George McKenzie of the Towanda Review, formerly of the Binghamton Press, was in Waverly last Saturday night.

COME OUT AND VOTE

Waverly—Tomorrow will witness the end of one of the hottest campaigns that has ever taken place in the Empire state, and it is the duty of every man who is entitled to do so to come out and express himself in the most effective way that is open to the American citizen. No matter what your politics may be or what you believe with regard to the relative merits of the respective candidates it will do no good unless you come forward and avail yourself of your sovereign right to take part in and help determine what the policy of the nation, state or county shall be.

ELECTION RETURNS

Waverly—The election returns will be received at the local office of the Binghamton Press tomorrow evening and will be thrown upon a canvass that will be stretched against the building on the opposite side of the street.

Manager Watrous announces that the returns will be received at the opera house in connection with the Herald Square moving pictures that will be shown there tomorrow evening.

PERSONAL MENTION

H. L. Gillispie was in Towanda yesterday.

Mrs. Robert Dilmore is visiting friends at Laceyville.

Mrs. Robert Leonard will go to Buffalo tomorrow for a week's visit.

Dr. A. A. Steero of New York City is visiting at the home of C. L. Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Maynard drove to Towanda yesterday to visit friends and relatives.

Mrs. John Casselbury of Hughesville is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Ring of North Lehigh Avenue.

Why don't the Daily Times publish that Gompers letter? That is the best evidence as to how Mial Lilley stands with the laboring man.

The days of Lilley's snap methods are nearly over. The voters will see that he has no further opportunity to resort to deceit after tomorrow.

Herman Jenkins, who has been at his home in Pittston for the past few days, returned to his duties in Kasper's restaurant today. Mr. Jenkins has been on the sick list.

E. J. Crow of Binghamton and Wm. C. Gore of Conning, detectives in the employ of the Erie, were guests yesterday of Mr. Gore's father, C. F. Gore of North Wilbur avenue.

LOCAL NEWS

"Over Niagara Falls" is the attraction at the Opera House this evening.

The close of the campaign is here and still the Gompers' letter in which he asserts that Mial Lilley is unfair to labor has not been denied. The fake labor paper failed to do this and no one realizes it more than Lilley.

Tomorrow is election day. So far as this congressional district is concerned it is a question whether the people are to be represented, or whether we are to have a congressman who will represent the gang and all its crookedness.

Announcement is made of the marriage at Jersey City on Saturday, Nov. 3, of Miss Emma Laux, of Sayre and Peter McGraw of Athens. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this valley and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

About fifty of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Parks gathered at their pleasant home in Milltown on Saturday evening to assist them in celebrating their fifteenth wedding anniversary. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Parks were presented a handsome sideboard. All present enjoyed a most delightful evening which was spent in music and games.

Don't forget the Herald Square Moving Picture entertainment at the Loomis tomorrow afternoon and evening. A bag of candy will be given free to every child. In the evening a gold watch, now on exhibition in Walter Ware's window, is to be given to the person holding the lucky number. During the entertainment election returns will be furnished.

The gang has become scantified. Recently they have conceived wonderful love for church people especially those of the Presbyterian persuasion. The gang wants its candidate for governor elected because he is a clean Christian gentleman and a communicant of the Presbyterian church. But how can he be clean and tied up to the gang? There must be a mistake somewhere.

UNIONISM (?) OF THE DAILY TIMES

Inspired by Inborn Hatred for Common Decency, That Sheet Villifies The Record in a Column of Screeed

In an attempt to controvert the indisputable evidence that shows the unfair attitude of Boss Lilley toward labor, Saturday's issue of the Times contains some of the rankest contributions to the local campaign that have been made by the organ of the "gang."

In recent issues of The Valley Record appeared a fac-simile reproduction of a letter written by President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor in which that well known labor leader declared Lilley to be "decidedly unfair to labor." Notwithstanding such evidence as this letter, the Times brazenly sets up a howl that Lilley is all right on the labor question, and leaves the reader to infer that Mr. Gompers is all wrong.

One of the stunts which the Times did in attempting to nullify the disastrous effect that the publication of the Gompers letter has had upon Boss Lilley's return to congress, was to publish a long and abusive tirade calculated to poison the minds of workmen against The Valley Record, and incidentally to lead an unsuspecting person to think that the Times is the only simon-pure friend of labor in this valley.

The article contains extracts from the report of an organizer made to the head officials of the Typographical union. Then follow some of the insincere arguments for which the Times is noted, and in conclusion is a false and venomous attack on a printer who was secretary of the Sayre union up to the time the charter was surrendered. The animus which prompts such ebullitions in the Times is so well known to the public at large that The Record could well afford to pass this latest effusion by in silence, but the Times makes a few breaks about other matters pertaining to labor that call for attention at this time.

In order that the workingman may understand the matter clearly, it is pertinent to summarize briefly the events and circumstances that led up to the surrendering of the charter of Sayre Typographical union. The Record has on file the correspondence between the secretary of the local union and the general secretary of the International union, and extends a cordial invitation to all workmen and members of labor unions to call at this office and look over the correspondence. It is too long for the limited space of The Record to print.

The dissension that resulted in the disbanding of Sayre Typographical union had its beginning through jealousy that arose in the Times outfit when the publisher of The Record first announced his intention of locating in Sayre. Townspeople will recall that a job printing business was conducted a couple of years by the proprietor of this paper before The Record was started. That little job office what they had not had previously—first-class, workmanlike product, prompt delivery, and courteous, business-like treatment—absolutely the same to every patron regardless of his social standing or the cut of his clothes.

