Communion service at the Lutheran church tomorrow morning. Regular services in the evening.

Say! Seen the Scottii, Barrowsii, Piersoni, Elegantisima? These are the new Ferns, 300 just in. Snow, the Florist.

On account of the surplus rain the growing crops, especially potatoes, have suffered greatly for the want of cultivation.

Rain deferred many from attending the Union Sunday school excursion to Renwick park this morning over the Lehigh Valley.

Bass are becoming more plentiful in the various streams in this region since the fight has been started on German carp, which is responsible for the fish being so scarce in many of the streams.

LARGE CROWD WENT ON EXCURSION

Members of the Union Sunday Schools of the Valley Are in Ithaca Today in Large Numbers

The population of the three valley towns is largely reduced today and that of Ithaca correspondingly increased. The union Sunday school excursion, with its low rate to Ithaca and return, called out an enormous crowd, all of whom were anxious to see the University city. The heavy clouds overhead, with the occasional light showers, did not seem to appreciably diminish the size of the crowd. Many of the female portion of the crowd were dressed in white, and nearly every one had a shoe box or basket filled with various articles of food intended to fortify the carrier against hunger.

The excursion train pulled out in two sections of ten cars each. The first was filled to its full capacity and the second was crowded by the time it left East Waverly.

This is the second event of the kind, the first being last year, when the Sunday schools went to Elmira and about half the people in the valley went to the Queen City. This year Ithaca was chosen, and many jumped at the opportunity to visit what is considered one of the most beautiful places in the country.

AT OAK GROVE

One of the plays to be presented next week by the Bennett-Moulton Company is entitled "The Jealous Wife," a four-act comedy drama.

The groundwork of the play deals with a portion of human nature that all wives experience at one time or another, namely, thinking that the husband in the case is attracted by a new and pretty face. To help things along, a murder is committed, and the wife, thinking herself thoroughly abused, with a peculiar brand of feminine reasoning concluded that a man who could neglect his wife would be capable of any crime, promptly suspects her husband, and later goaded on to desperation by the villain, openly accuses him, the innocent husband. Of course everything is smoothed out in the end and a good deal of enjoyment is derived from the comedy element, from a man masquerading in another's clothes and identity to trotting around without either identity or the clothes, forced to meet the cold world, without either clothes or necktie. The country sheriff is another living character that will be much enjoyed by the audience.

There are startling and thrilling situations and this play will be found very instructive, entertaining and a successful cure for the blues.

The street carnival company which closed here on Wednesday evening, will open a week's engagement in Tuakhannock on the week of July 23, playing for the benefit of the band in that place.

Chief Walsh says that the ordinance requiring dog owners to purchase tags for their animals is being generally obeyed. Only one dog has thus far been impounded and it was called for by its master after having been in custody but a short time.

The conductors of trolleys have a lot to put up with, especially from cranks and intoxicated men. Sometimes it is a wonder how they keep their temper. The invariable rule of the company to be polite to patrons is the cause of no end of worry.

At noon yesterday the thermometer registered 94 in the shade and in the afternoon it climbed up to 97 degrees, the warmest day of the season. People sweltered yesterday. There was no breeze stirring, and the humidity was in general command. Showers are promised for today with fair weather for tomorrow.

Services will be held at the Church of the Redeemer tomorrow as follows: Early communion 8 a. m.; morning prayer and sermon 10:30 a. m.; Sunday school 2:30 p. m.; evening 7:30 p. m.; At evening there will be a special musical service Mr. J. Jolls of Waverly, will sing the offertory solo. Mr. Horace H. Kinney will give an organ prelude for twenty minutes at the beginning of the service, and a postlude at the conclusion of the service. All seats free. All are cordially invited.

Engaged in the JUNK BUSINESS

Fred Moore, who has been in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Company since he was fifteen years old, has resigned his position on the freight platform and will engage in the junk business. He has rented the blacksmith shop at the corner of Thomas and Packer avenues east, and will pay cash for rags, rubber and old metals. He also has a storage room in the basement of his house, No. 155 Thomas avenue. Mr. Moore is well acquainted with the junk business and will no doubt succeed in his new undertaking.

DROWNED AT PITSTON

John West, Jr., son of John West, an employe of the Pittston Lehigh Valley, yard force, was drowned at that place yesterday afternoon. Young West was in swimming with several lads, when he was suddenly seen to sink beneath the water and rise no more. Some time later his body was discovered, but life was extinct.

