DISPENSES JUSTICE AT 91.

Aged Jurist Tells How He Keeps Up His Working Vigor.

Boston.—What do you think of a judge who defies time and sits on the bench and actively dispenses justice when he has passed his 91st birthday?

That is Justice Charles Field, one of the kindest of gentlemen, who is on the bench at Athol, Mass. He was a presidential elector in the time of Lincoln.

Recently he disposed of three cases in one morning, then went to Gardner, 13 miles away, and disposed of eight cases. He walked a mile from the courtroom to the railroad station.

His regular bill of fare is something like this: Morning, oatmeal and rich milk; the oatmeal being cooked for at least eight hours; at noon, beef-steak, roast mutton or roast lamb, with a single hot, mealy baked potato, no other vegetables; at night, a simple gruel made from an infant's food.

"This rigid care in regard to diet seems to be necessary to keep in good working order, and I much prefer to forego the pleasures of the table in order to keep the bodily powers in excellent working condition. Formerly I drank strong coffee, but now drink no coffee at all. Throughout my life I have made it a point to get great abundance of outdoor exercise. I have always walked a great deal, and played outdoor games."

Cut tree to free prisoner. Mahanoy City, Pa.—Handcuffed to an apple tree by two deputy state game wardens for shooting robins in violation of the game law, Peter Gerung was freed by two companions who outwitted the wardens in a two-mile chase through the woods at Girard Manor, returned with an ax, with which they felled the tree and had the manacles removed from Gerung at a country smithy just as the wardens got back to take their tree-bound captive a prisoner to town.

Why He Invested. "I've just bought a carload of fertilizer," said Farmer Geehaw. "For the land's sake!" exclaimed Mis. G.

"Yes, that's what I bought it for, to fertilize the old granger."

WILL FORM NEW MINISTRY.

M. Clemenceau Assumes Task as French Premier.

Paris.—M. Georges Clemenceau, minister of the interior, the unmaker of many cabinets, has accepted the task of forming a new ministry. The result probably will be the making of a new premier is without doubt the most striking and the most powerful personage in France. His name has been intimately connected with public affairs since the days of the commune of 1871, but it has been peculiarly in a destructive sense. The republic has had 40 cabinets since the commune was overthrown and Clemenceau's chief part has been in overthrowing them.

The peace of Europe may be endangered by the ascendancy of M. Clem enceau, as it is known that he is a man of limitless ambition. A disturbing element also is his foreign attitude. He looks with much friendliness on the English and is hostile toward Russia. Thus it is seen at the very outset that the dual alliance between France and Russia may be disturbed.

Besides this, Clemenceau is the very incarnation of French hatred toward Germany. It will not take any great political exigency to convince him, therefore, of the necessity of crossing Emperor William in some of his projects. Considering the well-known disposition of the German war lord, this can bode no good for the peace of the world.

One of the brightest spots in the history of Clemenceau is the manner in which he championed the cause of justice in the Dreyfus case. He stood in the foremost fighting line of the heroic few who championed justice in the darkest days of reaction.

A trenchant journalist, the founder of La Justice in 1880, he became the fighting man at arms of L'Aurore during the prolonged Dreyfus combat and rendered yeoman's service to the cause of justice.

Likewise, he pleaded the case before the court and on one occasion caused a world-wide sensation by abruptly stopping in his argument and pointing to a painting of the crucifixion above the judges' bench, saying, "This image placed in our judgment hall recalls the most monstrous judicial error which the world has known."

In response to ironical cries in the audience he replied: "I am not one of his adorers. But I love him perhaps more than those who invoke him so singularly to preach religious proscription."

LEADER IN DIPLOMATIC SET.

Beautiful Wife of Ambassador Realizes Old Ambition.

Washington.—With her husband, the Austrian ambassador, succeeding to the title of dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington, Baroness Hengelmuller has realized her longcher-ished ambition. She is one of the most beautiful women in the capital and a great social favorite. Her entertainments have always been characterized by exclusiveness and novelty.

I had rather speak five words with my understanding than 10,000 in an unknown tongue.—I. Cor., xiv., 19.

Buried Treasure.

Dumley—I met a fellow to-day who was simply nutty about a buried treasure; couldn't talk of anything else. Peckham—That reminds me of my wife. Dumley—Oh, does she talk about one? Peckham—Yes; her first husband. I'm her second, you know.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A gang of men is engaged in cleaning the mud off Broad street today. A thick coat of mud had made the pavement rather nasty and slippery, and the work that's being done on it is making an improvement in its appearance.

