GILLETTE MENACED.

Pathos of Dead Girl's Letters Cause Tears in Court.

THREATS MADE AGAINST PRISONER

Harriet Benedict Denies Being Accused's Sweetheart—Grace Brown's Pathetic Story Told in Pleading Notes.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The pitiful letters in which Grace Brown appealed to Chester Gillette to keep his promise to marry her caused such a sensation when they were read at Gillette's trial on the charge of murdering the girl that the sheriff had to furnish a strong escort of deputies for the prisoner when he was taken to the jail at recess.

When it was time for the prisoner to return to court it required hard work by half a dozen deputies to force a passage through the crowd which had gathered around the courthouse.

There were many who used strong language against the prisoner. The sheriff's precautions for the safety of Gillette were fully justified by the state of mind into which the people had been worked.

Harriet Benedict of Cortland, whose name has been frequently mentioned in the case, went on the stand and denied that she ever had been the sweetheart of the young man who is on trial for his life.

She did not go near the prisoner, whose eyes were filled with tears a short time before during the reading of Grace Brown's letters to him.

Many persons in the crowded courtroom, including the parents and sisters of the dead girl, wept audibly as the letters were read.

It was the first time that Gillette had shown emotion since his trial began. Forty letters in all were read.

A letter dated South Oranle, July 2, 1903, was as follows: "My Dear Chester—This has been such a crowded day that I am almost too tired to write, but I will try, for I am a little anxious about our trip and your not writing."

"It makes me rather blue to hear the other girls planning for the Fourth and know I must stay here. I will try, dear, and make the week as short as possible, but I am afraid it will be dreadful long."

"If I had strength, dear, I do believe I should walk to the river and throw myself in. It would be rather cowardly, and I despise a coward, but I would not be a bother to you any longer. Oh, Chester, the thought that I am in your way just drives me crazy. How I want to die no one but myself knows."

Her last letter read: "I do not know what I could do if you were not there or did not come. I am about crazy now. I have been bidding goodbye to some places today. There are so many nooks and all of them so dear to me. I have lived here all my life."

"First I said goodbye to the spring house, with its great masses of green moss; then the apple tree, where we had our playhouse; then the beehive, a cute little house; then the orchard and of course all the neighbors that have mended my dresses from a little tot up to save me a thrashing I really deserved."

"Oh, dear, don't you realize what all this is to me? I know I shall never see any of them again. And mamma—great heaven—how I do love mamma! Don't know what I will do without her. She is never cross, and she always helps me so much."

On July 2 Gillette wrote her, saying: "Dear Kid—I think it is best that you should go to Hamilton next Monday morning and meet me there. It would be better to go where we are not known, so we can leave there that day, although I don't know where we can or will go."

Her wedding clothes, which were made by friends and neighbors for the girl who went to a watery grave in Big Moose lake on the very day she planned to go to the altar as the bride of Gillette, were shown in court.

BRIDGE WORKERS KILLED.

Housatonic Bridge Staging Tilted, Throwing Five Men Off.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 21.—Two men killed, a third believed to be dying, another seriously injured and a fifth man cut and bruised was the result of the slipping of a clutch on one side of a staging on which thirty men were working on the new railroad bridge over the Housatonic river between Stratford and Milford, tilting the staging and throwing the men to the deck of the bridge, twenty-five feet below.

The dead are Paul Daley of Berlin, N. H., instantly killed, and Richard Scully of Jordan, N. Y.

Harry Powell of Portsmouth, N. H., was critically injured; skull fractured; may die. William Nicman has severe concussion of the right hip, bruised about the body and possibly internal injuries. Michael McWade was bruised about the body and scalp; will recover.

The gang of thirty structural bridge workers were working in a box staging five feet wide and thirty feet long and partly inclosed on the sides at the top of the first span on the Milford side of the rolling lift bridge now in the course of construction for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on the main line over the Housatonic river. This staging contained also all the tools used by the men and was twenty-five feet above the floor or deck of the bridge.

The foreman had just signaled to have the staging, which is operated by a donkey engine, lowered. As the man who controlled the engine started it a "dog," or clutch, on the south side of the staging slipped and tilted that end of the staging four feet downward, throwing the five men who were at that end, together with part of the tools, off. The twenty-five other men who were on the staging saved themselves by grasping the sides.

AWAIT LAST WORD

President Will Not Revoke Negroes' Dismissal.

Taft Declines to Discuss Outcome

Roosevelt Sends Decisive Message to Constitutional League at New York—Expects Order From Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Secretary of War Taft has declined to discuss the matter of the discharge of the three companies of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, but it is known that, in addition to delaying the execution of the order of discharge, he has sent a communication in regard to the case to President Roosevelt. The president will receive it when he reaches Porto Rico today.

The secretary has postponed further execution of the order pending word from the president and has telegraphed the president, it is said, to ask if the matter may not be reopened.

The president is said to be firm in his attitude.

As further evidence of this, the following cable message was sent to Gilchrist Stewart of the Constitutional league at New York by President Roosevelt:

"Unless facts as known to me are shown to be false the order will under no circumstances be revoked, and I shall not for one moment consider suspending it on a simple allegation that there are new facts until these new facts are laid before me. Inform any persons having new facts to have them in shape to lay before me at once on my return, and I will then consider whether or not any further action by me is called for."

The Constitutional league had sent a message of protest to the president which read:

"Republican county committee unanimously denounced discharge of colored soldiers. Parsons, Olcott, Bennett, committee petitioning department. Newspapers emphatic. Developments had new facts warrant. Ask immediate suspension order."

The final decision in the matter of the dismissal of the three companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry, as ordered by the president, rests with Secretary of War Taft, subject to any reply he may have received from the president regarding the order issued from the war department during the secretary's absence in the west.

Because of the absence of Mr. Taft no one in the war department seems to know just what course will be pursued. It is said definitely, however, that the order directing that the troops be dismissed without honor has merely been suspended, but its further execution has not been suspended. It is pointed out that Secretary Taft could not revoke an order made by the president.

It is not believed here that the president will consent to a revocation of the order, and officers of the army do not want him to do so.

POLICE SEIZE FIEND

New York Woman Charged With Murdering Infants.

OWN DAUGHTER CAUSED ARREST.

Search of House Instigated by Girl Revealed Frightful Conditions. Babies' Bodies Were Burned in a Stove.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Accused of the murder of at least twenty infants in the last five months and with burning their bodies in a stove, Mrs. Wilhelmina Eckhardt was seized by the police in her home at 138 East Ninety-third street, taken in a patrol wagon to the Tombs police court and committed to a cell.

Another patrol wagon was loaded with surgical instruments, operating tables, invalids' chairs and other equipment for a small hospital found in the woman's home.

The stuff was taken to the district attorney's office.

The arrest of the alleged murderer was brought about by the revelations of her daughter.

Mrs. Eckhardt repeatedly complained at the East Eighty-eighth street station that her adopted boy, five years old, had been kidnapped by her daughter.
