When Man Becomes a Sprout.
When all reforms have been realized and everybody's life is trained up in the way it should go on the government trellis and every little sprout with an instinct to branch off in a new direction is gently drawn back and tied with the other vines then, says the New York Globe, a man need only shut his eyes and grow in his allotted place in the trim human garden maintained by the state. He will become a useful human vegetable in this Utopia so many social philosophers are now striving for.

The Coldest Yet.
In liquefying helium, the last of the gases that have been thought to be permanent, Olzewski has reached a temperature of 273.3 degrees below zero. This is a cold about 100 degrees greater than Dewar obtained three years ago in liquefying hydrogen, and is within about 2 degrees of the supposed absolute zero. The question has now been raised whether 273.7 degrees below the freezing point of water is really the absolute zero.

Calcium Carbide in Blasting.
Acetylene is being used as an explosive in Germany, where it has proved disappointing as an illuminant. Each cartridge contains an ounce and three-fourths of calcium carbide, yielding about 16 quarts of acetylene, and after wetting the carbide the confined mixture of generated gas and air is exploded by an electric spark. In blasting the rock is not thrown out, but is broken up into pieces small enough to be readily removed.

King Rides for Health.
King Edward has taken to equestrian exercise as a means of keeping down his weight. Since the rabbit-hole mishap which lamed him his majesty has been unable to take walking exercise. His liver began to show signs of rebellion, and the best his physicians could do was to order their royal patient into the saddle. Equestrianism, so far has not reduced the king's waist measurement.

Stuck Too Long.
That rich Mr. Spooner is the most provoking thing! He asked me if I was 33. "And what did you say?" "I said, 'Mercy, no!' And he said he didn't think any woman should marry until she was 33." "Gracious! What did you do then?" "I called after him that I was 33 my next birthday, but he didn't seem to hear me." - Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Encourage Fancy Skating.
The governor general of Canada, to show his interest in and encourage figure skating, has offered a handsome trophy to be competed for next season. The commission for the trophy has been given to a Canadian sculptor, Philippe Helbert, who has lately returned from Paris.

Man's Meanness.
If a man is saying anything he shouldn't, and his wife gives him a little punch under the table, he takes it for an encore, and says it again. - Atchison Globe.

For the Heathen.
Last year the Sunday schools of the Christian church gave $54,317 to foreign missions.

POLICE PUT A STOP TO SODA FOUNTAIN "JAGS"

Alluring Deceptions Which Have Been Appealing Seattle Appetites Barred from Sale.

Seattle, Wash.—Society women down town shopping and young school girls of respectable families can no longer have their appetites for exhilarating intoxicating drinks satisfied at the fashionable soda fountains and temperance drink parlors of the city. Mayor Moore has instructed Chief of Police Wapenstein to put an end to the practice, declaring at the time that many respectable women and young girls were becoming slaves to the liquor habit through partaking of drinks thoroughly saturated with liquor at soda fountains. The owners of these places announced that 23 drinks for which there had been a large demand in the past could no longer be sold because of police opposition.

Such decoctions as "Louisville punch," "champagne freeze," with

POLICE ARREST PURVEYORS OF SODA WATER JAGS.

"Kentucky frappe" and "frozen sherry punch," do not contain any secret as to their ingredients. The suggestiveness of the names, police officials claim, was fully borne out by the mixture when served.

The entire list of 23 drinks no longer served at the fountains afforded a variety of jag that no licensed thirst emporium advertised. The police authorities claim the sale of these drinks to women and children and even to male visitors barred after one a. m. from the saloons satisfied an appetite for intoxicants which must hereafter be appeased only in licensed saloons.

Until the revised menus of the fashionable resorts came out after the mayor's orders there was no clear understanding of the extent to which the sale of intoxicants was carried on at soda fountains. It was generally understood that a few liquors could be had from a friendly soda fountain clerk, but the rounders did not appreciate the variety of drinks that were served.

IS VARNISHED BY HAZERS.

Youth Gagged, Bound, Tied to Tree and Anointed After Escorting Girl to Her Home.

Marion, Ind.—Everett Storts, 18 years old, escorted Miss Blair to her country home, after an entertainment in Van Buren. When Storts was returning to his home in Van Buren at 12 o'clock at night he was overpowered by a dozen young men, was gagged, bound and tied to a tree. Vaseline and turpentine were used to anoint him, and then one of the young men declared he intended to stab him. A wet thumb was thrust against Storts' neck, and the varnish that ran down over his collar was thought by Storts to be blood. He is said to have fainted. The young men cut the ropes that bound him, and, after testing his pulse and listening for heart beats, decided he was dead and ran away.

Storts said he was conscious, and that when the young men left he walked to Van Buren, notified the officers and had warrants issued for the arrest of the young men. He had recognized Clayton Bradford, Coan Paxton, Elmer Brown, Charles Smith and Clarence Brown, and all were arrested on the charge of assault and battery. They pleaded guilty when arraigned, and were fined one dollar and costs in each case.

The young men said it was the intention to frighten Storts, haze him, and then let him go. They declare there was no intention of injuring him, but Storts does not see the funny side of the affair.

Parisians in Paris.
How many Parisian people born in Paris are there living in Paris at the present time? According to the last census about 36 per cent. of the total population. IS LEFT ON BEACH IN SCANT ATTIRE

MODEST BOY'S ALL-NIGHT VIGIL IN BATHING TRUNKS.

HIS CLOTHES ARE STOLEN

Young Messenger Takes Dip in Surf at Coney Island, Loses Wearing Apparel, and Is Too Bashful to Tell the Police.

