LEADING CITIZEN OF WAVERLY DIES

Hugh J. Baldwin Passes Away at Seven O'clock This Morning. Heart Failure the Cause.

Waverly—Hugh J. Baldwin died this morning at his home on Pennsylvania avenue. He had not been feeling well for the past few days, although he had not been confined to his bed, and had been about the streets. At an early hour this morning he was up and moving about the house, but returned to his bed, and apparently went to sleep. Members of the family had entered the room in which he lay, and as he appeared to be sleeping he was not disturbed.

About seven o'clock, however, it was discovered that he was dead. Death had come peacefully without pain as he lay sleeping. A physician being called decided that his death was due to heart failure. While many were surprised to hear of his death it did not come unexpectedly to the members of the family, as they had been informed that such might happen any moment.

Besides his wife he is survived by three sons, Walter H. Baldwin, who resides in Chicago, Seward Baldwin and Harry C. Baldwin of Waverly. A brother Albert B. Baldwin of Waverly and one sister Miss Vida C. Baldwin of Washington, D. C. also survive.

Deceased was 65 years of age, and had been a resident of Waverly since early childhood, his parents having moved here in 1844.

In his death Waverly loses one of its most prominent citizens, and one who has always been prominently identified with the progress and prosperity of the village. He had always been in the public eye, and it was under his guidance as President of the village that some of the now notable improvements took place.

He came from a family that has lived in this vicinity since the close of the revolution. His grandfather was a captain in the continental army and was a member of Washington's staff. At the close of that struggle he was made Indian agent to the Iroquois confederacy.

Francis H. Baldwin, the father of the deceased, lived at Southport, N. Y. where his son, Hugh J. Baldwin was born June 4, 1841. In 1846 he moved to Waverly, and in 1853 started the Waverly Advocate, which was the first newspaper in the village. At the age of 15 years Mr. Baldwin entered the Collegiate Institute at Towanda, and attended that school until the Waverly Academy was started. He then returned home and finished his course at that institution. After concluding his course at the Waverly Academy he taught the school at North Barton in the winter of 1859. He intended to enter Hamilton college and had secured a scholarship, but the breaking out of the civil war caused him to change his plans.

He enlisted in Company E 23rd New York Infantry, and was made second lieutenant of the company. He speedily arose and in a short time received his commission as captain. His regiment saw hard service and he was in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and the second Bull Run.

At the conclusion of the war he returned to Waverly and for a time ran a store on Broad street. He then acquired some property on Cayuta street, and was secretary and superintendent of the North Waverly Paper Mills.

In 1871 he organized the company that built the old opera house and the Tloga hotel. Later he went to Buffalo where he was superintendent of a lumber business. The firm failed and he purchased the stock, shipped it to Waverly, and established the lumber business which he conducted up to the time of his death. He also owned a coal yard, plaster mill and saw mill at East Waverly for a number of years.

He always took an active part in the political affairs of Waverly, and was elected president five times. It was under his administration that the town hall was built, and other prominent improvements started.

The funeral arrangements will be announced in tomorrow's issue.

THE JURY SAID NO CAUSE FOR ACTION.

Six Men Decide That D. V. Personius Did Not Violate Ordinance.

Waverly—Much interest had been manifested by many of the citizens of Waverly in regard to the action that had been instituted by the village authorities against D. V. Personius for an alleged infraction of the village ordinance forbidding the placing of any obstruction upon the sidewalks of the village.

The action was not a criminal one but the ordinance provides that any one guilty of violating it shall be subject to a fine of $5.

The complaint set out that on the 2d day of November, 1906, a wagon was left standing in front of Mr. Personius's mill for a period of 20 minutes, so that it obstructed the sidewalk in part, and that it was placed there by his direction.

The trial took place Saturday afternoon before a jury consisting of S. C. Hall, Edward Rhodes, Amasa Finch, Charles Albertson, Geo. N. Pike and Walter Shipman.

F. A. Bell and F. E. Hawkes tried the case for the village and E. D. Sebring and H. Austin Clark of Owego, appeared for the defendant. It was shown on the trial that there was a walk reaching from the mill of the defendant to the curb line of the street, making in all a walk about 15 feet wide. That the mill stood about four feet inside the regular sidewalk line, and that when a wagon was unloading at the mill it extended about half way across the regular sidewalk. This left about six feet of clear walk outside of where the wagon stood.

After a very able summing up by the attorneys, the jury, after receiving the 25c fee that the statute allows them, retired for a period of about one minute, returned and rendered a verdict of no cause of action.

HARVEY'S LAKE PLAN.

Company Will Be Organized to Establish a Modern Amusement Resort at the Lake.

A modern resort similar to those operated near the larger cities is to be laid out at Harvey's Lake and during the coming summer it is intended to have it one of the chief attractions for pleasure seekers from this place and vicinity. Recently a number of Lehigh Valley railroad officials were in the city for a conference with local men who are interested in the project. Owing to the recent destruction of the pavilion at the picnic ground by fire, it is necessary to again build and it was thought advisable in making the improvements to have them on a much larger scale.

It is the intention of the projectors to introduce roller coasters, shoot-the-chutes, galleries of the latest novelties and the many other diversions found at parks after the most recent plans.

There are three or four local men who have been approached on the scheme, and they have apparently given it favorable consideration, for it is intended to organize a company with large capital to further the plans. The organization of the company will be effected within the next ten days, as it is hoped to have the work commenced not later than February 1.

Sayre vs. Towanda.

The Towanda Review stirred up a merry war between the newspaper men and the "Hillside Boro" and Sayre, the "City of Plains," by stating that two new trains between Towanda and the Bradford county metropolis would be put on and that the greater part of Sayre's shopmen would live in Towanda.

The matter may be referred to the Hague peace congress.—Owego Record.

Cause for Corroding.

It has been noted that wire nails and wire fences corrode more quickly than iron in other forms, under like exposure. The theory is advanced, by way of explanation, that the cold working processes leave unusually large intermolecular spaces in the metal.
