BLAMES ROOSEVELT

Senator Tillman Bitter on Racial Equality Question.

SCORES PRESIDENT'S ARMY ORDER

War Department, He Says, Put Social Equality Ideas Into the Heads of Colored Troops Hence the Brownsville Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Senator Tillman (S., C.) used pitchfork methods in an effort to put the Brownsville controversy on a racial basis and accusing President Roosevelt of insincerity in providing racial equality.

The South Carolina senator demanded to know if the president would live up to his teachings by willingness to see his children marry persons of other races. This passage attracted special interest because the president's daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, accompanied by a friend, was sitting in the gallery.

At one point, when Senator Tillman was unusually violent in his criticism of her father, Mrs. Longworth left the gallery.

The southern senator characterized the president's action in the matter "as nothing more nor less than lynching."

SENATOR TILLMAN.

He challenged any one to produce in the army regulations or articles of war any foundation for the charge of conspiracy of silence, mutiny and treason against the soldiers, although he declared there was no doubt that the soldiers were responsible for the "outrage at Brownsville."

Mr. Tillman held that it was contrary to the fundamental principles of liberty of English and American law that the innocent should suffer because of the sins of the guilty; also he declared that a man shall be convicted innocent until he is proved guilty. "In this case," he said, "167 men have been punished while not more than twenty have been charged with participation in the crime."

Mr. Tillman maintained that the negro troops should not have been sent to Texas. They were sent there, he said, against the protests of one of the Texas senators and the congressman from that district. They were sent there, he continued, with a wholly inadequate number of officers, as there were only five officers for the three companies.

"This was done," Mr. Tillman exclaimed, "without any thought or care on the part of the president or secretary of war as to results. The first thought of the president was to protect the negroes and to punish the citizens by abandoning the post."

"Especially Major Penrose and Captain Macklin," Mr. Tillman said, "are shown to have acted with gross negligence and incompetence."

All of the soldiers who got in trouble were from Macklin's company, said Mr. Tillman, who added that Macklin did not believe that a negro had seized Mrs. Evans by the hair and that he made no effort to detect the soldier. This, he believed, raised the question as to whether or not Captain Macklin was in sympathy with the men in their scheme of revenge.

Turning his attention to Senator Foraker, Mr. Tillman declared the Ohio senator had belittled himself by attacking Major Blockson as a man whose father was a copperhead. "Are we never to have an end of the war and its bitterness?" he exclaimed. "Are the people of the north and the south never to understand each other and to recognize the rights of both sections?"

Declaring President Roosevelt was more responsible than any other man, Mr. Tillman read from an army order issued by the war department on Feb. 8, 1900, and signed by the president:

If he conducts himself as a white soldier, have the same consideration?" persisted Mr. Nelson.

"For the simple reason that God Almighty made him colored. He did not make him white," retorted Mr. Tillman, who added that caste feeling was universal and persisted even in the bosom of the senator from Minnesota.

To Stem Colorado's Flood.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The president has sent to congress a message urging some action toward remedying the situation caused by the break in the Colorado river four miles below the international boundary line in Mexico, which threatens the property interest in the Imperial valley of California. He says prompt action must be taken, and probably with an expenditure of $2,000,000 the river can be restored to its former channel and held there.

ALBANY LEGISLATURE.

New York State Lawmakers Begin Work in Earnest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Tonight the New York state legislature will begin in earnest the work of the session of 1907.

Both houses have organized by the election of Senator John Raines as president pro tem. of the senate and Assemblyman James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of Livingston county as speaker of the assembly. The committees have been appointed and all hands are ready for the work of legislation. Nearly twice as many bills have been introduced as in the same length of time a year ago, but few of them are of importance, the majority being either purely local or of the class known as "frecks," which will receive no attention whatever, their activity being substantially ended with their introduction and the expense involved in the printing of them.

The only measure thus far seriously considered is that appropriating a total of $76,000 to supply the deficiency in the funds of the attorney general's department. The ways and means committee will give a hearing Wednesday on this bill, at which time former Attorney General Mayer is expected to appear and show the necessity for the expenditure by his office for special counsel and other purposes of the funds available for the department for the balance of the fiscal year.

The introduction of bills embodying the ideas of Governor Hughes regarding the merging in one commission of the functions of the railroad commission and the commission of gas and electricity is expected.

The recount of the ballots cast at the mayoralty election of 1905 in New York city, recommended by the governor, is provided for in several different ways by bills already introduced. That of Assemblyman Prentice, limited in its operation to that election only, is regarded as the one to be pressed to passage. It will be introduced in the senate by Senator Page. Its fate may depend in some measure upon the progress of the litigation in the courts instituted by Attorney General Jackson against Mayor McClellan and the quo warranto proceedings sought to be brought in his own behalf by Mayor McClellan's opponent, William Randolph Hearst.

Governor Hughes is expected to send his appointments to the senate today. He declined to discuss Herbert Parsons' visit, but gossip here says that he asked the governor to appoint McDougall Hawkes superintendent of public works.

A Tremendous Landslide.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 14.—A tremendous landslide has occurred on the main line of the Wabash railroad on the West Virginia side of the Ohio river at the bridge opposite Miago Junction, O., eighteen miles above this city, which will put the road out of commission for several days, and in the meantime trains are being operated via other lines. The slip extends for a distance of 700 feet from near the approach to the bridge and is fifty feet in width. Thousands of tons of earth slipped, carrying away the tracks and filling the bed of Cross creek, the waters of which are now flowing over a nearby cornfield.
