IF YOU CAN WALK YOU ARE NOT DRUNK

This is the Version That Mr. William B. Doe Who Was Arrested for Intoxication Had With Regard to the Matter.

Waverly—There was a batch of three citizens of this broad land that appeared before the police justice this morning on the charge of being intoxicated in a public place.

The first said that his name was William B. Doe. When told of the charge, and what his rights were in the matter he said that he was not guilty. He admitted that he had been drinking to some extent, but said that he was still able to walk when locked up, and so long as he was able to walk he was not drunk.

This threw much light on the subject, because before this authoritative rule was promulgated there was some doubt as to just what was the point at which a man became drunk. Now in the future it will be an easy matter to decide that mooted question. He was sent back to the cell, and will be given a hearing this afternoon.

The next individual admitted that he was drunk, without any hesitation and was told to get out of town. The third was somewhat doubtful whether he was drunk or sober, but finally decided that he was just a little bit drunk and was also allowed to depart.

CAR SCARED HORSE; TIPPED CUTTER OVER.

Occupants Were Thrown Out—Driver Hung to Lines and Was Dragged Some Distance.

Waverly—Yesterday afternoon as the car that leaves Waverly at 3:25 was coming west on Broad street a cutter drawn by a spirited horse came in the opposite direction. The car was just approaching Spaulding street, and the rig was turning to go over the Spaulding street bridge. The horse, scared by the car, turned quickly, and the cutter was overturned, and the occupants thrown out. The driver landed on his face in the road, but pluckily retained his hold on the lines. The horse started over the bridge at a rapid gait, dragging the man after him. The pull was too great, however, and when the top of the bridge was reached the horse stopped. The face of the driver seemed to be badly bruised, and when he got straightened out he proceeded to say things about the street car system. Who the occupants of the rig were could not be ascertained.

GOOD SIZED CROWD HEARS FINE TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

Eugene Chaffin Gives Excellent Address and Singing of Prof. A. M. Thatcher. Was Much Appreciated.

Waverly—There was a good sized crowd at the M. E. church last evening to hear the temperance lecture by Eugene W. Chaffin of Chicago. The address made a very favorable impression upon those present, and the singing of Prof. A. M. Thatcher who has a voice of wonderful power was very much appreciated.

Mr. Chaffin said that there had been more progress made in the fight against the liquor traffic in the last 40 years than had been made in 500 years in any other great reform movement in the world's history. He showed how up until 1840 the liquor habit was grafted upon the people, and that there was no general sentiment against it. He quoted the case of an applicant for life insurance who was charged an extra rate because he had endangered his life by not abstaining from the use of intoxicants.

He said that the thing that they were striving for was the total abolition of the manufacture and sale of alcohol in so far as it was used by man. He said that alcohol was a poison, that it destroyed the human being and that high license, or the placing its sale in good hands did not make it any the less harmful. If good people were to be the handlers of it then he advocated that it be sold by the churches and schools. He said that the license rate had went up from a few dollars a year to $100 in some places and this represented the price at which the public was willing to buy its conscience. When license was $500 in Chicago there were 7,122 saloons, and when it was raised to $1,000 it cleaned out all but 7,000 of them. At the conclusion of the lecture Prof. Thatcher sang another selection that was loudly applauded and he was obliged to respond to two encores.

WAVERLY CITIZEN SUFFERS PARALYTIC STROKE.

W. L. DeForrest Stricken Yesterday While Sitting in His Office—Shows Improvement This Morning.

Waverly—Yesterday afternoon while sitting in his office, W. L. DeForrest, who runs the coal yard on upper Broad street, was stricken by a paralytic stroke. He was taken to his home immediately, and a physician summoned. It was found that his power of speech was very badly affected, and that the whole of the left side of his body was affected by the shock. It was stated this morning, however, that his condition had improved very much since yesterday, and that there was much ground for hope that he would recover.

Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson.

Waverly—Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson died yesterday afternoon at her home on West Broad street aged 79 years. She had been ill for some time from the grip, and this together with her advanced age caused her death. She had lived in Waverly nearly all her life and was the widow of George Wilkinson, who died several years ago.

She has a large number of relatives in Waverly. The remains were taken to the home of her brother-in-law, W. W. Wilkinson at 110 Park Place from where the funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. H. B. Cook of the M. E. church and the remains will be buried in Forrest home cemetery.

One Editor Finds It Dull.

The editor of an Elliot, Ia., paper hard pressed for items, has sent forth the following Lacedonian cry for aid:

"Mr. Friend, help this editor in the wild-eyed search for news. When your friends come to see you, if you are not ashamed of it, tell him; when your wife gives a tea party, if you have recovered from the effects of good things to eat, drop in with the news; when a baby arrives, fill your pockets with cigars and call; if you go to a party, steal some of the good things and leave 'em with the item in our sanctum. If your wife licks you, come in and let us see your scars and tender sympathy through it; give in all the commonplace news. In short, whatever makes you feel proud, sad, lonesome or glad, submit to our 24-karat wisdom and see our matted locks part and stand on end with gratitude, which will pour from every pore like moisture from the dew besprinkled earth."

