Chief Cause of Suicide The old school of neuropathologists maintained that every case of suicide was a case of insanity, but that the ory has been abandoned because of the preponderance of testimony against it. Acute mania sometimes causes suicide, but in the large maority of cases sheer laziness and poltreonery furnish the plain evidence of motive. The lazy theory is, therefore approximately correct, even though it is improperly restricted to hot weather suicides. It really applies to

World's Consumption of Rubber. Some idea of the enormous quantity of rubber used every year can be obtained from the following necessarily rough estimate of French statistical experts. They calculate that the present total annual production of rubber is not less than 57,600,000 pounds. Of this total about 55 per cent. comes from South America and Africa, and considerably over 45 per cent of the finished product is consumed in the United States. Germany is the sec ond largest user of rubber.

A Courtship of 25 Years. The recent wedding of Miss Margarette McCough, of New Derry, and Oscar Crissinger, of Derry, was the culmination of a courtship which had extended over a quarter of a century. There had been no lovers' quarrels but Miss McCough would not set the day, and the event was delayed from year to year until now the bride is 60 years old and the bridegroom is 65. -Latrobe Correspondence, Pittsburg Dispatch.

Diamonds In America.

Diamonds are constantly being found in the woods of Canada, and last year a stone, picked up by an Indian, was sold to a white man for 85 cents. The white man hurried to Detroit with it and got $1,500 from a jeweler for his investment. It is believed by scientists that the diamond bed exists in the north, and that the diamonds were brought into the south central part by prehistoric glaciers.

HOW ROOSEVELT IS SPENDING HIS VACATION.

"Early to Bed and Early to Rise" le His Motto at Sagamore Hill-Protected from Cranks by Secret Service Men.

Oyster Bay, L. I .- President Roose velt is settled down in his country home on "the hill" for the first actual rest he has enjoyed in five years. It is to continue for three mouths.

A high stone wall has been erected between the Loug Island railroad station and Sagamore Hill and secret service men, under direction of Secretary Loeb, hold the key to the only gate. All sorts of gentlemen, crank or crankless, great or little, find it hard to get past. Artists and camera men for newspapers have to run for their lives.

The president's day begins early. He may be seen on the veranda of his home at 5:30 a. m. almost any day, breathing the soft, cool air from the sound. After a brisk turn about the grounds a chapter from a library book will engage him until the children begin flocking from their beds, eager for breakfast and a day of rollicking fun. As a rule the first meal is served to the president's family to-the morning meal. Usually in the forenoon the family take to their horses. This season the president is riding two new mounts, Audrey, a black mare, and Roswell, a bay hunter. They were purchased in Virginia. Rusty, a bay jumper, that has been out of service for two seasons, because of a complication of ailments, is fit again.

Mrs. Roosevelt is also riding a new mare, named Molly, and from Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt ride through the shaded roads of the country, some times accompanied by Theodore, Jr., who is delighted with his new mount Gray Dawn, a western cayuse of excellent action and spirit, and the most showy animal in the Roosevelt stable. Two hours of the afternoon are spent in reading and writing at the broad library table or on the veranda. In the rear of the house the president is helping his farm hands to harvest a bumper crop of oats. The hay has not been taken in.
