"All the news that's fit to print"

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1906.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 1.—The coming marriage of Edward C. Wall and Miss Martha Ahrendt is announced. Mr. Wall is well known in politics, is several times a millionaire and a member of the board of trade. He was chairman of the Democratic state central committee when that party won its sensational victories in this state in 1890-92 and a member of the national committee until 1896. He was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. Miss Ahrendt was his stenographer. Mr. Wall is sixty-three years old and his bride to be is twenty-five.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 1.—The old wooden steamer City of Concord, having three barges in tow, went down Saturday night in a storm on Lake Erie off Huron, O. Three of the crew of twelve were drowned. The other nine, after a terrible time in their yawl, landed at Cedar Point in the morning and walked into Huron in an exhausted condition.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND IS LORD MAYOR. LONDON, Oct. 1.—Sir William Trevelyan, alderman of the city of London for the ward of Farringdon Without since 1862, has been elected lord mayor of London. In succession to Walter Vaughan Morgan. Sir William has been known as the "children's alderman," because of his many benefactions to the children of the slums.

SHERIFF REFUSED TO ARREST HIM. PORT COLLINS, Colo., Oct. 1.—To save the lives of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, their son, Sherman Williams, aged fifteen years, shot and instantly killed Joel Clark, a landowner near Wellington. It is justifiable did the killing of Clark appear to Sheriff McCreary that he refused to arrest the boy.

ATHENS BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING

Athens—The borough council held their regular monthly meeting last evening. Weller, Tripp, Clark, Stevens, Keeffe and Nevins being present. After reading the minutes a report of the board of health and a request for an appropriation was read. On motion the following bills were ordered paid: Board of health appropriation $1; Spalding Library Association appropriation $2; bill of William Ervay, architect, for plans of Fourth ward hose house $85.50. Also several general bills were paid.

Mr. Tripp asked whether the firemen had any right to sell property that was on the lot purchased for fourth ward hose house, and stated further that some stone had been sold to Gregory and carted away. It was understood that when the borough paid $600 for the lot and $25 for what was on it, that they acquired the ownership of everything thereon. This matter was left to the committee to investigate.

Mr. Tripp of the special committee on heating the buildings stated he and Sutton and Nevins had examined the boiler in city hall and found it burned out so badly that it could not be repaired, and that its heating capacity was too small to heat all of the rooms; that when it was necessary to heat the upper story they were obliged to shut off the pipes in the lower part of the building.

Mr. Sutton was not able to be present on account of illness. The committee had consulted with T. S. Newman in regard to cost of a new heater, and he was present to explain to the council what he could do. Mr. Newman then showed plans, stating that he could put in a boiler for $300 that would furnish 810 feet of radiation, or give for $350 that would be capable of 1100 feet radiation. The present boiler could not have a capacity of over 600 feet and was in such condition that it could not be repaired. Mr. Tripp recommended that they purchase the $350 heater which would be furnished complete for that sum. At this point Dr. Stevens stated that he had been making an estimate of the borough expenses and found that it will be necessary to increase the taxes or economize. Mr. Keeffe said he was not prepared to vote on the proposition until he had examined into the matter, and so it was finally decided to defer action one week, and that a special adjourned meeting be held Oct. 8 to determine what shall be done, and the old committee should be retained until final action should be taken.

The secretary stated that he had received bids for coal. Stacy would furnish it for $5.60 for stove coal and $3.60 for pea coal. Meyer put in a bid at $5.60 for screened coal and $4 for pea coal. On motion the matter was deferred until the question of heater was settled.

Street Commissioner Mulligan stated that there were sidewalks in several parts of town that needed to be repaired or new ones built. The matter was held for further consideration.

Adjourned to meet Oct. 8.

