WILL ASK FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

Attorney Hoyt to Take Steps to Secure the Release of Dominic Sharrone.

Hos. L. T. Hoyt, attorney for Dominic Sharrone, the Italian who was recently tried for the murder of Eugene Messenger, will apply for a writ of habeas corpus, probably next week. Mr. Hoyt in an interview stated last night that the case was a decidedly interesting one from a legal standpoint, and that he would make an effort to get his client discharged from custody. He will probably make application to Judge Fanning for the writ next week. The document will be directed to Sheriff Griffin, and will be in the nature of an order to show cause why he is detaining Dominic Sharrone and on what authority. Mr. Hoyt will insist that under the court rule in this case the Italian has been once placed in jeopardy and that the jury has been discharged without returning a verdict. Mr. Hoyt will ask for the release of his client, and District Attorney Mills will be on hand to argue against the request. Should Judge Fanning decide that the position taken by Mr. Hoyt is in accordance with the law, Sharrone will be liberated, but should he determine otherwise, the Italian will be recommitted to the charge of the sheriff, and then Mr. Hoyt's remedy will be by appeal to the supreme court. Mr. Hoyt expresses the fullest confidence in the position which he has taken. He says that there are only two valid reasons for discharging a jury in a capital case—one, where a juror dies, and the other, where one becomes suddenly insane. Then the trial judge is justified in discharging the entire jury and issuing a new venire. The outcome of the case in its present status will be looked forward to with considerable interest, both on the part of the legal fraternity and the laity.

HE REFUSED TO PAY HIS FARE

And the Conductor Was Compelled to Eject Him From the Car—Beliegeant Passenger Told Where to Get Off.

One of the conductors on the W. S. & A. Traction Co. line has temporarily, at least, settled the question as to whether a passenger has the right to ride on one of the cars without paying fare, though the passenger is not furnished a seat. Last night the car which leaves Sayre for Waverly shortly after six o'clock was packed with humanity. All the seats were taken and the aisle was filled with passengers. The latter were standing up. As is the custom the conductor began working the car after it left the corner of North Elmer avenue and Lockhart street. When near Mohawk street the conductor had worked from the head end of the car to a point near the door. Here he encountered a man, weighing about 195 pounds, who was standing up and who clung tenaciously to the railing in the upper part of the car which supports the hand straps. The conductor asked the big man for his fare. The big man, however, refused to pay fare unless he was furnished a seat. As every seat was filled, the conductor was unable to comply with his request, and after a minute or two of argument the big man was again requested to pay or get off. He refused to do either, and stated that if the conductor ejected him to get off he would have to do the job by main force. In the meantime the conductor had signalled the motorman to stop. Then he informed the big man that if he really insisted upon being thrown off he (the conductor) was there for that purpose. Despite the fact that the conductor is well along in years, and that his hair is nearly white with the frost of many winters, he grabbed the big man, shouted to those standing on the rear platform to clear the way, and before the big man had fairly time to realize what had occurred, he landed in the mud. The conductor pulled the bell rope twice, the car moved ahead, and the passengers smiled approvingly. The conductor had made good.

In connection with the foregoing it might be well to state that there is an opinion held by some people that they are not required to pay fare if they are at the same time compelled to stand up. This is an erroneous idea, however, and a conductor is perfectly justified in stopping the car and insisting upon his fare or the passenger getting off. A passenger is not compelled to ride upon a car if there are no seats, and the company is not compelled to carry him in any manner unless he pays the price demanded.

Regular preaching services will be held at the Milltown chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. Ira Hotelling will officiate. Sunday school will follow the regular services.
