NEW HEAD OF GERMAN NAVY. Prince Henry of Prussia, Brother of Kaiser, Made Commander. Berlin.—Prince Henry of Prussia, who has been made commander-in-

PRINCE HENRY OF PRUSSIA. (Recently Appointed Commander in Chief of the German Army.) chief of all the German squadrons in active service, is a sailor prince of the empire and the only surviving brother of Kaiser Wilhelm. He was born August 14, 1862, in Potsdam, and while but a mere boy learned the rough and practical work of a sailor. It is said that through merit alone he has been advanced to the various naval grades.

Money of the World. The total stock of money, in gold, silver and uncovered paper, in the whole world amounts, in round figures, to $12,000,000,000. In the United States the total stock of money amounts to about $2,000,000,000.

Cheap Assesment. 'May I drop dead if I don't speak the truth,' said a prisoner in a London police court. 'Don't say that,' replied the magistrate, 'wearily. 'If all those wishes were carried out we should have the floor strewn with corpses.'

Bare Gift. 'She is very sharp in her retorts.' 'But that is such an unwomanly accomplishment, and yet for a woman who can make a tart reply there is one who can make a pit speak for itself.'

ATHENS. Guy Perkins is in Schenectady. Major Gore was able to be down town today. H. C. Russell of Nichols visited Leslie Sairs over Sunday. F. E. Luckey and wife returned from New York Saturday.

Our school teachers are all in attendance at the institute at Towanda this week. Miss Mary A. Conklin went to Wysox today where she will be the guest of friends. Miss Gertrude Spellman is attending the teachers' institute at Towanda this week.

Howard Cole and mother, Mrs. W. H. Shaw, came to Athens from West Troy yesterday. Miss Clara Dailey has been visiting at the Laters' and returned to Mill City today.

Fred Hosmer spent Sunday with his family in Athens, returning to Towanda this morning. Miss Flora Lung of East Athens, is in Towanda in attendance at the teachers' institute.

Preparations are all made for the harvest supper at the Presbyterian church next Friday evening. Miss Clara Bull went to Lake Wesaaking this morning to spend a week with her grandmother Lent.

The Misses Bessie and Ethel Rikert and Grace Mason went to Towanda this morning to attend the teacher's institute. Mrs. W. S. Reynolds of Powell, who has been visiting Mrs. Sherman Dubois, Ferry street, over Sunday, returned home this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Wilson of Elmira, have been visiting at the home of H. E. Walker, and this morning went to Monroeton where they will stay for a few days. Dr. R. A. Torrey, the noted evangelist, will hold meetings in the West Presbyterian church at Binghamton Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. We give this notice as there are persons in this vicinity that desired to hear him.

A rousing Emery meeting was held at East Smithfield Saturday night. The meeting was presided over by O. B. Sumner, a lifelong Republican, and speeches were made by Hon. R. S. Edmiston and others. The farmers came from far and near and great enthusiasm prevailed. E. F. Loomis took a ride with a friend Saturday and went to Keeler Hollow for a hunt. He captured his game, a fine lot of squirrels, but failed to make connection with the conveyance in which he was to return home and so had five miles to "hoof it" through the mud. He enjoyed his game supper yesterday all the more for the self denial and trial it cost him.

Next Sunday morning Oct. 14, there will be an old folks' service held in the Presbyterian church, and they request all old people of their congregation and all others who desire to attend. Carriages will be furnished and will call for those who are too feeble to walk. Anyone desiring to avail themselves of this privilege will be called for if they will report their desires to Rev. von Tobel during the week. JEROME WHITE

Athens.—Jerome White died at his home, 103 South Elmira street, at 10:07 this forenoon, aged 86 years. He was born in Liberty, Sullivan county, N. Y., but came to Athens township with his parents when only five years old, settling on Suttiff Hill, where his earlier years were spent. He was a carpenter and millwright by trade and was an active, industrious man up to a short time ago, when he was obliged to give up all work. His wife died April 7, 1904, after they had enjoyed a prosperous married life of 55 years. Two sons survive him, J. Alanson White of Athens and Fred J. White of Chicago. Also a brother, Russel White, of Athens, and a sister, Mrs. Cynthia Aldred, of Spencer, are still living. The funeral will take place from his late residence Wednesday at 2 p. m., Rev. F. L. Allen of the Baptist church (of which Mr. White was a member) officiating. Burial at Tioga Point cemetery.

SECOND ATTEMPT A SUCCESS. At a little after 12 o'clock last night fire broke out in the J. I. Elsbrce house formerly occupied by the Italian family, 234 Chestnut street, and it burned to the ground. This is the same house that was set on fire a few weeks ago and was saved from destruction. But this time they made a thorough job of it, and it is a mass of smoldering ruins this morning. The fire occurred at midnight, and it seemed a long time before the firemen could be aroused. The lower fire bell rang first and No. 1 company responded, but after laying all of the hose they had it did not reach the fire. No. 3 came later and extended the line and the surrounding houses were saved. There was no living in the house and of course the fire is the work of an incendiary. There was no insurance.

