Permanent Dentistry

Our patrons say we have the disposition to please. We keep our promises.

A quarter of a century ago we placed some gold fillings in the teeth of a well known gentleman at present a resident of Sayre. These fillings today are just as bright, firm and useful as the day they were made. We will tell you the name of the party, if you wish to see him yourself.

There are variations in dental workmanship, just as there are differences in the various brands of flour. If you desire the highest degree of proficiency—the skill and knowledge that will make YOUR fillings serviceable twenty-five years from today—come in or phone for an appointment. On the other hand, if you take pleasure in having your teeth filled over and over again every year or two, you should go elsewhere—we do not do that kind of work.

Ice Blasted from Glacier.
The great glacier on Mont Blanc is being used for other purposes than furnishing an occupation to guides and an attraction for tourists. An ice trust has gone into the business on an extensive scale of quarrying the clear, hard ice at an altitude of 4,000 feet. The ice is blown out in great blocks by means of dynamite, after which it is sawed into regular sizes and sent down the mountain sides on a narrow-gauge railway.

Blue Our Hair.
Many people take it as a joke, but it is a fact that when the hairdressers shampoo white hair they put bluing in the rinsing water and blue the hair just as they would blue sheets and pillow cases. The bluing has the same effect on the hair as on any white materials, giving it a fresh, pure white appearance. Hair that isn't blued often becomes a stale, yellowish, unattractive shade.

Expensive Amusement.
The gardens of the palace of La Granja, where Alfonso and Victoria spent their honeymoon, is celebrated for its fountains. One of them, the Hanoi del Diane, spouts to the height of 150 feet. When this fountain was completed Philip V., the builder of the palace, said: "Well, it has cost me $2,000,000, but for three minutes I have been amused."

Valuable Coconut Tree.
If a shipwrecked man were cast up on an uninhabited island naked, cold, famished and thirsty and were to climb a coconut tree he could throw down to the ground the material for his house and the fire and a canoe to paddle away in, and could climb down fed, clothed and with a jag on. A man marvelously adapted to the pressing needs of man.

Call Sentiment into Action.
If a man can't afford to give a girl a diamond ring for a betrothal he can do more than square matters by giving her a very thin plain gold one and saying it was the engagement ring of his grandmother.—Athens (Kan.) Globe.

What's in a Name?
The name Chicago is derived from she-gog-on, the locative of the word she-gow, meaning skunk. The Pottawatomies must have been gifted with second sight when Packington was named.

Wearing of Hats in Parliament.
The wearing of hats in the British parliament by the members may be traced back to the time when those who were summoned to legislate came in wearing helmets, which were not easily removed.

Color of Water.
After long hesitation scientific men agree to-day in admitting that water physically pure, seen in mass, is sky blue. This color is that taken by the white light of the sun when absorbed by the water.

Walls of Ancient Cities.
The walls of ancient cities were of such massive construction as almost to appall our twentieth century imaginations, accustomed as we are to the steel-frame methods employed in the construction of modern buildings. The walls of Babylon, for instance, were built of solid masonry, 300 feet in height and 85 feet in thickness; and the gates of the city were of a corresponding strength and size. These ancient gates were usually built of immense planks covered with plates of copper and iron and studded with huge iron bolts.

Habit Stronger Than Nature.
"Habit a second nature! Habit is ten times nature," said Lord Wellington. There was profound philosophy in this remark, and it was philosophy born of experience. For Wellington, who in childhood was considered such a dunce his own mother could not bear to have him near her, became one of the greatest soldiers, diplomatists and statesmen of his age by assiduously cultivating the habits of thorough preparation and quick decision.

Lesson in Manners.
One day a little boy came to school with very dirty hands, and the teacher said to him:
"Jamie, I wish you would not come to school with your hands soiled that way. What would you say if I came to school with dirty hands?"
"I wouldn't say anything," was the prompt reply. "I'd be polite."—Stray Stories.

Unweathery.
The Cloud Compeller finished reading his reports, and turned to the winged messenger who fluttered in attendance beside him.
"Tell Boreas he'll have to puff up a bit," he said. "The Oldest Inhabitant hasn't sneezed at the weather for a month."—Puck.

One Woman's Work.
For 13 years Mrs. Matilda Coxe Stevenson explored the Rock y mountains with her husband, collecting archaic implements, ceramics and ceremonial objects for the United States national museum. She has been invaluable to the Bureau of American Ethnology and is now a member of its staff.

The Right Idea.
At times there has been much to say of the Amherst example in college athletics. It is a good example to study and to follow. The Amherst idea is, in the words of the college director of sports, "to make men, not to buy them."—N. Y. World.

The Thing to Say.
"Now," began the tiresome man who goes in for queer science, "what would you say if I were to tell you that all the rivers in the world would dry up within a—"
"I would say," interrupted the weary listener, "'Go thou and do likewise.'"—Philadelphia Press.
