ALL IN MARCHING ORDER.

Manhattan People with Rugs on Their Floors Are Ever Ready to Move.

"Carpets are going out very rapidly," said a large dealer, according to the Sun. "In fact, they have been going out of use in New York for several years and may be said to be almost a thing of the past."

"We used to see ten times as many yards of carpets as rugs. The figures are now reversed. Of course, we still sell carpets, but they are not made up to fit rooms. The carpets of today are made up in squares or rectangles to cover parts of rooms. Around these big patches of floor covering rugs are arranged so as to cover the remainder of the floor.

"For the most part, buyers confine themselves to rugs. There is great artistic convenience in this method, but it isn't the artistic possibilities presented by rugs that have caused them to crowd out carpets. Comparatively few people in Manhattan live in their own houses, and few expect to occupy the same quarters for any considerable time. The moving germ is abroad, and though a family may stay for years in one flat they want to be ready always to move out when the lease expires, the janitor becomes offensive or the landlord raises the rent. To have carpets cut to fit the rooms and nailed down would be inconvenient if one was to fit on short notice.

"Landlords have taken the rug habit into account, too, and nearly everywhere you find floors prepared for rugs in the cheaper flats they are stained and varnished, and in the better ones they are hard-wood or art polished and oiled.

"We sell ten old-time carpets in Brooklyn to one in Manhattan because over there people are more stable, besides, there are many small houses in Brooklyn that belong to their occupants."

RIOT AT BIER OF BEAU.

Girls Fight Over Privilege of Depositing Floral Tributes at Head of Man's Casket.

Meriden, Conn.—At the funeral of Matthew Hare, a beau of Danbury, several young women fought savagely in the room where the body lay ready for the funeral. Each of the girls claimed the right to have her floral offering placed at the head of the casket, and as a result the flowers were destroyed, hair was pulled and faces scratched until neighbors interfered and stopped the contestants.

Annie Arthur started the trouble when she reached the Hare home to pay her last respects she found another girl there, who had placed a bouquet at the head of the bier. Miss Arthur threw the offending flowers on the floor and stamped on them. This aroused the other girl, who retaliated in a similar fashion, and then they resorted to calling names and pulling hair.

While they were fighting, three more girls, each of whom thought she was the particular one to be awarded the post of honor, entered the room, and the fighting became general. It has developed that Hare paid attention to them all, and that none of the girls knew that there was anyone else being considered.

MAN ATTACKED BY ENRAGED BULL

Athens—James Birney, employed on the Coleman farm, went to turn the cattle in the field last evening and a vicious bull attacked him with great ferocity. He held a pitchfork in his hands and defended himself as well as he could, but the enraged animal finally thrust him against the fence, and then getting its horns under him threw him over into the next field. It was at first thought that his collar bone was broken and that his injuries would prove serious, but Dr. Badger was sent for and found no bones broken. He was pretty thoroughly crushed but will recover.
