HUNTING PEASANTS AS HUMAN WOLVES

War of Extermination Being Waged by General Orloff in North Russia.

Berlin.—Because of the large number of German subjects living in the Baltic provinces the German Ambassador at St. Petersburg is said to have protested against the ferocious repressions of General Orloff in that part of Russia, which have driven, to take refuge in the woods, hundreds of unfortunate peasants, who are being hunted as human wolves by the local land owners and ruthlessly slain. The human wolves retaliate, and a war of extermination has ensued.

The stories published in the local German press recall the savage age of Sobiesky and the Cossack Kholmitsky, when mutilation before death was the greatest mercy shown to captives.

Carolus Viten, chief of the wolves, boasted that he had killed since January, over forty Russian officials and German burghers. He attacked them as they traveled through the dense pine forests, shot them from behind trees, and divided their horses among his ravenous followers for food. With their money and valuables he entered Mitau in disguise, lived riotously for a week, and returned to the forests drunk with the desire for further murder, plunder and vengeance.

Recently the forest region which formed Viten's lair suddenly became safe for travelers. The bandit had disappeared. The story was that he had fled to Konigsberg with the abducted daughter of his last victim.

The German police sought him, but the Russian police found him. Hacked by a score of Cossacks, they burst on the 15th of September, into a part of the forest where the Czar's army had not been known for a year. A crowd of petty German traders were holding a meeting in a pine grove. And in front of them, his body suspended from a branch, his nose, ears and fingers cut off, was the dead bandit.

They Mutilated Him Horribly and Hung Him to a Tree.

dit. Close by, apostrophizing the victim's body in derisive eulogy, was the uncle of the girl abducted.

Baby Nearly Eaten by Ants. Carmen, O. T.—The officers of Woods county are looking for a covered wagon with a team of gray horses which was seen camped half a mile south of the Skidmore place and was heard going north at about three a. m. It is supposed the child found in a valise in the front yard of Mr. Skidmore was left from this rig. Packed in with the child were some extra clothing, a bottle of medicine, a large package of baby food and a nursing bottle. The child is a girl about a week old, strong and hearty.

AGED WOMAN WALKS TWENTY MILES.

Greenwich, Conn.—Worn out by her exertions a woman more than 80 years old walked into this town at midnight, having made her way on foot from Danbury. To the police she showed a letter making an appointment with State's Attorney Fessen, and explained that to keep the engagement she had walked the 20 miles across country. The old woman was weak from her exertion and explained that she had not stopped since early yesterday morning. She was unable to remember her name. Greenwich officials placed her upon a train and paid her fare to Stamford. There it was found that the strain of her long walk had deranged the aged woman's mind. Officials at Danbury were notified and will send for her.

Earth Growing Warmer.

That the earth is growing temporarily warmer is shown by the mountain glaciers. These are made, by varying temperature and moisture, to increase and diminish in size during periods of years that may be found to be more or less regular cycles, and a period of quite general decrease began about 45 years ago.

Cats Fond of Olives.

A woman in Philadelphia discovered that her six cats are passionately fond of olives. She says they will leave milk or fish or any of the foods that cats are supposed to love if anyone offers them olives. Although they are an acquired taste with human beings, cats seem to take to them naturally.

Peevishness.

Peevishness may be considered the canker of life that destroys its vigor and checks its improvement; that creeps on with hourly depredations and taints and vitiates what it cannot consume.—Johnson.

INTERESTING EGYPTIAN FIND.

Statue of Ancient Goddess Discovered Undisturbed in Shrine.

London.—One of the most striking discoveries that has ever been made in the history of Egyptian exploration has just been made at Deir-el-Bahri by the Egyptian Exploration Fund. The digging in this particular district had been under the immediate superintendence of Dr. E. Naville, and it is owing to his endeavors that the unique statue of an Egyptian goddess has been found undisturbed in her sanctuary, Deir-el-Bahri, where the statue was found, is in the neighborhood of Thebes, the famous historic site of middle Egypt. To the west there rises a line of hills at a short distance from the banks of the Nile;

Statue of Amenhetep.

It is in this low line of hills that the unique discovery has been made. After the removal of a few stones a complete and undamaged chapel was discovered, the roof of which was vaulted and painted blue, and dusted over this blue ground were numbers of yellow stars. Inside this miniature temple stood the undamaged presentation of the goddess Hathor, who was represented as a beautiful cow just stepping between a conventional group of lotus stems.

So lifelike was the representation of the cow that the goddess seemed to be actually emerging from the chapel at the moment that the discoverers had removed the stones which had hidden the entrance since the days when the eleventh dynasty reigned in Egypt. The figure of the cow goddess is executed life-size in painted limestone, the body being a reddish-brown with black spots; the head, horns and part of the body had been gilded. The walls of the little sanctuary are covered with bas-reliefs of Thothmes III, which are expected to reveal many aspects of the Hathor cult which have been previously unknown, and behind the head of the statue is the cartouche of Amenhetep II, the son of Thothmes III. So priceless was the discovery that Dr. Naville at once communicated with the Egyptian government, who proceeded to effectually guard it before removal to the Ghizeh museum at Cairo. The sacred cow has been declared by many critics to be the most perfect specimen of animal life on modern or ancient sculpture.

VIOLATED SCHOOL LAW

Waverly—Warrants were issued for the arrest of Clarence Combs and J. B. Smith yesterday charging them with failure to send their sons to school. The compulsory school law requires children under 16 years of age to attend school. The warrants were issued on the complaint of truant officer Frank Rogers. Smith plead guilty to the charge and was fined the sum of $3 which he paid. He said that he wanted the boy to attend school but could not control him. He filed an affidavit to that effect and now if the boy does not attend he will be looked after personally by the authorities. Combs refused to plead, said that he didn't care whether the boy went to school or not. He was fined $5 and as he failed to settle he was sent to Owego for five days.

NEW INDUSTRIES FOR WAVERLY

High Speed Tool Company to Locate Here--Others Are in Tow

Waverly—Announcement has been made that a new industry, The High Speed Tool Company, now located at Three Rivers, Mich., will locate in Waverly. The concern manufactures high tempered tools, and while it is not at present a large concern there is an increasing demand for its product and it will, by skillful management, develop into a good sized industry. It will be located on the lands east of the village, belonging to Hon. Hyram L. Winters, through whose efforts the industry was induced to come here, and he gave the land on which it is to be located, besides taking a large block of stock.

It is reported that an effort is being made by the industrial commission to induce the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, O., to locate here. The Company has experienced considerable trouble in obtaining shipping facilities at its present location and is looking for a new location.
