WEEKLY PAPERS

WILL COMBINE

The Waverly Free Press and the Tioga County Record to be Issued as One Sheet.

Waverly—It was stated this morning by Mr. Fred B. Appleget, the editor of the Waverly Free Press, that beginning with next week, the Waverly Free Press and the Tioga County Record would be issued as one paper under the name of the Tioga County Record and Free Press.

For some time to come the paper will be issued from the Waverly and Owego offices at the same time, but when the new quarters in the Manoca Temple building are completed it will probably be issued from the Waverly office only. The paper will be a weekly and will come out the same as the Free Press does now.

The new offices that are being fitted up in the Odd Fellows building are very commodious, and are being finished very nicely. The business office will be in the room that was formerly the office of the Tioga hotel, and the work room will be the one adjoining on the north. The presses will be in the basement, and it is the intention of the owners to install a linotype machine.

VETERAN'S DIARY

DISCLOSES FACTS.

Record Kept By J. F. Shoemaker During War Tells of the Loss of the Golden Gate.

Waverly—Press despatches Tuesday stated that the attempt to recover the treasure from the steamer Golden Gate that sunk off the coast of Colima, an island lying to the west of Mexico, would have to be abandoned for the year, because the recent storm had wrecked a pier that has been constructed out to the wreck for the purpose of raising the large quantity of gold that remains in the old bulk. The despatches stated that the ship sank in July 1861.

At the time of this occurrence J. F. Shoemaker, Esq., of this place was a sergeant of Marines on board the United States war steamer, Saranac, that was then in the harbor of Panama, the destination of the Golden Gate. The press despatches seemed inaccurate, and so he hunted up his diary which he kept at that time, and found from that the ship was lost in July, 1862 instead of 1861. The Golden Gate left San Francisco on July 22 and was due at Panama on August 5. The steamer failed to appear, and the diary goes on to relate how the anxiety increased as the time passed. Other boats that had left San Francisco after the Golden Gate had sailed came into Panama, and had no news of the ship that was subsequently found to have been lost. It was generally feared that she had fallen in with some Confederate privateer and been captured, and the diary tells of the conference of the officers in regard to the matter, and how an old and unused steamer was being fitted out to carry passengers who were waiting to go to San Francisco.

The first news received of the ill fated craft came on August 22 when the papers came from New York. The boat caught fire while on the way down the coast and had been beached to save the crew and passengers, who numbered 337.

The diary then goes on to tell how the Saranac visited the wreck on Feb. 1, 1863, and again on Feb. 25, 1863, when a box containing $30,000 was recovered. The ship was again visited on April 5 of the same year for the last time.

The diary contains a very interesting account of the life on board from day to day. It also gives account of the visits of naval officers of other nations and of the salutes that were fired.

There is hardly a day's record in which the account of the firing of one or many salutes is not given, and great quantities of powder were burned in the payment of compliments.

EVANS TO RESCUE

"Fighting Bob" Sails to Aid Stricken City.

RUIN OF ISLAND CITY COMPLETE

Death List Augmented With Each Cable Received.

AMERICA FIRST TO SEND HELP.

Official News of Disaster Reaches Washington, Showing Dire Work of Earthquake and Fire at Jamaica's Beautiful Capital—Devastation Swept Kingston and Country Within Ten Mile Radius, Causing Death to Hundreds of Negroes and Destruction to Property Estimated at $10,000,000—Blacks Started Looting Rum Shops, but Were Quickly Put Down.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet, has sailed from Guantanamo, Cuba, on the torpedo boat destroyer Whipple for Kingston, Jamaica, with the warships Missouri and Indiana, to ascertain conditions and extend such aid as may be necessary to the stricken city.

The supply ships Celtic and Glacier, which are now attached to the Atlantic fleet and which are fully provisioned, have been ordered to proceed with all haste to Kingston, where their cargoes of food will be distributed among the needy.

A St. Thomas (Danish West Indies) dispatch says that cables received from Jamaica report 1,000 persons killed by the earthquake and fire and that 90,000 persons are homeless. The damage to Kingston alone is placed at fully $10,000,000.

The report declares that all people have been warned to keep away from Kingston. The stench there is described as awful. There is no fodder for animals, and famine is imminent. Money is useless. The banks have been burned, but the vaults are supposed to be safe. The misery on all sides is indescribable. Rich and poor alike are homeless. Provisions of all kinds are urgently needed.

All the shops have been destroyed, and all the buildings in and around Kingston are in ruins. Very few only are safe to live in.

It is reported that an extinct volcano in the parish of Portland is showing signs of activity.

The devastation would appear to have been confined to the vicinity of Kingston, one dispatch giving ten miles as the radius of damage. The rest of the island, including Port Antonio, does not seem to have suffered severely.

