YALE STRATEGY WON

Gridiron Battle a Waterloo For Harvard.

BLUE TEAM SWEPT ALL BEFORE IT

Victors Used Every Bit of Modern Football They Knew-Game Was Sensational From Start to the Finish.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26 .- Yale triumphed. Superb strategy, mastery of the "new football" and a spirit excelled by no blue eleven of the past culminated in the humbling of the crimon on Yale field by the score of 6 to 0 before the banner crowd of the year. It was one of the finest football accomplishments in Yale's athletic history, a history already replete with accomplishment. Fully 38,000 partisans of the two great elevens saw the game, fought under brucing weather conditions, and found in the "new football" The constant repetition as developed by the master hands of New Haven and Cambridge a spectacle surpassingly sensational from start > Yale's daring simply swept Harvard off its feet and the crowd with it. Nothing seemed impossible to the blue and if impossible so only for the moment. Again and again the advance of the crimson became peril to the blue, frequently because of penalties, but invariably the dangerous line was driven back.

Yale used every bit of modern foot ball Yale knew, and the manner of the victory was as great a triumph as the victory itself.

To Yale thus passed the almost undisputed title of the college championship of the country, clouded only by the drawn, no score contest at Princeton a week ago. Never before in college history has the football season reached such an apex. A victory for the crimson would have meant first honors beyond question, for she had beaten the Carlisle Indians, who last week won from Minnesota, and who also had defeated the University of University of Michigan. For this reason if for no other the game on Yale field was of unprecedented importance, and to Yale once more has come a vic-Best of Everything tory which will live forever in her athletic history. It was a victory won not by any fluke, but through greater football knowledge, superior team play, almost unerring accuracy in developing the possibilities of the new rules and through the magnificent work of individual players. The score of a single touchdown and goal repeats that of last year on Soldlers' field, and it adds broken since 1807. In going down to defeat Harvard, as was the case last year, proved a foeman worthy of all the resourceful ability of Yale. Her men repeatedly shone conspicuously, and the flashes of brilliancy in individual plays as time and again her backs broke through the line of blue or ber stalwart guard, Burr, sent the ball twisting through the air for long gains seemed to be entitled to a reward. Harvard was a trifle slow in executing her plays, which, as last year, seemed to hinge on her great strength on defense, while Yale was quick on everything. Her men were as active as greyhounds and as fierce as wolves. Her success lay in playing offensively at every opportunity, drivng her plays hard and taking advantage of every opening when her opponents had the ball. Interference for the runner, the forward and behind the line passes and the onside kicks were a well developed art. Not once did a Yale man have to run down the field without assistance. As the game was nearing its close Yale played fiercer and rolled the crimson line into heap time and again. It was only Harvard's stubborn contest of every nch of her own ground that kept the core at the single figures. The game was attended by all the nteresting incidents which have beome a part of it. The gridiron was ramed with a mass of humanity, in which three sides were blue and the other crimson. The cheering and singing while good fell far short of that in previous years, explainable by the fact that the game was played so fast that spectators did not have time to pay much attention to the cheer leaders. Not a seat was vacant, and at the gate a few stray tickets brought phenomenal prices, one pair changing hands at $50. The game opened under gray skies and was concluded in radiant sunshine and under a canopy of blue. Leaped to Death From Steamer. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28. -'Miss A.
