Cherry Hams

There is a vast difference between the hams of today and the hams of years ago.

The old way of curing and smoking was slow but the result was fine. The short cut methods of today of producing a cured, smoked and ready for the cook ham in twenty four hours from butchering is the cause of the change in the flavor; the old Dutch receipts and methods of "a month in the pickle, a week in the smoke house" still prevail in the modern Weppner plant at Buffalo; the result is that unmatchable flavor of Cherry ham. You will admit there is odds in ginger. We can convince you there is a big difference in hams. Ask for Cherry hams; Karner's only.
