AIR LINE OFFERS NO INDUCEMENTS

Wall Street Journal Says the Scheme is Essentially Speculative.

Every now and then Sayre people, both men and women, who succeeded in laying by a little for a rainy day are invited to invest their hard-earned money in various speculative schemes which promise big returns in a short time. The "get-rich-quick" field is full of these "enterprises" and in many instances shares that only cost five cents apiece are to earn $20. Now this is certainly a rich proposition. Newspapers are filled with half-page advertisements telling of the wonderful opportunity to become independently rich in a few months and promoters are thicker than hairs on a dog. Knowing that the world is filled with easy-marks the promoters have no trouble in unloading enough "stock" to make themselves rich, and then the scheme goes into the air.

One of the latest "opportunities" for investors of the small kind is the "Chicago-New York Electric Air Line." Sayre people are being asked to contribute toward this scheme, but in justice to those who have succeeded in gathering together a little cash, The Record deems it advisable to print what the Wall Street Journal has to say of the proposition. In reply to an inquiry, whether the stock of the above named company can be bought safely, the Journal did not wish to declare the project an outright swindle, but used the following more dignified language, which, however, means the same in English. The Journal says: "We consider the stock as essentially speculative, and offering no inducement to the conservative investor. Well known railroad engineers have reported adversely on the feasibility of constructing such a road, and it is a question whether the promoters of 'The Chicago-New York Electric Air Line' will ever see a successful fruition of their plans." The Wall Street Journal has long been recognized as representing all that is "safe and sane" in the investment line. It is absolutely unpurchasable, and before investors part company with their earnings they should heed the words quoted above.

HELD TO COURT

John C. McCracken, charged by his wife, Jessie McCracken, with failing to provide for her support and sustenance, was held at a hearing last night to appear before the court of quarter sessions. Goodwin Bristol became McCracken's bondsman in the sum of $200. McCracken was arrested the other day by Constable Brougham on a warrant issued by Justice Carey. At the hearing last night he pleaded not guilty and said that he was anxious to have the matter adjusted in court. The case will come before Judge Fanning next week.

WATTS DISCHARGED FROM CUSTODY

Evidence Against Him Was of a Rather Weak Nature

Benay Watts, the Waverly man, who was arrested here yesterday forenoon, charged with robbery from the person, was discharged from custody by Justice Carey at a hearing held this forenoon. This morning Orenish, the Hungarian, who made the complaint against Watts, said he did not lose any money, but that the men attempted to rob him. He also was not so sure that Watts was the man who went through his pockets. The evidence therefore being insufficient Watts was discharged. Michael Lyach, who was also arrested on the same charge, was released from custody and the $45 found on his person yesterday was returned to him by Chief Walsh.

AT THE LOOMIS

The sterling qualities possessed by "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," which will be presented at Loomis Opera House next Saturday afternoon and evening may be relied upon as worthy to warrant liberal patronage for that charming comedy. It is a truly clever play, and all who witnessed it unite in declaring that its interesting plot is developed in a manner that holds the spectator fascinated from the commencement of the action until the curtain falls on the last act. The characters as interpreted this season by Jules Murry's Own Company, which includes William Whitecar, the favorite "Lord Lumley" of the past two seasons, and Henry Carl Lewis as "Giuseppe," the organ grinder, are said to present impersonations that have not been excelled in the history of the play, which in the past three years has been presented most successfully in America, England, France, Germany and Italy.
