THEY SHOULD MEET. Presentation of Roosevelt Cup to Eastern Yacht Club. PRESIDENT COMPARED TO KAISER. German Yachtsman Says Kaiser and President More Similar Than Points; They should meet.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt has again and again placed himself on record as an enthusiastic supporter of amateur sports, and as a peacemaker he combined the two when he took occasion to visit the Eastern Yacht Club, the trophy which was won by the yacht Vim of that club during the recent international yacht races off Marblehead, Mass., in which several German boats competed unsuccessfully.

The presentation was made on board the president's flagship, the Mayflower, anchored in the entrance of Oyster Bay. After the presentation, which was witnessed by a dozen representatives of the yachting fraternity, including several members of the German crews and members of the cabinet, an elaborate luncheon was served in the sumptuous dining rooms of the little cruiser.

In presenting the trophy which the president had allowed to bear his name he said that he wished to give his most hearty indorsement of amateur sports of all kinds. Otherwise he remarked he would not be participating in the foundation, and the trophy would not bear his name.

The president next commended the sportsmanship of the Germans. They had, he said, demonstrated that they could withstand the supreme test of sportsmen, they could lose gracefully. While the president congratulated the winning club most heartily, he said there was a note of regret in his indorsement because the Germans lost. However, he felt great satisfaction that the yachts which had come across the ocean for the race had been "in the winners" referring to the one race won by a German yacht.

Speaking more seriously, the president said there was a side to the race just run and to the function taking place which meant far more to the German and American nations than the winning of the cup, that in the sportsmanship of the two nations was being developed a fraternal feeling which was most desirable for the welfare of both countries.

The cup was presented at the conclusion of the speech to Commodore Trosser L. Park, owner of the yacht Vim. When luncheon was served President Roosevelt proposed a toast to his majesty the emperor of Germany. This was responded to later by Captain Hibbinghaus of the German Yacht club in a toast to the president of the United States. In proposing the toast the German captain took occasion to voice the cordial feeling which he and his fellow yachtsmen felt for American amateur sportsmen. He said it had really been a pleasure to lose, if that was to their fate, so far representatives of the sport. He commented on the fact that every possible advantage had been given the strangers in these waters. They had been given a fair course and made acquainted with local conditions and had been fairly beaten. The toast concluded with three rousing cheers for the president.

After the luncheon Captain Weitzmann of the German Yacht club delivered to the president personal messages he bore from Emperor William and from his brother, Prince Henry of Prussia. These messages were not made public, and Captain Weitzmann said the messages the president returned were regarded equally confidential, although the captain was most enthusiastic in his indorsement of President Roosevelt.

A WARNING TO CUBA

President Roosevelt Declares Fighting Must Stop. TAFT AND BACON SENT TO HAVANA. President Palma and People Told That the United States Will Intervene if Peace is Not Speedily Brought About.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—It is officially announced that Secretary of War W. H. Taft will leave Washington for Havana tomorrow morning. He will be accompanied by Robert Bacon, assistant secretary of state. They will go to Havana on board a navy vessel.

The president's purpose is to secure from absolutely dependable sources information that will establish clearly the fact that President Palma either does or does not in his administration represent a majority of Cuban people. It will be for Secretary Taft and Acting Secretary Bacon to determine for themselves whether in their opinion the best interests of the island are represented by the revolutionary forces or whether in the interests of order and public weal the future welfare of Cuba the Palma government should be maintained. Pending their decision and report the naval forces of the United States will endeavor to maintain the status quo.

President Roosevelt in a letter to Senator Quesada, Cuban minister to the United States, just given out, says in part: "It is in my judgment imperative for the sake of Cuba that there shall be an immediate cessation of hostilities and some arrangement which will secure the permanent pacification of the island."

"I am sending to Havana the secretary of war, Mr. Taft, and the assistant secretary of state, Mr. Bacon, as the special representatives of this government, who will render such aid as is possible toward these ends. "Through you I desire in this way to communicate with the Cuban government and with the Cuban people, and accordingly I am sending you a copy of this letter to be presented to President Palma and have also directed its immediate publication."

The cruiser Des Moines has already joined the Denver at Havana. The Marietta is at Cienfuegos. The Dixie, with 300 marines aboard, from Guantanamo is making for the Cuban capital with all speed, while in home ports the Tacoma is about to sail for Cuba from Norfolk, to be followed by the Cleveland and the Newark. The Minneapolis, at League Island under preparatory orders, is ready to sail when the starting signal comes from Washington. Meanwhile the marine corps is in perfect readiness and expects to be able to place 2,000 marines aboard ship at a few hours' notice.

