CORTLAND WAS AWAKE

C. E. Hughes Welcomed With Brass Bands and March Band Fire. CORTLAND, N. Y., Oct. 25.—With a profusion of red fire, with brass bands and much cheering, Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate for governor, was welcomed in Cortland last night. The streets about the opera house were blocked with people who had vainly endeavored to obtain admission to the crowded opera house. The demonstration in his honor led Mr. Hughes in his opera house address to say: "It is very evident that Cortland is awake. There is no apathy or lack of political interest here. All we desire in this fight is that the people of New York shall be awake to the importance of the issue and shall do their duty according to their conscience."

Next there was a stop of an hour at Binghamton while the candidate's car was being transferred to another railroad. He will speak in Binghamton this afternoon. At Whitecay Point, Mr. Hughes made a five minute address and at Marathon spoke a few words to a crowd at the depot. Marathon furnished one of the most unique features of the campaign. Welcoming the candidate was a band of seven pieces, all the players members of the same family. The father played the bass horn, the mother a cornet and the five children the other instruments. Marathon was the last stop before Cortland was reached.

COMMUNICATED

LILLEY'S SAYRE SPEECH

Editor The Valley Record:

Orator Lilley has been heard again in Sayre. He said he was here to repudiate certain slanders. He then proceeded in a pitiable and disconnected way to praise himself and abuse those opposed to him. What did he repudiate?

Lilley and the Tobacco Trust.

This is one of the ways he "repudiated" the often repeated statement that he did not stand by Roosevelt; he said he voted against Roosevelt's recommendation to reduce the Philippine tariff on tobacco for two reasons "Because I don't want a Philippine savage, who uses only shoe strings, to be placed on an equal with Americans, and because I propose to stand by the tobacco producer."

Of the first statement I wonder if there is another Congressman who would be guilty of uttering on the stump such an absolutely silly, ridiculous and illogical statement to an intelligent audience.

The other reason for voting against Mr. Roosevelt was more foxy; a regular Lilley statement. It was quite sure that would catch them, because he said he would do it again. Why did Roosevelt want a reduction on Philippine tobacco and why did Lilley vote against him? Here is the reason: Looming up like a mighty giant between the owner of the field product on the one hand and the consumer of the manufactured article on the other, is the United States Tobacco Trust. This highway robber has the farmer by the throat with its right hand and the consumer with its left. He forces the dollar out of the farmer by keeping down the price of the field product, and the dollars out of the consumer by keeping up consumer of the manufactured article. Roosevelt saw this, but Lilley stood by him by voting against him and now thinking they have forgotten the Trust, he impudently tells them he did it for their interests. Did Thom. Fortune Ryan, of New York City, head of the Tobacco Trust, see Lilley before the vote?

"Cold Cash."

Lilley actually filled up with tears when he said in a broken voice "cold cash is all that is against me in this campaign." Let us see about this. "What a sight was here my countrymen," Boss Lilley weeping because the use of cash in politics. George W. Kipp has earned every dollar he has, he knows the value of a dollar and whatever he may use in this campaign is for legitimate purposes and not a dollar besides. This is true for two reasons: First George W. Kipp knows absolutely nothing about what Mr. Lilley has done to a science, and what is commonly known as "practical politics" and he could not use a corruption fund if he were so inclined; he is not built that way. What about Lilley? Lilley was a poor ("advisably") lawyer at Canton but a few years since. He then went into politics. He soon became and is still the Gang's representative in Bradford county. Now this Gang has had the people of Pennsylvania by the throat for a quarter of a century. They are the political managers for the robber trust in this state. The reason they have kept in power so long is because they have used millions of trust plunder to debauch the state.

From a very, very ("advisedly") poor lawyer a few short years ago he has developed into a rich politician. They used to ask an impudent question of Boss Crocker of Tammany Hall, they still ask it of Boss Murphy; it would be unkind to ask Boss Lilley where he got it. And yet Lilley whines about "Cold Cash."

Lilley and the Record.

Lilley plays The Valley Record. He says it was for him and flogged, and a lot of other abuse. The Record says he is a liar. Impossible? We don't know the facts in the dispute, but in common with every reader of The Valley Record since its first publication we can testify that The Record has been constantly and all the time against the Gang and Boss Lilley. We think that fact is generally admitted.

On this one point of controversy we think the people who have read The Record since its publication in Sayre will be inclined to agree with it.

Lilley and Labor.

Lilley says his record is favorable to labor. Gumpers says it is not. Lilley says he was a good blacksmith. If that be true then fate played false to the people of this district, by spoiling a good blacksmith to make a mighty poor congressman. He tried hard to make a hit with the Sayre workmen. He told them how he loved Speaker Cannon. Perhaps he does, but American labor whose representatives Cannon insulted last spring, do not. They place Cannon on the front of a list of Congressmen whom they styled "The enemies of labor."

It was unlike the foxy Lilley to make the break on Cannon, but the Sayre Times helped him out by cutting the Cannon hash out of his speech.

Lilley and employes passes! What was the nigger in this fence. For years the railroads have been giving passes to the members of both the national and state legislative bodies, a very large proportion of the membership of which was lawyers. The railroad companies looked upon many of these as being retained by these passes. Indeed many of them elected to represent the people represented only the railroad company. This was one of the evils aimed at in the passage of the Railroad Rate Bill. The grafting lawyers saw that this would not do; they would lose their passes and with them would go most of their graft.

So they concoct a little scheme to fool the laborer. Lilley came to Sayre and got the railroad employes to help him. This clause was finally cut from the bill. Now any lawyer of the Lilley type may ride on a pass and the people may go hang.

This is how it is done. The railroad can simply engage their services. They then become the employes of the road and their retainer fee is their pass. Mr. Lilley came to Sayre and advertised that he was doing this out of love for the men who work for the railroad.

The grafting lawyers of congress, of the Lilley type seeing their passes slipping away from them, and under the pretense of loving the laboring man, took this method of protecting themselves. You may see that Mr. Lilley in this, as in other of his wily moves, had Lilley's interests in mind all the time.

Kipp and Lilley.

Lilley thinks he is an orator. Kipp thinks he is a plain business man. Lilley is sad because Kipp won't argue with him. If the disconnected jargon gotten off by Lilley in his speech at Sayre is a fair sample of his oratory, it is too bad Kipp will not orate with him. Lilley says Kipp won't talk. Well we cannot accuse Lilley of that.

In conclusion we wish to say that this article is written without the knowledge or consent of any one except the author.

It is the gratuitous protest of a voter who is neither an office seeker, nor a defeated candidate; nor is there any "cold cash" in it. Mr. Kipp does not know anything about it, nor will he know until he sees it in the paper. The writer has no axe to grind, nor any political scores to settle. These lines are penned to explode some political bubbles of the "Easy Boss" of this congressional district.

Independent Voter.

TEE STATE CAPITOL

It is stated that the newly erected State Capitol at Harrisburg cost $4,000,000, and that it was completed within the amount of the original appropriation and a surplus turned back to the State Treasury. It is further stated that the State Capitol in New York and the City Hall in Philadelphia are no better or finer buildings and they cost over $20,000,000.—Susquehanna Ledger.

What a cheerful liar our esteemed contemporary is! Everybody knows that the state capitol cost $13,000,000 and a paper that tries to whitewash the job makes a monkey of itself. The building cost a little less than $4,000,000 and the furnishings cost $9,000,000. What do you think of that? Over $800 was paid for the flag staff, which the Cramp Shipbuilding Co. offer to duplicate for $75. What do you think of that? Isn't whitewash needed?—Laceyville Messenger.