New York—John B. Dixon, a telegraph messenger boy who lives in Brooklyn, went to Coney Island the other night for a swim. He decided he would have his bath under the old iron pier, and forthwith planted his clothes in a sand-hole, having in memory stories of "beach-combers" who took away garments under such circumstances.

Apparently he was spied upon, for when he came out of the water two hours later his clothes were gone. He alleges that at this point of his adventures he took things philosophically and reflected upon the stars.

Finally he took to walking up and down the beach, still reflecting. About ten p. m. a man met him and said: "Say, sonny, is it as hot as all that?" "Now," said John B. Dixon, messenger boy, "it's as frozen as a tall buildin' in March."

"Why don't you go to headquarters?" asked the man when he heard the details of the case. "Hate to," said John B. Dixon, "like this!"

But finally the chill drove him up Surf avenue attired in trunks to a charity tent beside police headquarters. Here his pride prevented him from telling what the trouble was. He admitted that he didn't have a cent in his pockets, but the manager of the relief tent had no sense of humor, and failed to see the delicately conveyed point.

So the boy, after a cup of coffee, set forth again on his weary way. It was now one o'clock in the morning, and chilly at that. He had another swim, and that warmed him up a little, or rather left his temperature at the degree required for comfort.

About three a. m., according to Dixon's own story, he met a man who had been all night at Brighton Beach. The man invited him to shoot in a gallery. John B. Dixon, messenger boy, said:

"Well, boss, I ain't fit to go in public places."

"Aw, shucks!" said the man. "They went to a shooting gallery and spent an hour, which resulted disastrously for the man, John B. Dixon in his bathing trunks being rather expert at the rifle game.

As the gray dawn crept on apace John B. bade farewell to his enthusiastic friend and took to the beach again, this time marveling about the wonder of the sunrise. The sun came up, and people began to take to the water, but John B. Dixon, messenger boy, who had been under the shroud of darkness all night, felt sensitive, and fancied that all the people in the world were looking at him.

About nine o'clock a man came along and learned his story. He said he was Mr. Tompkins, an engineer, and advised Dixon to go back to the relief tent and ask them if they couldn't do a little better.

John B. went bashfully, and when this time he told the whole truth and nothing but the truth everybody laughed except the women attendants, who felt maternally sympathetic and called him a "poor little fellow."

"But I was all to do merry," said John B. Dixon.

The relief tent looked up a suit of overalls, and the messenger boy appeared before his anxious mother and friends and told the whole tale.

"Der's some men," said he, "dat gets mean because dey're down on der shoes, but a man won't steal a kid's clothes must ha' bin born that way."

On the whole, John B. Dixon said he thought the loss of his clothes was worth the insight he had obtained into the wonders of nature, human and otherwise.

Had All Eternity.
An old citizen, who had been henpecked all his life, was about to die. His wife felt it her duty to offer him such consolation as she might, and said: "John, you are about to go, but I will follow you." "I suppose so, Manda," said the old man, weakly, "but so far as I am concerned you don't need to be in any blamed hurry about it!"

Lightning Kills Fish.
A peculiar result of lightning was noticed in France, after a severe thunderstorm. A bolt struck a small pond just outside the city, and it was discovered that the electric shock had killed all the fish in the water, about 1,000 in number.

TIPPING SYSTEM IN INDIA.

There is Always a Multitude of Servants with the Eager Extended Hand.

In the first place, when we arrive in a town, our baggage is carried from the train to a carriage by four coolies. I have seen no baggage wagons here; the custom is for a second-class carriage to handle the baggage, on top, states E. W. Howe, in Atchison Globe.

Arrived at the hotel, the baggage is carried to our room by four coolies. Then there is the table waiter, the room man, the scavenger, the man who brings hot water, and the man who does this, that and the other. Of course, the driver of your carriage expects a tip, in addition to his fee, as does the footman who rides behind. I have said nothing of the men who are constantly in front of your room offering to sell you a snake, tell your fortune, make a tree grow out of the ground, make music or perform athletics.

Not have I mentioned the man who appears and presents you with flowers, to reappear with a demand for pay when you are ready to depart.

When I settled my bill at the Benares hotel the clerk and the manager sat side by side. The clerk made out the bill and I paid it, whereupon the clerk gave it to a servant to carry to the manager, who receipted it and sent it back to me by the servant. The clerk might have handed the bill to the manager; the manager might have handed it to me. But that is the custom over here, and as it has been the custom thousands of years, I won't attempt to change it on this hurried trip.

Will Written on Ice.
The strangest will on record is that of a Connecticut clergyman who broke through the ice of a certain pond. Finding that he was unable to get out upon the ice and realizing that he had but a short time to live because of the bitter cold, he took his knife and wrote his will on the smooth surface of the ice. It was found, duly sworn to and recorded as his last will and testament.

Dance on Capitol's Roof.
Richmond, Va.—Dick Blankenship, the capitol elevator man, was the sole spectator at a show given by several pretty girl members of a burlesque company on top of the state capitol building. The members of the chorus, while visiting the capitol, expressed a desire to go to the top of the building, and the accommodating elevator man yanked his car up for them. The girls, while attempting to thank him for his courtesy, asked him if he went to the theater. He replied that his visits were few and far between. "Then we will just show you a few things," said one of the chorus, and several of them began to dance, kick, turn hand springs, sing and jig dances. The elevator man then ordered his charges to return to the ground and behave with decorum.

Nation Without Colonies.
Austria is the only empire in the world which has never had colonies, or even transmarine possessions, in any quarter of the earth. Her ambition has hitherto been continental.