Printer's Ink. Emerson says: "In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts; they come back to us with a certain alienated majesty. They teach us to abide by our spontaneous impression with good-humored inflexibility when most of the whole cry of voices is on the other side. "Else, tomorrow, a stranger will say, with masterly good sense, exactly what we have thought and felt all the time, and we shall be forced to take, with shame, our opinion from another."

Engineers Win Out. The Lehigh Valley engineers from Wilkes-Barre, who protested against working on the Sabbath day have won out. When they rebelled against working on Sunday they were threatened with dismissal, but on appealing their case to the higher authorities a satisfactory arrangement was arrived at. It was to the effect that the engineers work only on special occasions on the Sabbath or when there is a scarcity of engineers.

Should Be Helped Out.

The fellows who stand on the street corners chewing and spitting and telling obscene stories, cursing and declaring merchants and business folk in general skins and thieves, are a nuisance and an abomination. Any town pestered with such worthless would be justified in exercising cowhide authority on the bosom of their trousers. No one is compelled to live in any town and the one not having a good word for its business enterprise should be helped out.

They Tickled Him Into Unconsciousness.

ed to give their comrade a good 'ticking. Five or six men got him in a corner and the tickling began. At first Blankburn laughed and yelled as he tried to break away, but suddenly he flopped over in what appeared to be a sound sleep. The men left him lying on a lounge, and when at nine o'clock, the camp bedtime, he had not awakened, they covered him up for the night. Next morning when Blankburn could not be aroused the lumberman became frightened and sent several miles for a doctor. He had no success, although he tried all the means at his command. Hypodermics were administered, the man was pinched, slapped and cuffed, and finally strong ammonia was placed under his nostrils.

The fumes had no effect other than to make the sleeper cough, and in desperation the doctor tried tickling. Hearing Blankburn's feet, he took a hen-feather and applied it gently. The man half opened an eye and rolled over. This satisfied the physician that he could be awakened by the same means that put him to sleep and he left the loggers to complete the job.

Little by little the tickling took effect and at the end of three more days Blankburn was able to sit up and eat a hearty meal. He appears to be none the worse for his extended sleep.

How Microbes Can Be Killed. Microbes cannot be killed by great violence, as large animals can, and the blow of a hundred-ton steam hammer would not kill one of them. They are, however, subject to subtle forms of violence, such as rotary motion, tapping and vibration. Dr. Samuel J. Meizer placed bottles of germs in the vibratory machine of a soda water manufacturer, and found that they were killed by the motion. The apparatus produced vibration and a strong centrifugal tendency.

TICKLED TO SLEEP; SLUMBERS FOUR DAYS

Even Doctor Couldn't Awake Teamster Till He Tried Tickling Him Back to Consciousness.

Machias, Me.—An odd story, which is said to be true, comes from the Chase logging camp some miles north-east of here, where a teamster by the name of Blankburn is alleged to have been tickled to sleep and remained in an unconscious condition for four days.

Blankburn, according to the report, is an extremely nervous man and adverse to being tickled. The pointing of a finger at his ribs will set him gurgling with laughter and a delicate prod will send him into hysterics. This falling became known to the woodsmen, and one night they decid-

RATS FULL OF DYNAMITE.

Rodents Eat Deadly Explosive and Now Terrorize Farmer.

Worcester, Mass.—Charles B. Dana, an Oxford farmer, would like some advice as to how to get rid of a family of rats fattened on a diet of dynamite. Dana lives in mortal terror of the "animal bombs," as he calls them. His barn is full of them. He can't kill them, for fear they will explode while being assassinated. And if he lets them stay in the barn he is afraid one of them will commit suicide by falling from the haymow and distribute his barn, farm implements and live stock over the surrounding country. Dana stored a box of dynamite in his barn for the winter. A few days ago he discovered that rats had eaten every bit of it. He said that since the dynamite disappeared he has seen more rats and larger ones than ever before in his life.

"I'm afraid to throw a brick at the pesky critters, for fear they will explode and blow up the barn," he says. "I can hardly sleep nights thinking that one of them may fall out of the hay mow to the barn floor and send my horses and cattle to kingdom come. "When I go out to feed the stock I handle the hay and bedding as gingerly as I'd handle eggs. What if one of those animal bombs should be in it? The shock I'd give him by throwing him about might blow up everything." Dana is trying to entice a rat away from the barn for experimental purposes, but has had no success.
