THREATEN THE CZAR

Defiance of Douma Foreshadows a Reign of Terror.

"NOT ONLY CROWN, BUT HIS HEAD"

Spirit of Absolute Revolution at St. Petersburg, and Conflict Between People and Bureau-cracy Has Begun.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 28.—The Russian douma has indignantly rejected the government's policy as presented by Premier Goremykin and with only seven dissentient voices voted a lack of confidence in the ministry, practically throwing down the gauntlet to the bureaucracy with a demand for the retirement of the present cabinet and its supersession by a ministry approved by the majority in the house.

The spirit of absolute revolution is in the air, and a conflict between the crown and the nation now appears to be inevitable. While the house avoided the appearance of delivering an ultimatum, the government seems to have no alternative except surrender or war. The gloomy forebodings are everywhere expressed, and the general impression is that the country is on the verge of a Titanic struggle, which may be delayed, but not averted. Dispatches received from the interior indicate that the struggle possibly may be inaugurated in a few days with a general strike when the people learn that all amnesty has been refused them.

With breathless anxiety society awaits the government's response to the bold action of the douma, which in censuring the ministry and demanding its retirement was like a deliberate slap in the face and a direct challenge, which the government can hardly avoid meeting. Parliament has burned the bridge and virtually has taken the step which the French states general did when it transferred itself into a national convention.

By flouting the fundamental laws and practically declaring that it proposes to exercise full parliamentary rights, with a responsible ministry, it has become in the eyes of the law a revolutionary body, and from that position there seems no retreat.

"The government, if it dares to fight," said M. Kokoshkine, one of the Constitutional Democratic members of the house, "can disperse the parliament, but the victory of the bureaucracy would only be temporary. It would inevitably be followed shortly by a bloody revolution, which would not leave a stick of the present government standing. The emperor must choose between a real constitutional government and the loss not only of his crown, but probably of his head."

Professor Karlovich said that a parallel of the early stage of the French revolution is now complete.

While the premier's statement promised co-operation with the lower house "in so far as the latter does not transgress the limits of the fundamental laws," it recognized the agrarian question as paramount, proposing to remedy the deficiency in land through the operation of an agrarian bank and migration to Siberia. It proposed the introduction of universal and compulsory education, the reform of the administration and the realization of the four liberties. Premier Goremykin's statement, however, returned a nonpossumus on the burning question raised by the house in its reply to the speech from the throne. It declared that the government's flat and exceptional laws cannot be withdrawn until murder and terrorism cease. The right of investigation of administrative acts, the statement declared, belonged to the crown, the house having only the power of interpolation. Amnesty, Premier Goremykin said, was solely the prerogative of the emperor.

Such briefly was the government's reply to the address of the house, and the premier's words seemed to arouse all the latent resentment in the hearts of the members of the house. The Constitutional Democratic leaders for the first time gave free range to their passions, and with flaming words orator after orator declared the government's programme inadmissible and said that the ministry must give way to a cabinet in which the people had confidence.

At Sevastopol yesterday several bombs were thrown while a review of troops was being held after the "Te Deum" in celebration of the anniversary of the emperor's coronation. Three persons were killed and several wounded. Among the wounded was the commander of the fortress, General Nephew.

At Tiflis while Governor General Timoseff and Chief of Police Martoff were driving yesterday bombs were thrown at them. Neither was injured, but a Cossack belonging to their escort was killed. The crime was attempted in the center of the town, a few rods from the scene of the assassination of General Griaznov, who was killed by a bomb explosion Jan. 29 last.

IN JUST ONE YEAR.

San Francisco to Appear From Its Ashes a City Beautiful.

CHICAGO, May 28.—"Within six months the new San Francisco, with its wide driveways and handsome buildings, will be well advanced," said Architect Daniel H. Burnham. "In a year's time it will not be easy to find a trace of the devastation left by the earthquake."

Mr. Burnham has just returned from San Francisco. He was called there by the committee of citizens that two years before to prepare plans for a model system of driveways, parks and public places. Former Mayor Phelan was chairman of the committee.

"The new city," said Mr. Burnham, "will radiate from the city hall and that locality. One of the beneficial effects of the earthquake was the destruction of the old city hall, an incongruous structure that could not be made to conform to any possible system of plans for the beautification of the city."

"San Francisco of the future will be the most beautiful city on the continent, with the possible exception of Washington."

BOLT CARRIES DISASTER.

Five Killed and a Score Hurt When Lightning Hit Ball Game Crowd.

MOBILE, Ala., May 28.—During a ball game in an open field three miles from this city yesterday afternoon a thunderstorm came up, accompanied by vivid lightning, which struck in the midst of a crowd of spectators, instantly killing five and injuring some twenty-five more or less seriously.

The seriously injured were John York and Fred Johnson. Among the painfully injured were Fred Burck, Joe Dolbear and George Cleveland.

At least fifteen or twenty others were shocked and knocked down by the stroke, who quickly recovered and were able to leave the scene. The field was strewn with bits of shoes and clothing from those who were killed or seriously injured, and the bodies of the dead presented a terrible spectacle, being burned in numerous places. A silver dollar taken from the pocket of one of the victims was melted on both sides.

