Newspaper Men Interview Great Christian Scientist.

SAYS GOD IS HER ONLY PHYSICIAN

Is Said, Revealed a Tottering Old Weman Weak Almost to Helplessness.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 31 .- A committee of eleven newspaper correspondents were admitted to see Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy at her home in Pleasantview, near here. Through a spokeswoman, selected by H. Cornell Wilson of Mrs. Eddy's publicity staff they were permitted to ask her a few questions, the interview lasting less than

The interviewers, it is said, saw in Mrs. Eddy a tottering old woman, who clung to the door jamb to keep herself in an apright position during the brief time she looked into the parior where woman whose voice was strained and wavering. Her face was thin and were noticeably deep sunken. Her hands, with which she supported herself by grasping the sides of the doorway, were small and thin. The inirmitles of a woman of eighty-six were painfully apparent. The interview with Mrs. Eddy consisted of questions prepared in advance for Mrs. Sybil Wilbur O'Brien, representing a magazine, to ask her. The first question put to Mrs. Eddy was, Mrs. Eddy, are you in perfect bodily

"What?" said Mrs. Eddy in a high pitched voice, common to those who are hard of hearing.

Mrs. O'Brien repeated the question, aising her voice a couple of tones. "Yes," said Mrs. Eddy in her high itched voice, "I am well." "Mrs. Eddy," sald Mrs. O'Brien, "have you any other physician than God?"

"What? What's that?" queried Mrs. Eddy, still with her voice pitched high. Mrs. O'Brien spoke much louder in repeating the question, and Mrs. Eddy, momentarily releasing her hold on the door jamb, made a gesture with her left arm and said in a quavering voice: "No, I have no other physician than God. I am in the supporting arms of the ever living God."

As she uttered these words Mrs. Eddy turned halfway around toward Calvin A. Frye, her private secretary, who, dressed in a drab colored suit of livery with metal buttons, stood directly behind her. As she turned about the voice of Mrs. Eddy was raised again in "That is enough; it is Mrs. O'Brien had some more ques

"Yes, yes," she called out, and then she turned from the door leading to the parlor and supporting herself by putting one hand against the wall and the other against the door jamb start-ed with feeble steps toward her carriage, which was at the front door ready for her to take her drive about

At the very threshold of the door Mr. Frye, who had preceded with his outstretched hands over the two or three feet of distance, threw out his arms and grasped Mrs. Eddy on one side. On her hair there rested a round, small bonnet, with white trimmings on it, like a bonnet that a bride of twenty years might covet for her going away hat, the general ensemble being irresistibly suggestive of a girl bride, all but the kindly old face of the woman swaying back and forth in the doorway, for it seemed impossible for Mrs. Eddy to remain upright despite the support which her hands on either jamb of the door afforded her.

Mrs. Eddy was present in the doorway less than one full minute.

NEGRO COACHMAN GUILTY.

Clifford Hooe Convicted of Perjury at Hartje Trial.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 31.-Clifford Hoce, the negro formerly coachman for Augustus Hartje, was convicted of perjury in connection with a deposition against Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje and which formed the basis of the recent sensational Hartje divorce trial. Only one ballot was taken by the jury, and Derailed Train Planed Down Many in half an hour the verdict was an-

The closing features of the case were sensational and exciting in the extreme. The attorneys during the argu ments attacked one another indiscriminately with accusations, and during the address of Assistant District Attorney Robb the negro defendant jumped from his seat and shouted that the attorney

Attorney J. Scott Ferguson addressed the jury for the defense, making an impassioned appeal for the negro and criticising Assistant District Attorney Robb

Attorney Ferguson said the case was the most remarkable ever tried in Allegheny county.

All he asked from the court and jury was what the president of the United States gives every man, be he white or black, "a square deal."

He referred to the fact that Hooe's deposition had not been used in the divorce case and, after reciting the defendant's allegations of his treatment by the detectives, appealed to the jurors to keep in mind the terrors of the "third degree," telling them they might some day be the victims of an army of private detectives.

Mr. Robb in closing the case for the state scored not only the defendant, but also his counsel, being interrupted time and again, on one occasion Mr. Ferguson giving notice that he would apply for a new trial because of Mr. Robb's remarks.

Judge R. S. Frazer's charge to the jury was an impartial review of the aw and evidence, and thus ended a trial which for scandal has seldom if ever been equaled in Pittsburg.

The negro coachman was charged with perjury in swearing to improper relations with Mrs. Hartje.
