A Speedy Cure for

Constipation, Biliousness, Dizziness, Indigestion, Liver Complaints, Headache, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bad Complexion, Nervousness and all Disorders of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Bloodine Liver Pills

act gently, yet thoroughly upon the bowels, liver, stomach and digestive organs. The pills, in old and chronic cases of constipation and indigestion, act at once, without griping, nor do they leave any unpleasant after-effects, nor form a constant habit of purging, produced by other cathartic remedies.

Remove the deranged and torpid liver to its normal condition and healthful action. Remove and prevent the operation of the bowels, and restore those who have been operated upon by a natural and regular operation of the bowels, and relieve those who are afflicted with biliousness, nervousness, dizziness, headache, and other symptoms which attend a diseased or deranged condition of the liver, stomach and bowels. To assist in attaining this end, the following suggestions are offered.

REMARKS: Everyone who uses pills for these ailments on the liver, should know that large doses rarely prove an satisfactory as small ones. Large doses simply purge and pass out of the system, usually leaving the bowels congested, and seldom removing the cause of the trouble, or improve the general health. On the other hand, small doses develop the alternative effect of the medicine, do not irritate or congest the bowels, but gently stimulate the liver and prevent the accumulation of bile by directing its flow into the proper channels. Therefore it is desirable to continue taking not over one or two pills at bed-time and increasing the dose as necessary.

PORTLAND, ME.
COST:—I find your "Bloodine Liver Pills" the most effective pill I ever used. They cause no griping or constipation after effect as most liver pills do.

THAW'S STORY TOLD

"Slaying of Stanford White an Act of Providence."

DR. EVANS TELLS OF HIS RAVINGS

Accused Held He Was Victim of Jealous Conspiracy—Expert Says He Was Crazy When Married and Will Was Made.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—For the first time since the fatal tragedy on the Madison Square roof garden, when Stanford White was shot and killed, Harry Thaw's own story was told in court. It is a remarkable narrative, and as it was unfolded by Dr. Evans of the witness stand in the criminal branch of the supreme court it created almost as much surprise as the story told by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and it was listened to with breathless interest.

Thaw's will and codicil were admitted in evidence at the session of court after Dr. Evans had testified that Thaw was of unsound mind at the time they were executed.

Thaw's will was made at the time of his marriage to Evelyn Nesbit in Pittsburgh.

The codicil was read first. It provided that the sum of $75,000 should be set aside to be used in the prosecution of Stanford White and another man who, Thaw wrote, through an elderly woman, lured a young girl to a house and then ruined her.

Thaw also referred in the codicil to other cases for which he said White might be prosecuted. There were four of these cases mentioned.

No names were read in court except White's.

Thaw also willed $25,000 to each of these persons: Anthony Comstock, Dr. Parkhurst, Frederick Longfellow, his lawyer, and a Pittsburgh lawyer. This money was to be used for the prosecution of Stanford White.

In the will, which Mr. Delmas read, Thaw set aside $5,000 for his wife in lieu of dower. He also gave $5,000 in trust for his wife and provided for an income of $500 a year for her brother, Edward Nesbit.

The last clause of the will left the residue to his wife in trust and guaranteed an income of $12,000 a year if she remained unmarried and $4,000 a year if she remarried.

Lawyer Delmas succeeded in overcoming District Attorney Jerome's objection to admitting as evidence the conversations held between the prisoner and Dr. Evans on the occasion of the visits of the doctor to study him in the Tombs shortly after the murder.

Dr. Evans told how Thaw insisted that he was the victim of a conspiracy between his lawyers at that time and the district attorney, who, he said, wanted to railroad him to a lunatic asylum to save the name of Stanford White.

"The prisoner told me," said the doctor, "how he had sought the aid of Anthony Comstock to prevent White's further interference with young girls, how he had laid the matter before the district attorney and how he had hired detectives, who learned enough to establish the character of White, but failed to get enough evidence to secure a conviction in court.

"He told me he did not intend to kill White. He sought to degrade and expose him in court, but Providence intervened.

"Thaw said that Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburgh detective, had told him to carry a revolver, because he was being tracked by emissaries who he believed were in the pay of White and that he knew Monk Eastman's gang had been hired to kill or maim him."

When the doctor's surprising testimony was concluded he summed up by saying that some of the statements of the prisoner were clearly insane delusions.

Dr. Charles G. Wagner, another of the experts for the defense, was then called to testify along the same line. The jurors entered just after Justice Fitzgerald arrived. Mr. Bolton, whose wife died last Thursday, had his old position, the eleventh in the line of the box. He looked a little older and a little grayer—that was all. He had told the justice he was ready to go on with the duties of a juror.

Dr. Evans was the first witness. He said:

"My first call was made on Aug. 4. I went up to his cell in the Tombs, accompanied by Mr. Harridge, and was introduced to Thaw. He asked me to come into his cell and made room for me to sit down on his bunk. His eyes were wide open and staring, showing much of the whites. He was very nervous, shaking his head and shifting his gaze constantly.