CAPE HAITIEN, Haiti, May 28.—News reached here by messenger to the effect that the Santo Dominican revolutionists, commanded by Maurice Jimenez, have attacked Gueyabito, in Santo Domingo, and killed General Monage, the commander of the town, and then retired immediately into the interior.

They have been joined by the partisans of General Morales, the predecessor of General Caceres as president of Santo Domingo.

ENA ASKS A PARDON

Future Queen of Spain's First Request of Alfonso.

SAVES LIFE OF FERNANDA LEVERA

Princess Visits Her New Home in Royal Palace—Wedding Dress Made in Spain, One of the Special Gifts of King.

MARID, May 28.—The first notable act of Princess Ena of Battenberg since her arrival in Spain to become the bride of King Alfonso XIII has been to induce the king to pardon Fernando Levera, who was condemned to death after an exciting trial.

The dramatic circumstances under which pardon was given, as the condemned man was going to the gallows attracts widespread attention and further augments the popularity of Princess Ena.

Levera was to have been executed in the neighboring town of Badajoz, but the population solicited Princess Ena's intercession, and she spoke to the king who consulted with his ministers, and after a cabinet council the government resolved to grant the request, as it was the first petition the princess had made in Spain. Thereupon the king issued a pardon, and a telegram announcing this fact reached the prison at Badajoz half an hour before the time set for the execution. The march to the scaffold was about to begin when a messenger brought word of the pardon.

There were remarkable scenes of rejoicing. The townspeople formed a procession and sang the praises of their queen. The people of Madrid also highly approve the princess' humane intervention, and the newspapers comment upon the coming queen's first act as being one of mercy.

The Prado palace was again the scene of royal ceremonies, the ideal weather permitting of open air religious services on the lawns of the palace, where the military bishop celebrated a campaign mass. It was a pretty sight with the brilliant uniforms of the soldiers forming a background for the royal personages. Princess Ena's interest in the Spanish six sol diers representing the various arms of the service for his bride elect's in spection of their arms and accoutrements. This was a source of special satisfaction to the influential army element.

Later in the day King Alfonso and Princess Ena went in an automobile to the picturesque forests of Prado.

On one of Princess Ena's visits to Madrid she was permitted to visit the gorgeous nuptial apartments that have been prepared in the royal palace and to try on the wedding dress made here.

The wedding dress has attracted great interest in Spain, as it is truly a Spanish product in fabric and finish except for the wonderful Brussels lace which has been brought to adorn it. It was a fancy of the king and the queen mother that the wedding dress should be made in Spain, and the Princess Ena graciously fell in with this patriotic sentiment.

The dress is therefore one of the special presents from the king and is a marvel of elegance. The silk was manufactured from a special pattern in one of the large Spanish silk establishments. It was made up with all the artistic skill of the court dress makers. The silk is heavily overlaid with wonderful silver embroidery with soft frills of the finest Brussels lace sold to have cost $50 a yard.

The laces were publicly exhibited before being put on the dress and excited the admiration and astonishment of the aristocratic ladies of Madrid. Orange blossoms are profusely used with the silver embroideries and laces for the corsage and even in dainty clusters along the train, which is four yards long.

According to Spanish traditions, the bride must afterward present this wedding dress to the Virgin de la Paloma the popular protectress of maternity. Frederick Wallingford Whitridge, American envoy to the wedding of King Alfonso and Princess Ena of Battenberg, and party has arrived from Paris.

The cabinet ministers have had to share in the prevailing enthusiasm over Alfonso's fiancée. Premier Morel expressed his official view while drinking a toast to the princess. Addressing King Alfonso, the premier said: "She will please God to make us worthy to serve it."

CASTRO ABDICATES.

Venezuela's Old Time Ruler Retires to Private Life.

"AN OFFERING TO MY FATHERLAND"

On Anniversary of Restoration When He Entered Country at Head of Conquering Army, He Resigned Presidency.

CARACAS, Venezuela, May 28.—On the anniversary of the restoration, when as a victorious general he entered Venezuela at the head of his army, former President Castro has published here a proclamation entitled "An offering to my Fatherland," announcing that he has decided permanently to retire to private life and sacrifice his personality to save his party and the nation from fatal consequences arising through the jealousies and passions fomented by the prohibition of the spontaneous proposition of the press and public to demand his return to the presidency.

He expresses gratitude to his friends, who have been frustrated in their loyal efforts, and announces that he will fulfill his constitutional duty of perseverance in his abdication of power sent to congress.

He adds that he will always be at the service of his country in case of unexpected international complications. Public sentiment is astounded, and already there are rumors of a popular manifestation to demand his return to power.

Cipriano Castro has been for twenty years a prominent figure in the political life of Venezuela. Rumors of his retirement from the scene of his activities have been in circulation for months, and when last April he relinquished the reins of government to the vice president, General J. B. Gomez, doubt was expressed in some quarters as to whether he had really given up the presidency for good and all. The news that he has announced his determination to retire permanently from the political arena has caused a sensation here.

Castro was born in the province of Capacho about fifty-one years ago. His first and greatest military achievement was the overthrow of Morales in the battle of Capacho, which was fought in 1880.

Shepard of Buffalo was murdered Friday night and his body placed on the Erie railroad tracks, where it was found Saturday morning. One of these conditions is an injury to the head, which might have been produced by a semisharp instrument, such as a hatchet.