HEEMANS HELD TO AWAIT REQUISITION Athens—The hearing before Eq. Johnson of Fred and Henry Heeman took place at city hall last night at 10 o'clock. Chief Brooks of Waverly, came down and was the only witness examined. On being brought into court Justice Johnson read the charges that they were accused of breaking into Bingham Brothers' store at Lockwood, Saturday, Sept. 29, and taking two coats, eight pairs of shoes, some postage stamps and other property amounting in all to $36. Chief Brooks was sworn and stated that he was chief of police of the village of Waverly, and that a warrant had been issued by C. O. Hoagland, Justice of the Peace, charging the prisoners with the crime and placed in his hands; and that after their arrest they had found some of the property in their possession. Justice Johnson then gave the verdict that the prisoners be remanded to the custody of the officers and that they be taken to Towanda jail for confinement until a requisition could be obtained from New York state. The prisoners were accordingly taken to Towanda this morning.

A Notorious Playwright

Bernard Shaw is a product peculiar to these days of lack of faith in things in general—a man who seems to believe nothing, to reverence nothing. He is understood to be and his apostle, Arnold Bennett, says they worship Truth, Truth ever with a big T. In this worship of Truth, the playwright considers it fitting not to dwell on whatever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, but to grovel in ugliness and mire, present such a picture of modern life that one asks the nobleness and goodness utterly dead! The Shaw play recently forced from the New York stage by the guardian of public morals, is quite too strong for the American taste. But the author and player persist: it but pictures a state of affairs it were well not to gloss over, were well to deal with openly and bravely. Careful and attemptlessly unprejudiced judgment of the play, pronounces the long too low for public exploitation, certain Shaw; notorious for these more than problem plays; in private life esteemed man of philanthropic bent, of excellent morals. He is a socialist, a vegetarian, the typical wild one. He was born in Dublin some 49 years ago, came up to writer. He early tried his hand at novel writing, and these efforts appeared in serial form in various obscure socialist magazines. He served as music critic on the London Star and the World, and for a time was dramatic critic on the Saturday Review. His plays, which have had quite a vogue in book form, presently began to make a stir on the stage. America, I believe, leading in advancing the Shaw vogue. Richard Mansfield produced his "Arms and the Man" and "The Devil's Disciple" at a time when it was considered suicidal to print in the Chicago Record-Herald, is "a leading member of a trio of Georges who have captured the prizes of this and the past season on Broadway—George Shaw, George Cohan, George Ade."

The Divine Sarah

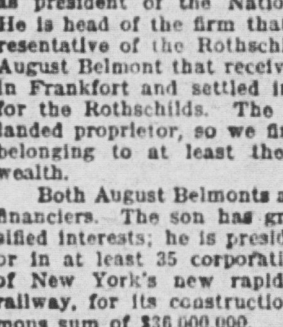

From over-seas comes this year to our shores and sufficiently big inland towns the great Sarah Bernhardt. She, or at least her manager does, calls this her farewell American tour. A wag asks why not. Reports tell of the need the famous actress has for the American dollar, that her theater in Paris, the Sarah Bernhardt, may not again be opened unless she reap a rich harvest in this country. Undoubtedly the rich harvest will be forthcoming. Bernhardt is 61 years old, according to the records, but as regards vitality and spirit she is a person of eternal youth. We are apt to think of her as thoroughly French, but she really is of French and Dutch parentage, and though baptized into the Christian faith and brought up in a convent, was born a Jewess. One realizes the years that have passed over the head of the great tragedienne, in reviewing her triumphs, which read something like this: It was in the latter part of the sixties her genius began to be recognized, in her portrayal of the queen of Spain in "Ruy Blas" and of Zanetta in Coppée's "Fanny". At the close of the Franco-Prussian war she made an inconspicuous debut, recalled her, and shortly she became a regular member of the company. One of her notable successes was as Dona Sol in Hugo's "Hernani". In 1879 she achieved a great triumph in London. It was in 1862 she made her debut in Racine's "Iphigénie," at the time a young girl of 18.

