ATHENS MAN SOLVES SERIOUS PROBLEM

Invents Apparatus for Safely Handling Heavy Ammunition

One of the most serious problems with which the navy has had to contend is adequate provision for rapidly and safely handling the heavy shells used in ordnance of large caliber, particularly projectiles for 12 and 13-inch guns. These mighty shells are three feet long and weigh about 900 pounds. A premature explosion in the turret of a battleship would certainly kill many persons and might possibly sink the vessel. Hitherto the navy has lacked just the right mechanical device to carry heavy ammunition from the magazines in the lower part of a battleship to the turrets where the big guns are placed. Many of the brightest minds of the world have been endeavoring to solve this problem in mechanics, but it has remained for an Athens inventor to work it out to a practical conclusion.

Mr. Caid H. Peck, superintendent of the machine department of the Imperial Tool works, began to investigate the matter last February, and he has succeeded in perfecting a machine that will do the work and it has already been approved by some of the officers of the United States navy.

A Record representative had the privilege of witnessing the operation of this machine Saturday and as far as his observation goes it is complete and does its work well and satisfactorily. The machine is set up in the rear yard of the Imperial Tool works and Mr. Peck and C. F. Kellogg gave a demonstration of what it can do. Its construction is a solid frame work about 30 feet long with an upper cable and carriage-way that carries a grappling machine from the magazine to a circular turret on which a car truck is placed to rescue the shells and carry them into the breech of the guns. The shells are in three tiers that hold 84 projectiles and they pass down on inclined planes to a bed where they are held secure under the grappling machine. This machine is of bronze and opens up like an immense human hand and clasps itself around the shell. Then the attendant merely pulls a string and the shell is raised up to the top of the conduit and carried to the place of deposit, where by pulling another cord the shell is lowered and released into the carriage where it is loaded into the gun. The machinery is all operated by compressed air applied to motors of Mr. Peck's own invention, and the work is done so quickly and easily that it seems almost as if it was done by an unseen hand.

When Mr. Peck completed his plans he sent them to the War department, where the device was approved. He has since built a full sized machine and a commission of experts from the Navy department will be in Athens in a few days to witness its operation. The device is installed in two of the large battleships now building, if their report shall be favorable.

Michael O'Hara of Athens and John Nash of Sayre went to Scranton today as witnesses against William Paul, who is charged with robbing a registered letter of $80, April 10. The mail agent on No. 4 failed to catch the pouch at Falls and it was thrown under the wheels and the contents were strewn all along the track. William Paul was working for O'Hara at the time, and in going along the tracks picked up the registered letter and took the money from it, returning the envelope to the side of the track. Mail Detective Lucas worked the case up and finally the boy confessed to taking the money. The case comes before the United States court at this session.

Mrs. Harry Stonier lost a valuable pin between the M. E. church and her home on North Main street last evening. It was in the shape of a lily with a rhinestone setting. Anyone finding it will confer a favor by returning it.

The fender of trolley car No. 53 struck Miss Stimson's little pet white dog while passing the Stimson house about 9:30 o'clock this morning. One hind leg was broken twice in the thigh so that the bone protruded out of the wound. They were obliged to chloroform the dog.

A letter from the chief clerk of the department of the G. A. R., Philadelphia, states that Assistant Adjutant General Saydam is in a very critical condition from his fall while attending the Ulster encampment. He has not been able to go to his office since he returned to Philadelphia.

Miss Ethel Rikert spent Sunday at her home in Athens, returning to her school in LeRoy this morning.

E. J. Denton with his wife and daughter of Sparrows Point, Md., are visiting friends in Athens and Sayre.

Miss Lillian Cortright of Towanda visited her parents in Athens on Sunday, returning this morning.

Jay Harris came home from Wilkes-Barre to spend Sunday with his family in East Athens, returning this morning.

Miss Izora Osborne of Wyoming Seminary was in Athens to spend Sunday with her parents, returning to her studies this morning.

E. A. Gillette went to Chicago last evening to attend the American Gas company convention. He will stop over at Marion, Ind., to visit George N. Tidd.

Mrs. Gottleib Essenwine went to Towanda this morning to make arrangements to move her household goods to Athens, where they will hereafter reside.

Fred Hosmer is making arrangements to move his family to Towanda, where he is now employed in the Frost furniture manufactory. He will move this week if he succeeds in selling his furniture.

THE OLD RELIABLE PIANO AND MUSIC HOUSE—D. S. ANDRUS & CO.

Piano Bargains Extraordinary!

SEVERAL TIMES DURING THE YEAR D. S. Andrus & Co are enabled to quote some phenomenally low prices on slightly used or rented pianos. Just at present we have several that are indeed bargains. The best part of it all is they cannot be told from new, for there are no marks on them, and they have been in careful families. Buying one of these pianos is not an experiment, for D. S. Andrus & Co. stand back of every piano they sell. They could not afford to do otherwise. Their forty-six years of piano selling in this vicinity has demonstrated their reliability, honesty and business integrity. The D. S. Andrus & Co. has instituted an

by which any man or woman who cannot afford to pay cash for a piano can own one, and that easily and without paying any interest. So by this plan nearly every home can have music. This easy payment system was originated for the benefit of the workingman, and has proven popular. Terms are such as to meet the convenience of the purchaser. Read over this list and come in our store and see them. It is NO TROUBLE TO SHOW THEM:
