HEAD CRUSHED, DIED INSTANTLY

Sidney Loomis, a Shop Employee, Met a Horrible Death This Morning

Sidney Loomis, of Athens, employed as a carpenter in the new Lehigh Valley shops, was instantly killed this morning between 7 and 8 o'clock, the upper part of his head being literally crushed to a pulp.

Loomis, who was about fifty years old, was engaged at a work bench along side of which stood an engine. The tank to the engine had been removed from its trucks to undergo repairs. This morning one of the big 120 ton cranes was employed to lift the tank to the trucks. In order to do so it was necessary to lift the tank about twenty feet in the air, move it over the top of the engine and then lower it to its position on the trucks. To accomplish this work a large chain is hitched to one end of the tank, and at the other end the chain is fastened to a bale. Everything went along all right until the tank reached a point directly over the engine. Then the end of the chain fastened to the bale end of the tank gave way, allowing it to fall. The tank fell directly across the bench at which Loomis was engaged at work. His head was caught underneath and crushed to a jelly. Death was instantaneous.

William Miner and Leo Vanduzer, who were also working alongside of the engine, were caught underneath the tank but they escaped with slight injuries. The fact that they were not instantly killed is regarded as miraculous. The ambulance was called and the two injured men were taken to the hospital.

Justice Nelson decided that in the case of Loomis no inquest was necessary, and the remains were removed to Grumme's undertaking establishment and later taken to Athens.

The unfortunate man resided on Hugh street in Athens and had been employed by the Lehigh as a carpenter for some time. He leaves a wife and four children.

DAMAGE CLAIM SETTLED

The heirs of James Morris, the aged Wilawanna man who met death on the night of June 6, by falling through the trolley bridge which crosses the D. L. & W. tracks at Waverly, will receive $900 by the terms of a settlement which has recently been effected. It is claimed by the heirs that the W. S. & A. Traction Company, the D. L. & W. Railroad Company and the borough of South Waverly were all guilty of contributory negligence. Suit was threatened by attorney for the heirs, but a settlement was reached before it was brought.

LARGE PLATE GLASS BROKEN

A chair was inadvertently pushed against one of the large plate glass windows in the front of the Wilbur house last night, breaking it in such a manner that it will have to be replaced by a new one. The glass is an expensive one, costing in the neighborhood of $90. Josh White, the porter, was sweeping out the front office when he moved one of the chairs. The chair tipped over, striking against the window, cracking it from near the top to the bottom. A new glass will be ordered.

EXIT, STRAW HAT

It's "23, skidoo" for the Panama and split straw hat, but the weather has been so excessively hot that those who were fortunate enough to possess a hat made of straw have continued to wear the comfortable headgear. Now that the weather has changed, however, the straw hat will be consigned to its wister quarters.

THELMA AT OAK GROVE PARK TONIGHT

When witchcraft was being abolished in Norway a religious movement became evident and a war upon those who claimed Roman faith was commenced. Thelma, the daughter of Orlaf Guldmarr, being a firm believer, was charged with being a witch and was ostracized from all society. An English gentleman, upon a tour through Norway, saw Thelma and became infatuated with her, thus causing anger to all Norwegians, who aroused Seurd, a half-witted boy, to destroy both Thelma and her English lover. This is a partial story of the play that will be presented by Mitchell's All Star Players at Oak Grove Park tonight. Elaborate scenic and electric effects are introduced making a very fine performance. Tomorrow afternoon The Two Orphans. Tomorrow evening they close their engagement by presenting the Great Western melodrama, Jesse James.

FIREMEN'S PARADE

The preparations for the convention and parade of the Valley Firemen's association are nearly completed. The gentlemen having charge of the event are satisfied that the parade will be the largest and best in the history of the association. There will be 20 fire companies and ten bands in line and the line of march will pass over the principal streets of the borough. From present indications there will be a big crowd in Sayre on the day of the parade. The business places and many private dwellings will be decorated handsomely. The visiting firemen will be entertained royally. While there will be no intoxicants in evidence at the various hose rooms, the local laddies will endeavor to show their guests that a good time can be enjoyed without recourse to the liquid that cheers.

