PARIS, July 6.—Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who arrived here last night were met at the station by Ambassador McCormick and the entire staff of the American embassy, the Marquis de Chambrun and representatives of President Fallieres and the foreign office. The crowd at the station showed much curiosity to see President Roosevelt's daughter.

Because Dreyfus Was a Jew.

PARIS, July 6.—Dreyfus bearing his advocate gave a new phase to the proceedings by cutting loose from historical details and asserting that anti-Semitic hatred had been the primary cause of a miscarriage of justice. He argued that Dreyfus had been convicted not as an individual officer, but because he was a Jew. The ideal of the superior officers at that time was to exclude Israelites from the higher military grades, the same as had been done in Germany.

Forty-niner Dead at Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., July 6.—Joseph B. Sanford, one of the pioneer dock builders and railroad contractors of the country and head of the firm of Sanford & Brooks of Baltimore, is dead at his home here. He was seventy-five years of age. Mr. Sanford, who was a native of New Jersey, went to California during the early gold craze and was the first man to introduce Chinese labor in mining as well as a new system of hydraulic mining there.

Cyclone at Cannes, France.

CANNES, July 6.—A destructive cyclone has swept over this section, and railway traffic has been stopped. Many houses were unroofed, and many fishing smacks were dashed to pieces on the rocks. A brig was driven ashore, and the crew was saved. James Gordon Bennett's steam yacht Lysistrata dragged her anchors, but is safe.