The little job office was a union office too. At the earnest solicitation of a number of the best business men in the town, The Valley Record was started on the 8th of May, 1905; it was a union paper too, and carried the union label at the head of its editorial column. The proprietor of The Record was a member of the union and carried a working card showing him to be in good standing. At no time from May 8, 1905, until Saturday, Nov. 3, 1906, did the Times carry the union label at the head of its editorial column. Why? It is one of the laws of the typographical union that the proprietor of a union office who works at the trade on work bearing the label must be a member of the union. The typographical union concedes the right of a proprietor to work in his own office on matter that does not bear the union label. The proprietor of the Times was not a member of the union for the simple reason that the members did not want him to be. Accordingly if he chose to work on his newspaper he must keep the label out of it. That explains the reason why the Times appeared as a "rat" paper so long.

The fact that The Record printed the union label at its masthead was the principal cause for the burning jealousy that consumed the Times outfit and that finally led to such bickering among the members of the local union that the self-respecting element in the union lost interest, and the outcome was the surrender of the charter and the relinquishment of agreements for the eight-hour day that had been signed by The Record and by the Times.

In the correspondence regarding the disbandment of the local union, the causes that produced the result are laid at the door of the Times outfit and at the hand of a loud-mouthed "organizer" who took sides in the controversy that had been going on among the members of the union. If this organizer had only possessed sufficient tact he would have speedily obtained signatures to eight-hour agreements from most of the printing office proprietors in this valley, for there was no particular opposition to the eight-hour movement in this valley at that time.

But when he attempted to ride rough shod over the employing printers and the members of the local union, he tackled a proposition he couldn't handle. A majority of the members of the union were thoroughly disgusted with his tactics and turned him down cold in a letter to the head officials of the Typographical union that was dated March 2, 1906. That letter is signed by a majority of the members of the union. In a letter of the same date the local secretary notified the International union secretary that he had sent in the eight-hour agreements, the charter, all books, paraphernalia, etc., together with the balance that was on deposit in a local bank to the credit of the union. The local secretary also asked what disposition was to be made of the electrotyped union labels—the same kind of a union label that appeared in the Times in its issue of last Saturday.

Under date of March 6, the local secretary received a reply to his letter of March 2, from J. W. Bramwood, secretary-treasurer of the International union, acknowledging the receipt of the eight-hour agreements, with the statement that the agreements were void since the local union no longer had existence. The following reference to the labels is quoted from the letter: "In order to properly close up the affairs of No. 413, all labels should be returned to me (Bramwood) The use of the label in any of the towns over which your local had control, is now illegal, since its charter has been surrendered. Please forward the labels with the least possible delay." The local secretary did not care to go to the Times office after the labels, but he did collect them from all the other union offices in the valley and sent them on to Mr. Bramwood. In acknowledging the receipt of labels the local secretary had collected, Mr. Bramwood wrote under date of March 17, as follows: "I have today written the proprietor of the Times of Sayre, instructing him to turn over the labels in his possession to you or ship them direct to me without delay."

These labels were never turned over to the local secretary, and were they ever sent in direct to headquarters by the Times. They were retained by that office and used repeatedly by the Times since, notwithstanding that there has been no union in this valley since March 2, 1906. The Times will undoubtedly set up the claim that the two members of the union working in that office have been paying per capita tax into the head office at Indianapolis, and the Times may even assert that it has some authority for using a label. But how can any office in this valley legally use the label of the old Sayre union, which is defunct?

The proprietor of the Times may also set forth the claim that he is a member of the union now. He might even be paying dues into the International, but that will not make him a member of the Sayre union, nor entitle him to the use of the label of the Sayre union, according to good union practice.

This is not the first time that the proprietor of the Times has set himself up as the foremost apostle of trades unionism in this valley. He was a great union man when the Sayre Typographical union was formed a few years ago—yet he was never a member of the Sayre union, and it is a matter of fact that the very men who worked for him when the union was formed would not run any chances by taking him into membership. Now that Sayre union is disbanded he sees the opportunity of a lifetime to get under cover.

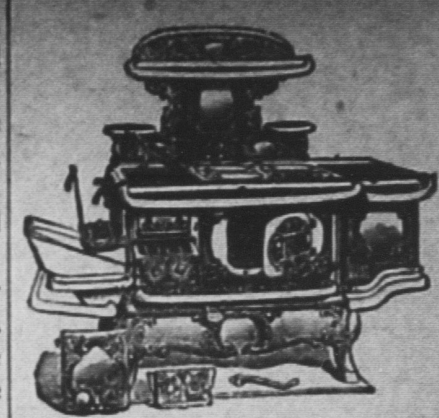

How about the record of the Times on unionism when a certain great strike was in progress at Sayre a number of years ago? If we remember rightly, that sheet was making a frantic effort to straddle both sides of the controversy.

Just a word further—Saturday's Times goes out of its way to jab the former secretary of the Sayre union, stating that this gentleman "was and is now one of the force of printers on the sheet which is claimed to be infallible," etc. The "infallible sheet is The Record, and as a matter of fact the former secretary left the employ of the Record and returned to his native town of Towanda to work on October 27. The Times with its usual sleepiness doesn't know it yet!