DISTURBED GREEK CANDY STORE

Two young men went into the Greek candy store last night, and according to Mr. Procas, the proprietor, after ordering soda water, refused to pay for it. Mr. Procas also says that the young men created a disturbance by insisting upon playing a musical instrument when they were told not to. It appears that the music was not particularly charming and as they did not desert Officer Voegel was sent for. He took the lads before Justice Nelson. The latter fined one of them five dollars, and the other signed a paper not to disturb the Greek store for a period of two years. Both were then released.

Some newspaper writers, notably in the Binghamton Herald, are engaged in building or repairing an extension of the Lehigh Valley Railroad on paper, from Montrose to Binghamton. The Herald of Monday had a big article, telling of a corps of surveyors now working on the said line, went much into detail, including the statement that a party of surveyors had been making headquarters at the Tarbell house, Montrose. But there has been nary a surveyor there nor elsewhere in these parts, so far as can be learned.—Montrose Democrat.

TRAMPS ROUNDED UP

Chief Walsh and Special Officers Rouscher and Stevens rounded up a gang of tourists yesterday afternoon, but as there was no charge against the men they were given their liberty. The men were searched and all had money. There was nothing in their pockets, however, to indicate that they were prepared to do work of a criminal nature, and they were told to get out of town as fast as their legs could carry them.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

The funeral of Irvin Duebler, whose death occurred at the hospital yesterday morning after he had made a heroic struggle for life for nearly two weeks, will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The remains will be taken to Mehoopany for burial. Rogers & Miller have charge of the arrangements.

A NEW RULE

A new rule has gone into effect by which the shifters in the Packer-ton yard go on duty at twelve o'clock noon and work until twelve o'clock midnight, instead of beginning at six o'clock in the morning and working until six o'clock in evening.

EVEN SKEPTICS CEASE TO DOUBT

When the "Marvelous" Possibilities of Wildcat Mining Schemes Are Presented to Them

This is the season of the year when your Uncle Samuel's force of mail handlers is compelled to work overtime in order to deliver out after ton of catalogues of descriptive matter pertaining to gold, silver and copper mines, which have been "discovered" in the great west. Every mail brings one or more of these paper covered books, filled with glowing descriptions of the most marvelous mines that the world has ever known. Even skeptics cease to doubt after having read one of these catalogues and unless some kind friend interferes and gives him some good advice he invests his hard earned coin and receives therefor a certificate showing that he is a stockholder to the amount of shares for which he has paid in "The Tom Cat Mine" or some other mine with an equally appropriate name.

The owners of the mines advertised need money to install machinery and work the mine, and in order to get the money they usually "work" suckers way back east who think they see an opportunity to get rich quick.

Experienced writers, who know the mining business from alpha to omega are employed; glowing descriptions of the mines and the wealth they contain are printed in booklets and catalogues and these are sent to prospective customers in the east. Agents are also employed to sell stock when the catalogues fail to do the business. These agents are usually given a few thousand shares in the "mine" so that he can say to his victim, "Why I have invested to the extent of fifty thousand shares in this mine myself" When they hand out this kind of bait the wily agent usually lands a "sucker." If, however, "suckers" don't bite fast enough, inspection of the mine is invited, and the generous hearted company will pay the legitimate expenses of customers who will make the inspection in good faith, and promise if everything is as represented, to invest a few hundred or thousand, as they may happen to have the same in their jeans. After a man has visited the mine at the expense of the company he could hardly be expected to say that the proposition is doubtful. On the other hand, the fellows who engineer the job at the mine will see that the visitor is well taken care of, and that the "riches" of the mine are fully exposed to his view.

Briefly, the foregoing is some of the methods adopted by western mining companies to sell "wildcat" stock. After the "sucker" has invested his money, however, and several years pass by without his having received any dividends, he begins to make inquiries and learns to his sorrow that the stock is worthless and that the company has abandoned the mine because it didn't pay; or, perhaps, in some cases he learns that the company has no existence except in name, and that his money has simply gone to fatten a gang of swindlers who never saw a gold mine, much less to own one.

Nearly all gold mining schemes of this character are good things to let alone. If a mine is reeking with wealth there will be plenty of capital forthcoming to work it out. At any rate the company that owns one won't get down to a "five cents a share" proposition.

If you have a little money to invest, look around home, and you will probably find some enterprise which is sound and which will pay you liberal returns.