A COMMENDABLE DEED

A case of the true kind of charity—practical assistance rendered by men to a fellow in distress—came to the attention of The Record this morning, and it is worth publicity. A man employed in the shops met with an accident some time ago which confined him to his bed. Yesterday a couple of his shopmates went to see how he was getting along. After they had been in the house a short time they discovered that the family was in a destitute condition through the inability of the head of the household to supply his wife and five children with the common necessities of life. The shopmates quietly organized themselves a committee and interviewed some business men and citizens. The result was a liberal response, and provisions of various kinds and a generous supply of cash were soon delivered at the house of the unfortunate family.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Harry Mott of Leroy was operated on this morning. Michael Roth of Dushore was admitted yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Luther Savin of East Waverly was discharged today. John H. Rogers, a Lehigh fireman, sustained a severe contusion of the right foot while on his engine this morning. A large piece of coal dropped on the foot and he was compelled to go to the hospital for treatment.

PREPARING FOR BIG FREIGHT TRAFFIC

Lehigh Valley Expecting to Do the Biggest Fall Business in the History of the Road

"The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is getting ready for what it is believed will be the biggest fall freight business in the history of the road," said Division Freight Agent Bert Hayden, to a Record representative this morning. Mr. Hayden, who is an authority on the subject, says that for the most part crops throughout the country are heavy. Hay is a particularly large crop, potatoes will be plentiful, and while apples will not be as plentiful as last year, the yield is larger than many suspect. In western New York, the apple belt of this country, thousands of bushels will be gathered. The greater part of them will be shipped, and as the Lehigh runs through that section the road is bound to get its share of the business.

Before the end of the month the freight rush will be on, and the capacity of the road will probably be taxed to the utmost. This will mean extra time for regular crews in the service of the road, and will also be the means of giving employment to many extra ones.

Orders are also being sent out from the headquarters of other railroads calling attention to the heavy freight traffic that is expected this winter and instructing division officials that freight cars are not to be delivered to foreign lines except in cases where it is absolutely necessary. Eastern railroads have shut down somewhat on sending car loads of building material to San Francisco and additional cars have been sent to the Pacific coast, so that freight cars sent to that section some time ago can be immediately returned. Division officials have also been instructed to make a careful inspection of rolling stock and to see that all freight cars are in condition to handle a capacity load.

MOVING PICTURES

Some things can be painted, others illustrated by steel engravings, a few can be described, but none of these means can impart knowledge and impressions so clearly—so fully—so accurately—and so convincingly as Lyman H. Howe's Lifeorama that appears in the Loomis Opera House on Saturday, Sept. 15, afternoon and evening. History is made so rapidly in this twentieth century, or we get so much of it, big and little, that tremendous events are soon merged with others and lost to mind unless saved to the sight by such moving pictures as presented by Mr. Howe. The most recent events, however notable they may be, are speedily relegated to the common level of the dim distant past unless preserved by the enduring moving picture film. Were it not for the moving pictures that preserve history for us so well, we would soon lose sight of great events as we do of stars of varying distance, however brilliant they may be. But the telescope brings the star within our range of vision. And the moving picture does us a similar service. It again brings the recent historic event back to us in all its reality. But here the analogy ends. For the telescope can annihilate only distance. The moving picture annihilates not only distance, but also time. The battle, event or exploit that took place 10,000 miles away a year ago, the moving picture will produce, here, there, or anywhere, and at any time. These possibilities explain the breadth and vital interest of such an exhibition as Lyman H. Howe's Lifeorama. For these reasons its educational value far exceeds that of any dramatic entertainment and at the same time is more amusing. For the program also pictures the comedy not only of one land, but of many.