SEVERELY INJURED. Athens.—About 7 o'clock last evening as H. F. Johnson and wife were on North street on their way to church they heard someone moaning. On going into the yard of Daniel Vanloan they found that Mrs. Vanloan had fallen from the steps to the sidewalk and was unable to get up. She was carried into the house and a physician summoned. Her hip was broken at the joint and she was otherwise severely injured. Dr. Holcomb attended to her injuries and today she is resting quite comfortably.

DEADLY BOA CONSTRICTOR CAUSES PANIC IN A CAR. Giant Reptile Escapes from Case and Prisoner Passengers Fight to Escape--Snake Finally Subdued by Tamer.

Elgin, Ill.—A huge boa constrictor loose in the express compartment of an interurban car en route from this city to Geneva created a panic among the prisoners in the compartment under escort of Chief of Police James Younger and officers from this city and was followed by a battle with the prisoners who endeavored to escape.

Harry Thorne, one of the prisoners, narrowly escaped death by the reptile. The python was one of a collection of snakes in three cases being shipped to Joliet, where a street fair is in progress. Shortly after the car started from Elgin Officer Higgins was disturbed by a movement of the lid of a box on which he was seated. Raising to discover the cause of the trouble he was amazed at the appearance of the head of an enormous snake gradually forcing its way from the interior of the case.

The snake was observed by some of the prisoners at the same time and a general rush was made for the car door. Here the other police officers, headed by Chief Younger, held the men at bay. A few minutes later the snake stretched its length of 14 feet on the floor of the car. In an instant it had clasped Harry Thorne within its coils. The giant reptile tightened on the unfortunate man and was slowly crushing him when the owner of the snake appeared in the compartment, attracted from another portion of the car by the commotion.

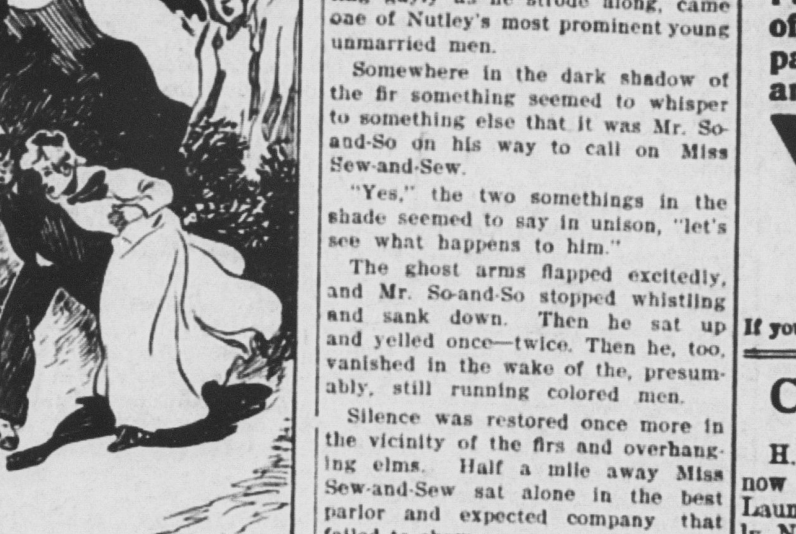

The Giant Reptile Wrapped Itself Around Thorne's Body.

IN A LITTLE NEW JERSEY TOWN. "Brave" Young Men of Nutley Frightened by Shrouded Spectre--Latter Meets Its Waterloo at Hands of Church Section.

Newark, N. J.—Five miles out from this city, in the little town of Nutley, a grove of deep, overhanging elms marks the intersection of Grant and Passaic avenues. Not a house is in sight for blocks around. A gateway leads into a field across which a path takes you off into the backwoods. Few signs of civilization are visible from Grant and Passaic avenues. Looking down through the avenue of overhanging elms in the direction of the Methodist church, one can see where the elms end and the first begin; low, stunted fir trees with fantastic shapes and outstretched fingers which appear to reach out ready to clutch the timid passer by after dusk. It is an ideal lurking place for a ghost.

So, at least, thought Elsie Symonds, daughter of George Symonds, the civil engineer, and her brother Royal, Royal is 15. There is only a year or so difference between his age and his sister's, and this, combined with the necessity of living in the suburbs somewhat off the beaten path, made excellent chums of them, always eager for the excitement which rarely came to Nutley, and always ready to invent a new amusement when things got fearfully slow. Returning to the intersection of Grant and Passaic avenues; it did not take Miss Elsie and Brother Royal very long to notice this as an ideal lurking place for a ghost and to decide that the spot was worth developing. Their home is not far away from there. It is the nearest house to the corner, in fact, so the children had every opportunity to carry out their plans without much fear of detection.

First it was only a simple little ghost story they told. Royal supplying the curdles, about a wild, flapping specter that moaned and shrieked, somewhere down near the stunted firs. That was several weeks ago. Nobody else had seen the ghost, and the story didn't make the slightest impression, even in Nutley, at first. A few nights later two young men belonging to that race which above all others feeds upon superstition, came