The estimates of dead range from 100 to 500, but with the exception of Sir James Fergusson and perhaps half a dozen other white men there is no mention of fatalities to foreigners. The American tourists who were at Kingston at the time, estimated at about 2,000 persons, would appear to be safe.

The estimates of persons injured is placed in the thousands. It is feared that when the ruins of the city are searched the list of casualties will be materially increased. A large majority of the 50,000 population of Kingston is black, and it is probable that nearly all the casualties were among these people.

Looting and disorder, including raids on rum shops by the blacks, followed the catastrophe, but prompt repressive measures restored order. Panic prevails, however, especially as the earth shocks continue, and great numbers of the city's population have fled to the neighboring countryside. Food supplies are beginning to be urgently needed, and the demand on medical supplies has exhausted the stock in hand.

The fire that followed the disaster would appear to have been confined to that section of the city bordering on the water front. The flames were supposed to have been checked, but a later dispatch indicates that they may have again broken out.

The shipping in the harbor is said to have escaped undamaged.

Any reliable estimate of the property damage is impossible. It is reported that the business section is in ruins and that a large bank building and a hotel have been destroyed, while other messages say that almost all the houses of the Jamaican capital have been destroyed and those in a radius of ten miles damaged.

The very much more serious aspect of the situation given by the messages received from Jamaica itself have not been confirmed by official reports. Some of the messages emanating from Jamaica are without date, and it is thus impossible to tell whether they refer to the panic of the first hours and give exaggerated reports of casualties or were sent at a time when greater calm prevailed and actual estimates of the situation had been made.

That the conditions in Jamaica are more serious than was supposed is attested by the fact that a message received at the state department in Washington said:

"Kingston destroyed. Hundreds of lives lost." Official news of the disaster at Kingston has reached Washington from the American consul at Kingston, stating that the city had been destroyed and hundreds of lives lost and stating also that food was badly wanted.

It is assumed at the department that the vice and deputy consul, William H. Orrett, at Kingston had sent the dispatch. It was also regarded as possible that the message might have come from Nicholas R. Snyder, the American consul at Port Antonio, on the island of Jamaica. However, the dispatch was regarded as warranting the taking of instant measures for relief. Indeed, the navy department had been in advance in this matter, for wireless communication was previously established between the navy department and Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, and when Secretary Root later indicated the desirability of sending warships at once to the distressed island it turned out that Admiral Evans had anticipated the direction and had started on a torpedo boat destroyer, the swiftest vessel in the American fleet, for Kingston, ordering two battleships to follow him at once.

The definite news that Sir James Fergusson, a director of the Royal Mail Steamship line, and Captains Constantine and Young, superintendents at Kingston for the same company, and Mr. Sherlock, a partner in one of the largest firms on the island of Jamaica, are among the killed has been received.

An official report sent by the governor of Jamaica says that forty-five soldiers were killed amid the ruins of the military camp and that 500 persons at least have lost their lives. There are 800 injured in the General hospital.

The Boston Fruit company, which has extensive interests in Jamaica, received a cable message saying that many hundreds were killed and that many buildings are in ruins, including the Constant Star hotel. The Myrtle Bank hotel is also reported in ruins, and the Colonial bank is said to have been burned.

Governor Swettenham's report says that probably a sixteenth part of the city has been burned, but adds that the flames have been checked.

London dispatches say: "The British war office has ordered two cruisers to go at once to the scene to preserve order and aid the inhabitants."

"Fires have broken out again. The negroes are looting the rum shops. At least 500 persons have been killed. There are wails and terrible scenes."

"Forty-five invalid soldiers were burned to death in the military hospital."

"The fire insurance policies in Jamaica effected through British companies are said to aggregate about $7,500,000."

"All the companies, however, are safeguarded by an earthquake clause, and a leading manager who was seen said that the companies would not recognize any liability for damages caused by the earthquake."

A cable received at London from Sir Alfred Jones confirms the worst fears. The message says: "Kingston was overwhelmed by an earthquake Monday afternoon at 3:30. All the houses within a radius of ten miles have been damaged, and almost every house in the city is destroyed. Fire broke out after the earthquake and completed the work of destruction. It is estimated that a hundred persons have been killed and a thousand injured. The public offices and hospitals are in ruins. Among the killed are Sir James Fergusson, many prominent merchants and professional men and a great many natives. The business quarter of Kingston is now a heap of smoldering ashes. We are thankful that our party is all right."

This dispatch from Sir Alfred is practically identical with other messages received from Kingston.

Direct dispatches from Port Antonio say that all the houses within a radius of ten miles were injured and almost every house in the city of Kingston was destroyed.

Fire broke out after the earthquake and completed the work of destruction. The business section of Kingston is a heap of smoldering ashes.