A Famous Unitarian Divine

A very interesting old man is Dr. Robert Collyer, the blacksmith parson. Dr. Collyer was born in Yorkshire, England, 82 years ago. In that country he learned the trade of blacksmith, and worked at it for ten years after he emigrated to America. In denominationalism he was first a Methodist, afterwards a Unitarian. For a quarter of a century Dr. Collyer was pastor of the Church of the Messiah in New York, and in 1857 he was called to the work of the same church in Chicago. He was identified for a score of years with the religious life of Chicago. He went to Chicago as Unitarian missionary and founded Unity church there, of which he was pastor from 1860-79. Dr. Collyer rendered invaluable help to the great fire, his dauntless courage and robust helpfulness acting as constant inspiration. A hard-working preacher is the kind Robert Collyer has always been. It is only recently he retired from active labor. During the war he fell called to active work in the field; and in the chief promoters of the work of the sanitary commission, and visited personally the different army camps to find out conditions, help where he was able. The vigorous young man is a vigorous old man, still deeply interested in the progress of the world. Dr. Collyer has been called over-optimistic, but this attitude in a man of ripe years and full of honors seems to us most refreshing.

Of the House of Belmont

The Belmonts are best known as financiers, sportsmen and men of fashion. August has recently had publication called to him in his office as president of the National City Federation of New York's new rapid transit underground railway, for its construction advanced the enormous sum of $16,000,000. He has strong interests outside of his financial operations; like his father, very fond of horses, he is president of the American Jockey club, a most enthusiastic turfman. But commerce and sport do not prevent Mr. Belmont from performing his citizenship duties, he takes keenest interest in public matters. The father was prominent in the financial and public life of the country, served as United States minister at The Hague, and whilst there negotiated a very important consular convention. He was for many years chairman of the national democratic committee. The Belmont sons have long been powers in democratic politics. The elder Belmont married a daughter of Commodore Perry, and the well-known Perry Belmont is a namesake of the famous naval hero.

The Marquis Spencer Turner

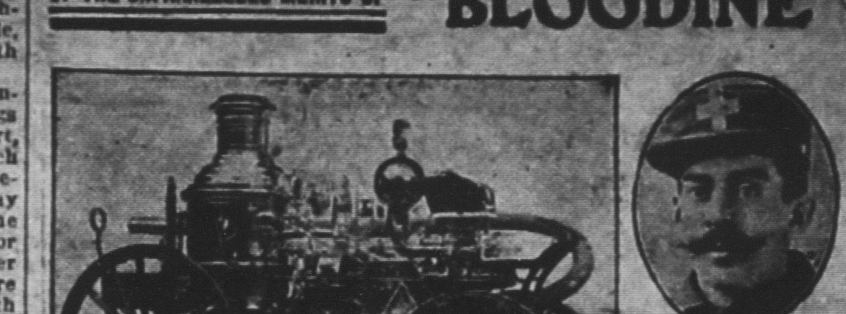

This titled gentleman is an American, his title bestowed upon him by the late Pope Leo XII. He makes his home in Rome, is closely connected with the household of the pope. The marquis' father, recently deceased, was a wealthy Brooklyn merchant and left a large sum to be divided among the various members of his family. That part of his will dealing with the bequest to his son Spencer is most unusual; not attempting the complicated technical phraseology, the purport is something like this: That J. Spencer Turner shall have only the income from the sum of $500,000 as long as he remains single, but the principal shall be turned over to him immediately upon his entering into the wedded state. In case he never marries, he shall bequeath the property to a person or persons lineal descendant of the father. Much surmise is agog concerning this very unusual testament. We have had wills galore. In fact and in fiction, prohibiting legacies from matrimony, but this encouragement to double harness is rare. The young gentleman so peculiarly placed is now in this country, whether in search of a wife or not dependent saith not. The father was a Baptist, the son is an ardent Catholic. Prior to his adoption of the Catholic religion he was a vicar in the Episcopal church. It is reported that the father feared his son might be moved to become a priest, and that this means was taken to dissuade him from such a step; the son, however, declares such a supposition, asserts that his father was no bigot, that he gave in his charities to Catholic and Protestant alike, that he never objected to the son's connection with the Catholic church, nor was at all displeased when his sister adopted the faith of this church. The marquis denies that he has any idea of turning priest, avers that he has no intention of taking vows of celibacy. The Marquis Turner must often these days put to himself the question "To be, or not to be," and with interest the public will watch the career of an heir that is so warmly encouraged to take a wife.
