ATTEMPT TO LAY TRACKS PREVENTED

Firemen Arrive and Stop Italians Who Were Laying Trolley Rails on West Broad Street

Waverly—Last night about 11:30 an attempt was made to connect the street car tracks of the Waverly, Sayre & Athens Traction Company with those of the Elmira, Corning and Waverly company at the corner of Broad and Chemung streets. The vigilance of the village officials was responsible for the failure of the scheme. About 300 Italians and several teams were engaged in the work, but they broke for cover when the fire department arrived in full force prepared to do business.

About 8 o'clock last night one of the trustees was informed that an attempt would be made that night to put the track through. He notified President Lawrence, who immediately communicated with Chief of Police Brooks. They held a conference, and two special officers, Jerome Bennett and Frank McHenry, were sent to the scene of the expected encroachment with instructions to watch and if any attempt was made to lay the track to call out the fire department. The officers went to the scene of the trouble shortly after 9 o'clock and found everything still in its orderly condition.

President Lawrence, as the hour grew late, also went to that part of town so as to be present when the operations were commenced. At about 11:30 o'clock the road was suddenly filled with a crowd of Italians. A large number of teams drawing rails and ties also put in an appearance. W. E. Case, superintendent of the W. S. & A. Traction Co. was present and directed the work. Special officer Bennett ran to the nearest fire alarm box and turned in an alarm. President Lawrence then appeared on the scene and ordered the gang that had begun digging in the road to stop. This they refused to do. The Italians protested that they were not bossing the job but were only working for the money.

When the fire alarm sounded the members of the department all over town gathered at the hose houses and took their apparatus to the scene of the trouble. The hook and ladder was the first to arrive. When the truck approached the corner where the work was being done, one of the bosses ran out and shouted something. Every Italian was seen to straighten up suddenly, and when the truck came within the field of their vision every last son of old Italy started for the tall timbers on a double quick. The yells of the firemen seemed to accelerate their speed, and they ran without any reference to direction other than leading away from the immediate vicinity of the track, which they seemed to think was an agent of sudden and complete destruction. They fell over scrapers, ran against horses, fell down and mixed up in a general melee.

The truck was placed directly across the sidewalk where the track would come through. The hose companies were close behind, and laid lines of hose, and made everything ready in case the departed workmen regained their courage sufficiently to come back. No further attempt was made to lay any more track in the street, but they did come back and laid the track from the point where the track had already been put in, up to the street line.

A wireman was sent up a pole, however, and it seemed that he was going to cut the trolley wire so as to swing it over the proposed new line. He was told to come down, but refused to do so. The nozzle of a hose was turned on him, and a shout went up for water. Mr. Case who stood at the foot of the pole, then told the man that he had better come down, which he did forthwith and with great alacrity.

The firemen stayed at the scene of the trouble all night, built bonfires and kept in as good spirits as the chilly atmosphere would permit. At eight o'clock this morning the village trustees held a meeting and authorized the president to obtain an injunction, restraining the companies from laying the piece of track and also to employ men to guard the street at that point and prevent any further attempt that might be made before the injunction could be secured. The men armed with riot guns were stationed at the corner to forestall any further work in the highway.

President Lawrence and village attorney Bell went to Binghamton this morning to appear before Judge Lyon and secure an injunction as had been authorized.

The attempt to lay the track did not come to many of the citizens as a surprise, as some such attempt was anticipated. Some time ago the company asked the privilege of double tracking Broad street from Fulton to Chemung. The village trustees passed a resolution granting the franchise on condition that Broad street be paved from the end of the present pavement to Chemung street, and that the company pay the amount that would ordinarily be assessed against the company, and a sum extra amounting to about 20 per cent. of the total pavement. The company failed to accept the franchise within the prescribed time, although Mr. Rogers the president, had expressed himself before that time as well satisfied with a franchise that should contained such conditions.

SAYRE ITEMS

Emma Bunting at the Loomis all next week.

"The Irish Pawnbrokers" at the Loomis this evening.

Large crowds are attending the sale of jewelry at the store of F. W. G. Bartlett.

After settling up the accounts and paying all bills the Towanda Fair Association will have a handsome sum left in the treasury.

Lewis Emery, Jr. and his party of campaigners passed through Sayre today, enroute for Towanda, where he addressed the big mass meeting.

Miss Emma Bunting, the well known comedienne, and an excellent company, will present an entirely new line of plays at Loomis Opera House all next week.

The cold weather has been a boom for trade in fall goods. Underwear, overcoats, and winter clothing of all kinds have sold readily since the temperature took a drop.

The Lutheran church services will be held in the P. O. S. of A. hall tomorrow. The church edifice has been undergoing repairs and the furnace has not yet been installed.

The freight traffic on the Lehigh Valley is the heaviest in years, and it is coming so fast that the freight men are hardly able to handle it. Extra men have been added to both the day and night forces along the line. The extra rush is due to the big shipments of fall merchandise.

The employees of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company in this section will receive their monthly pay checks on next Monday. The majority of the men have been making good time recently and some of the checks will be exceedingly large, and particularly gratifying to those who receive them.

The woods are said to be full of hunters, and local sportsmen are enjoying the best of luck in hunting for squirrels. There is considerable peril attached to hunting, however, and amateurs especially should use great care. Already in various parts of the state fatal accidents have been reported.
