.

CROMWELL ANGRY AT "FRIVOLITY"

Senate Committee Inquiry on Canal Affairs Brought Out Valley of Questions and Hot, Not to Say Personal, Replies.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—"I will not reply to hypothetical questions. If you will be good enough to ask a question that is pertinent I will answer it." Thus William Nelson Cromwell, counsel for the Panama railway and in that capacity an official of the United States, defied Senator Morgan in his quest for information as to the meaning of a letter written by Cromwell to Secretary Hay concerning the original concession to the Panama Canal company. After replying to the letter spoke for itself and that questions relating to that transaction were not germane to the present inquiry of the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals, Mr. Cromwell met a rapid fire of questions with prompt refusals to answer. Mr. Cromwell testified that there were no laws by which the board of directors of the railroad could be removed by the president, Secretary Taft, the canal commission or congress, but that if his services were not desired he would be glad to resign. The executive committee of the board is elected by the board and cannot be terminated by any other body, said Mr. Cromwell. He had before testified that Mr. Farham, a clerk in his office, was also a director of the railroad.

"Then," said Mr. Morgan, "if the board of directors was evenly divided on the subject a clerk in your office could maintain your position on the executive committee?" "Let us not mix business with frivolities," objected Mr. Cromwell. Senator Morgan, angered by this remark, retorted sharply that he would show the witness that he meant business. The question was repeated. "Such a contingency is impossible among gentlemen," replied Mr. Cromwell.

"Maybe we are not all of that cloth," said Senator Morgan. "I am sure some of the people connected with the affairs of the canal or railroad are not." "I think you can enlarge that description a little," responded Mr. Cromwell. Mr. Cromwell made explanations at length that the government in the case of the railroad could disqualify the directors by withdrawing the one share of stock held by each of them, valued at $90.

"Then," said Mr. Morgan, "to remove you the government would have to pay you $90?" "Yes sir, and I hope the government is able to pay it," replied the witness tartly. At this point the committee took an adjournment.
