THE CAVE DWELLINGS
As this article follows one I wrote of a trip to "Sunset Mountains" that was published in the Athens Gazette a short time ago, the reader will understand the reference to the route travelled on that occasion.
Flagstaff, Arizona, Oct. 23, 1906.
On a beautiful day a short time ago, together with about a dozen others we took a trip to see the cave dwellings, about twelve miles distant. We travelled the same road which we did in going to Sunset Mountain until within about six miles, when we turned to the right and climbed the mountain on which the caves are situated. We found quite a quantity of broken pottery scattered around near the caves, and a fairly well preserved portion of a vase which had been used to grind their corn or grain. The latter I brought with me to Flagstaff. The caves are excavations made in the rocks at the brow of the hill (evidently of volcanic formation,) and in a continuous row, with walls built around them for protection against their enemies. Mr. Hackett, one of the party, took a photo of one of the caves which gives a good idea of the caves, walls etc. He also turned his camera and took a "shot" at the landscape from that point. (A copy of these I send to my home in Athens.)
In the shade of the trees, on the incline below, we partook of the lunch, which is an indispensable part of the outfit on such rambles as this. In this country whenever you go, the keg or canteen of water has to be taken along. There are no springs, as in the east, from which to get water to drink, or to make coffee as we old soldiers used to do at the front, over the brush fire. There are other cave dwellings on a small mountain near there, which some say are better than the ones visited by us.
While at "Bess Camp" he showed us a hill where the prehistoric dwellers had built their dwelling by walling up in front, covering with dirt and making a place similar to a western "dugout." In these he said he had found a skeleton, and various bones, also a well preserved vase and other pottery. Near by, at the edge of the canyon ("Grand") there was a wall, evidently the remains of a fort, for there were small holes through the walls as if used for outlook and defense. In the face of the cliffs there are cave dwellings nearly inaccessible now.
There is no history that gives us any idea of who these people were, where they came from or what became of them. But quite likely the country was more fertile, water much more abundant, game plenty, etc., in the age in which they lived. There has been an idea advanced that this age was prior to the seismic and volcanic disturbances which evidently extended over this entire region, and that the inhabitants were entirely annihilated by the gases which were the natural result of such disturbances. However, this may be, there are remains of cave and cliff dwellings through different parts of this country which show that everything was not stirred up, nor turned over, if they did live before that time.

A UNIQUE MOVEMENT.

Members of New York March to "Jewish Colony of Wolkofstown."
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—With brass bands playing and flags flying 500 Jewish families of the lower east side marched to Brooklyn, where they took cars for Nassau county and dedicated the "Jewish colony of Wolkofstown."
The procession, in which were many women, was led by Max H. Thuna and Morris Becker, the organizers of the colony, who rode on horses. Several carriages and automobiles followed.
The object of the colony is to have a town of its own, and the plan includes a synagogue, hospital, school and market. The property, which was the old Van Nostrand farm, was owned by Jacob Wolkof of Brooklyn.
The organization consists of more than 300 members, each of whom pays $1 a week. Fifty cents of this goes for paying for the land, 40 cents toward the building fund, and the remainder is put in a reserve fund.
The tract consists of 11 1/2 acres and is situated opposite the Belmont race track. It has already been subdivided into building lots, and streets and avenues have been cut through the property. In different sections of the property Wolkof has reserved a number of lots for a public market, synagogue, hospital and school.
The colonists subscribed for from one to three lots each, which were raffled off.
The building up of the town will be begun in the spring, but not a tenant will be permitted to move in until it is finished. Buildings to cost from $750 upward will be erected.
According to the organizers, the town will have its own fire department and town hall. An attempt will also be made to do away with courts and lawyers, leaving all disagreements to the rabbi to adjust.
Beginning the first day of occupation a set of prizes will be offered. For the first male born in the town a prize of $50 will be given and $15 for the first girl baby. A prize of $100 will be given the first couple to get married.
Labor Leader Murdered.
BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Although the report of the autopsy on the body of William J. Hartnett, a local labor leader, who was found dead in his home under suspicious circumstances, showed that death was due to violence, the police have released the son, William A. Hartnett, who was held, and the investigation is being made along other lines.

CHILDREN IN LINE.

President Roosevelt's Reception at White House Largely Attended.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt's New Year's reception at the White House was a brilliant function and was attended by about 8,500 persons. The members of the diplomatic corps, officers of the army and navy and representatives of the national and District government and of the citizen public attended.
President Roosevelt gave each of his callers a cordial shake of the hand.
It was generally remarked that the proportion of negroes in the line was smaller than in previous years.
There was an unusually large number of children in line, and all were greeted cordially by the president. One of the most amusing figures in the line was a ten-year-old boy with soiled hands and clothes who carried a pair of roller skates thrown over his shoulder. The president laughed heartily as he wished the little fellow a happy New Year.
A pretty little girl carried a great white "Teddy bear" past the receiving party and provoked a hearty laugh from the crowd gathered in the blue room.
Mrs. Longworth and the other children of the president were at the White House for the reception and with their young friends moved constantly through the crowd. Miss Ethel Roosevelt was prettily gowned in pink and was much admired. Her Admiral Cowles and Mrs. Cowles, the president's sister, were also with the members of the president's family during the reception.
Postmaster Attacked by Thugs.
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—George Ripberger, postmaster of Long Island City, was attacked by three men as he was returning from a New Year's party and beaten into insensibility. His head was cut open in three places by blackjacks, and his body is a mass of bruises from kicks. Ripberger became conscious several hours after he had been found and removed to a hospital. He declared he did not recognize his assailants. Evidently robbery was not their object, as his watch, jewelry and pocketbook, in which was a large sum of money, were not taken.
A Money Message From the Sea.
LONDON, Jan. 2.—There has been washed up on the beach at Castle Rock, in the north of Ireland, a bottle containing a message from several members of the crew of the steamship Huronian, which disappeared in the spring of 1902, to the effect that she was sinking fast. The message gave no location. This is the second time the Huronian has been heard from since she sailed from Glasgow on Feb. 11, 1902, for St. John's, N. F.
Guggenheim For Senate.
DENVER, Jan. 2.—Simon Guggenheim's election as United States senator to succeed Thomas M. Patterson is assured by the action of the Republican members of the general assembly in caucus. Mr. Guggenheim's candidacy was endorsed by a vote of 68 to 1.