The killed number about 500, and thousands were injured.

The churches, public offices and hotels are all gone.

The American consulate was destroyed, but the consul's papers were saved by being inclosed in a fireproof safe.

A late London cable says that of the general gloom of the Kingston disaster and bring intense sympathy to the British public. The first of these that Sir Alfred Jones himself and his party are safe.

The second is found in the prompt and active steps taken by the American government to investigate the real conditions and afford the necessary succor to the unfortunate city. Especial appreciation is felt at Secretary McCall's decision to act without waiting for congressional sanction. All possible steps are being taken here to the same end, but America's generous action is none the less appreciated.

"LOVES NOT WISELY"

Southern Senator Defends Roosevelt Before Senate.

TENNESSEE INDORSSES PRESIDENT.

Carmack and His State With Executive on Brownsville Shooting Affray—Forsaker Offers an Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Senator Carmack (Tenn.), speaking in the senate on the Brownsville shooting affray, announced that he heartily supported the president in his action discharging the negro soldiers. The action of the legislature of his state taking the same position had his hearty support.

Mr. Carmack then paid his respects to the president as follows: "I think it proper to say that any report that senators may have heard that the president personally solicited my support in this matter, that he urged me to forgive and forget certain energetic personal remarks and begged me to stand between him and those twin enemies of his administration, the senators from South Carolina and Ohio, is a gross exaggeration. I will not say that it is an infamous falsehood, because such language belongs to the vocabulary of presidential controversy rather than to that of senatorial debate."

"Nor is it true, as senators may have heard, that the president has moved to undertake the president's defense because of my infatuated devotion to the man. I have a great admiration for that strong, brave, large minded gentleman, the secretary of war. My admiration for the president is more temperate and subdued. In the language of Hamlet, 'It waits upon the judgment.' Seriously, I suppose there is no senator, always with the exception of my friend from South Carolina (Mr. Tillman), who is less likely than myself to be suspected of excessive partiality for our present chief executive."

"The president once said that he would see a certain member of the Tennessee delegation in Hades before he would do anything for him, a remark entirely gratuitous in view of the fact that the person supposed to have been referred to had never asked a favor at his hands, but with supreme indifference to his good opinion had criticized him when he was wrong and with like indifference to his good opinion can support him when he is right. I care so little for the many ebullitions of that remarkable man that I can see what he himself could never see in any man who expressed an opinion contrary to his own—I can see the good as well as the bad in his public conduct and judge both without passion or prejudice."

"In this case it seems to me that he has acted with remarkable freedom from impulse, with unusually careful deliberation and with anxious effort to do nothing more or less than complete justice to all concerned. Indeed, I am haunted by the suspicion that to ascertain the facts and to keep within the limits of the law because the offenders were colored than he would have been if they were white."

"So far as the negro race is concerned, the only charge that can be justly made against the president is that he has loved the negro not wisely, but too well."

Senator Forsaker offered a substitute for all of his previous resolutions on the Brownsville affair, as follows:

"Resolved, That the committee on military affairs is hereby authorized and directed by subcommittee or otherwise to take and have printed the testimony for the purpose of ascertaining all the facts with reference to or connected with the affray at Brownsville, Tex., on the night of Aug. 13, 1906. Said committee is authorized to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to sit during the recesses of the senate and if deemed advisable at Brownsville or elsewhere."

Notable speeches in the house were made by Representative Foster (Vt.), supporting the president in his message on the Japanese situation in California and by Representative Shepard (Tex.), who endorsed the Democracy by a closely prepared address on politics and the state of the nation.

Sunday, Feb. 24, was fixed for the delivery of eulogies on the life of the late Representative H. C. Adams (Wis.).

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Governor Hughes last night attended a "smoker" and entertainment given by Masons Bricklayers and Plasterers' Union, No. 6, of this city. About 200 workmen were present.

The governor, who was accompanied by his military secretary, George Curtis Treadwell, was given a hearty reception as he entered the hall. He was introduced by the president of the union and responded briefly. He said he was glad to have the opportunity of meeting the members of the union personally.

"You are organized," said the governor, "because you want to see things done fairly and labor rightfully treated. When labor unions get together to better their conditions it is a good thing, and I believe in it and will be glad to see you whenever it is necessary."

Smallpox Among Refugees. SHANGHAI, Jan. 17.—To the horrors of famine has been added an outbreak of smallpox among the refugees at Singking, necessitating the demolition of the mat sheds erected to shelter the thousands who have arrived there in search of food. Captain Kirton, who was sent out by the relief committee to investigate the situation, reports that 300,000 destitute persons have been driven back toward their homes and that terrible scenes are being enacted along the line of retreat. He estimates that 250,000 persons are likely to be doomed at Singking alone and 400,000 at Antung, where small relief works have been started.