WAS THE COAT STOLEN

Waverly—Last night an Italian named Tony Cupallo came to the police and complained that a countryman of his had stolen his overcoat. He said that he had purchased the coat from a second hand store, had taken it to the south side where he resided when another Italian whose name nobody knows, took possession of it. The officers visited the scene of the alleged theft and immediately concluded that they had struck another Babel. The confusion of tongues was very great, about a dozen talking at once. The man who was said to have stolen the coat claimed that he had purchased the same for one dollar and refused to give it up. The evidence was contradictory for the officers to cope with, and they left the case as they found it.

PUT UP A FIGHT

Waverly—Jim Cain, who has been making considerable trouble of late, was arrested last night and this morning was given a sentence of sixty days, which time he will spend at Owego fracturing rocks for the benefit of the county. He was found last night on the South Side by Officers Corcoran and Gridley. Gridley first approached him and Cain suddenly struck the officer a blow in the jaw. There was a lively mixup and both went down, Gridley landing on top Corcoran then appeared and Cain was locked in the town hall.

PLAINTIFF WON

Waverly—The case of Smith against Cortwright was tried before Justice Hoagland yesterday, and decided in favor of the plaintiff. S. C. Smith built a cement walk for Cortwright some time ago. Since that time Cortwright sold the house, and the man who purchased the same refused to pay for the walk. Smith had some difficulty in getting the money from Cortwright and the law suit was the result.

FUNERAL THIS MORNING

Waverly—The funeral of Wm. E. Kenney, who died last Sunday night, took place this morning, and a large number of his old friends were in attendance. The members of the Local lodge C. M. B. A.

were present in a body. The service at the church took place at 9 o'clock, and the remains were buried in St. James cemetery.

Relief for Aching Muscles.

People sometimes get a dull aching at the lowest part of the back of the head, which is increased on movement. This is caused by rheumatism of the muscles supporting the parts. Great relief is afforded by filling a small bag with hot salt, and using it as a pillow. It should lie in the hollow of the neck, and the neck below the seat of pain should be protected by folded flannel.

All Dead.

It being debated whether a certain voter was dead or not, the rate collector was appealed to at the North Canberwell revision court recently, and gave the following conclusive statement by the widow: "Yes, my husband is dead; he has been dead about eight weeks. Two weeks after his death my sister died, and after that I lost a child. Now the two kittens are dead."

Infant a Linguist.

Beatie Doyle, the four-year-old child of an iron manufacturer in Basic City, Va., has a good working knowledge of six languages besides English. Her father is a French scholar and taught her the language; her mother, who is of German descent, instructed the child in the tongue of the fatherland and the Swedish nurse carries on her communication with the tiny charge in a Scandinavian dialect.

Enthusiast to the End.

An enthusiastic French physician, while dying, made careful observations of his condition, detailing his symptoms to his son and attending physician in order that they might make a record of them. At the very end, when he was on the point of passing away, he surprised the friends at his bedside by saying, "You see I am dying."

Ocean Currents and Climate.

Western Europe's climate would be changed entirely were the Isthmus of Panama adjacent territory to be submerged. For in that case the equatorial current would be carried into the Pacific ocean and the Gulf stream, which does so much to warm Europe, would not emerge into the Atlantic.

Would Teach Girls Care of Dolls.

A proposal is made that in every girls' school the care of dolls shall be taught. Each pupil would be instructed how to take care of her doll just as if it were a child, food, clothing, exercise, and even "when she is troublesome" receiving attention.

Cause of Eye Strain.

Traveling in public conveyances is exceedingly hard on the eyes, even for those that are strong and perfect. The gaze should be confined to the interior of the car. Looking out of the window at the rapidly changing scenery is a great strain.

Chestnuts Healthful.

The chestnut is the most digestible of all nuts, especially after it has been roasted or boiled. It contains, in comparison with the potato, more starch, proteid and fat, but less mineral matter.

"Mad as a Hatter."

The phrase "mad as a hatter" really means as venomous as a viper. "Mad as a hatter" is simply a corruption of an ancient form, "Mad as an utter, or adder."—The Sunday Magazine.

You Can Revive a Pen.

When a pen has been used until it appears to be spoiled, place it over a flame of gaslight, for instance, for a quarter of a minute, then dip it into water and it will again be fit for work.

Royalty's Whispered Conversation.

The emperor and empress of Japan when receiving a visitor whom they have not met before, generally converse in whispers.

The One Supreme Pain.

The Cook's Revenge.

Cook (soliloquizing)—The mistress scolded me this morning. Now, what can I make to give her a good attack of indigestion?

Jays All.

A country jay is one who wants to know everything, and a city jay is one who thinks he can tell him.—Mankato Advocate.