Thus it appears that within a short time an effective fleet of naval vessels will surround the island of Cuba, and they will be well manned by marine contingents, making good a deficiency in the present equipment of the Denver. PALMA PREPARES TO FIGHT. Cuban Congress Grants Men and Money to Crush Rebellion. HAVANA, Sept. 15.—The armed force which was landed from the United States cruiser Denver Thursday night stayed in camp in the Plaza de Armas in this city until the morning. Mr. Sleeper, the American charge d'affaires, had received a cablegram from the state department at Washington directing him to request the withdrawal of the Denver's sailors. Commander Colwell after calling at the legation went to the palace, where he conferred with President Palma. As a result the force of sailors was withdrawn. "Since landing I have received no instructions whatever from the navy department. Mr. Sleeper notified me that the state department had instructed him to request me to return on board. I was ready to comply, of course, but I first visited President Palma and told him that in my opinion it was well enough, since the city continued quiet, to take the men aboard the Denver, which is close at hand at the foot of O'Reilly street. I said that we could land again in a few minutes in case of any disturbance which made our presence necessary for the protection of Americans or quieting the situation. President Palma stated again that he would much prefer the men to stay where they were, but in view of the circumstances I felt unable to comply."

PANIC AT COLUMBUS

President's Daughter Unveils Statue to Save Disaster. FIFTY THOUSAND SMOKE AROUND HER. Congressman Longworth Had Hard Fight to Get His Wife Out of the Crash at McKinley Memorial Celebration.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 15.—The unveiling of the McKinley statue at the statehouse grounds took place last night, although slated for the afternoon, because of a panic among the crowd at 2 p. m., just as Governor Harris had commenced his opening speech. A woman standing in front of the stand where Mrs. Alice Longworth was seated, and in the effort to carry her out the crowd became unmanageable and some of them rushed under the seats prepared for the guests of the state. Governor Harris attempted to stop the panic, but he failed. Mrs. Longworth was told to arise, and may be that might stop the panic. She did so, but men began to yell and women screamed. Mrs. Longworth coolly waved her hands, and the governor and others tried again to stop the panic. Suddenly Mrs. Longworth grasped the cord and unveiled the statue, but even this did not stop the excitement, and the whole programme was declared off.

A crowd of 50,000 persons surged about the stand erected in the capitol grounds, frantic to secure a glimpse of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the president's daughter, and the oratorical exercises had to be postponed after the statue of the martyred president had been hurriedly unveiled by Mrs. Longworth. The crowd was so large and cramped that it got beyond control, and the shrieking of women and children who were caught in the crush rapidly worked the crowd into a frenzy. Many women fainted and were carried out of the crowd by the police. Mrs. Eliza Louisa Muhn and a negro were trampled on and had to be removed in an ambulance. Throughout the exciting scenes Mrs. Longworth remained cool and self-possessed, but afterward she said that it was the worst crush she had ever seen. Mr. and Mrs. Longworth had an exciting experience in escaping from the crowd. From the speaker's stand Mrs. Longworth saw a window overlooking the platform into the governor's office, but they were scarcely inside when the people began to surge through the doors from the corridors, and the office was quickly filled. The Longworths then attempted to reach an automobile which was waiting for them in the street, but once inside the building they were caught in a surging crowd. Finding no immediate avenue of escape, Congressman Longworth fought a way for his wife out of the capitol main doorway. The programme of exercises was carried out at Memorial hall, Governor Harris presiding. The speakers were William R. Day, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States; John W. Daniels, United States senator from Virginia; General Joseph McKay of Brooklyn, national commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mrs. McKinley was unable to attend the dedicatory exercises, but she was represented by her niece, Mrs. Ida McKinley Day.

ST. PETERSBURG STIRRED BY DISCOVERY OF FAKE WIRE TO MRS. WIDOW.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 15.—Diplomatic and administration circles here are greatly exercised over the discovery that a telegram purporting to have been sent by King Edward to the widow of General Min three days after the assassination of the general at Peterhof by Zenside Konopliukovo was not genuine. The message, signed "Edward," was as follows: "I am overwhelmed by your faithful bereavement and beg you, madam, to accept my profound condolence."

An investigation is in progress to determine the origin and motive of the telegram. The investigation has been conducted very quietly on account of the effect the disclosure is likely to have upon the royal personages concerned, and scarcely an inkling of the matter has reached the press. Some doubt was aroused when the receipt of the telegram was first announced by the papers, because, though royal personages often send messages under like circumstances affecting representative officials or persons with whom the sender has had personal relations, it is unusual in the case of subordinate officers of the army, such as General Min, who, though a member of Emperor Nicholas' suit, was merely a regimental commander.

The motive of the hoax is difficult to conjecture, though a message of sympathy relative to the fate of an agent of repression might not be without effect in such an internal combat as is going on in Russia or on the movement for an Anglo-Russian entente. Up to the present time no clue to the sender of the message has been discovered. An Odessa dispatch says that a mail wagon was held up near Simferopol by a band of thirty revolutionaries, who killed the coachman and two postillions and took possession of the mail pouches. The robbers were after $500,000 which it had been intended to forward through the mails, but quite by accident the sum was not on this wagon. General Kaubars has now issued orders for military convoys to accompany all mail wagons.

The several German colonies located in the Odessa district have refused to supply guards for the protection of their local postoffices, declaring the government has enough men to provide such guards itself. The governor general has consequently ordered that the leaders of these colonies be arrested.

Y., Sept. 15.—In the ruins of a fire which destroyed a two-story brick building here Fire Chief Higgins found the charred body of a man, which was subsequently identified as that of John J. Hayden. Hayden's body was found in a closet in the rear of the saloon.