"As he sat down alongside me he said to me: 'You have good sane eyes. They are not like Dr. Hamilton's eyes. I think Dr. Hamilton has crazy eyes.' I did not discuss this proposition with him.

"I asked him how he felt. Thaw said: 'I am the victim of a foul conspiracy. Lewis Deland and the firm of Black, Oloott, Gruber & Bouyng are in a plot with Jerome to railroad me to an asylum without giving me a trial or permitting me to tell the judge and jury the true inwardness of this affair. I am not insane. It is all rot to say I am insane. They are persecuting me. The whole lot of them are in collusion with Jerome to prevent me from revealing the infamous conduct of Stanford White. It is all one big scheme to railroad me to an asylum on the pretext that I am crazy.' About this time his wife arrived. After he had seen her he retired with me to a private room and continued his conversation with me.

"He said: 'Stanford White has made

HUGHES AND KELSEY

Governor Summons Official For Face to Face Talk.

"BUREAU NEEDS HOUSE CLEANING."

State Insurance Chief Makes Many Damaging Admissions as to Ignorance of Matters Connected With His Department.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 19.—For 100 minutes Governor Hughes in person examined Superintendent Otto Kelsey of the state insurance department searchingly as to his acquaintance with the revelations made before the insurance investigating committee regarding abuses in the life insurance business, as to his reasons for retaining in the department officials and employees whose conduct was brought in question during that investigation, to his appreciation of the need of drastic "house cleaning in the department and as to his preparations for the election of directors of the mutual life insurance companies.

The examination of the superintendent of insurance was conducted across the governor's big desk in the executive chamber, Mr. Kelsey sitting alone facing his questioner. The scene was probably without exact precedent and was one of intense interest. The fact that the governor had summoned the superintendent of insurance before during the day, and many heads of departments, deputies and employees and members of the legislature augmented the audience which crowded the chamber.

Superintendent Kelsey admitted that he had never made a thorough study of the report of the Armstrong committee, reading from it only occasionally as specific matters made particular portions of it of timely interest, although he said that on one time and another he believed he had read it all.

He admitted that he had removed no one from his department as a result of the legislative investigation, although he intended eventually to dispense with the services of First Deputy Superintendent Robert Hunter of Poughkeepsie and Chief Examiner Isaac Vanderpool of Albany when the work of the department was in such shape as to make it, in his judgment, practicable to spare them. Mr. Vanderpool resigned a few weeks ago, but it appeared that aside from his resignation and those of three minor employees the personnel of the department is precisely the same as when Mr. Kelsey assumed office last May.

Mr. Kelsey admitted that he had never examined the roster of his department in the light of revelations before the Armstrong committee as to the affiliations of certain employees with officials of insurance companies who were involved in the insurance exposures.

Superintendent Kelsey admitted that not until two days before the election of directors in the mutual companies last December did he appoint the inspectors who were to have charge of the election and that he finally left to a firm of expert accountants engaged for the purpose the details of the plan under which the votes were to be received and canvassed. He had prepared no plan of his own, he said.

In the course of his answers to the governor's questions Mr. Kelsey declared that while he realized that Messrs. Hunter and Vanderpool were discredited by the insurance investigation, he intended to dispense with their services in due time when conditions permitted, but without the humiliation of summary dismissal. Of Mr. Vanderpool in particular he said that his many years' experience and minute technical knowledge made his services for the time being indispensable, and he believed that while both of those officials had been derelict, the changed condition under the new insurance laws made it possible for him to regard them as trustworthy sources of information.

At the close of the examination Governor Hughes told Mr. Kelsey that he would be pleased to receive any additional statement of facts which would show his ideas and attitude toward his work upon which the insurance matters upon which the insurance investigation had thrown light. The governor said he did not want an argument. He merely desired to get at the facts in the matter.

Later Governor Hughes said that he could not tell definitely whether the matter would be ready to submit to the senate today. He wanted to give the superintendent of insurance opportunity to present any answer he desired, and whether the recommendation would get to the senate would depend upon how the case developed. He said, however, that he was desirous of closing the matter as soon as possible.

Volunteer Army For Uncle Sam. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Senator Warren, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, introduced a bill providing for the raising of a volunteer army of the United States during actual or threatened war. The bill was prepared by the general staff and is a very comprehensive measure. It divides the military establishment into three branches—the Regular, the national guard and the volunteer army.

Want Pierce in Texas. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 19.—A requisition was received here from the governor of Texas for H. Clay Pierce of St. Louis, president of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, who is wanted in Austin, Tex., on the charge of making false affidavits. Governor Folk will have a hearing on the requisition today. Pierce is said to be in New York.

FOUR INVESTIGATIONS.

Ernest Knoll of Mount Kisco Dies of Injuries Received in Wreck.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Four distinct investigations into the wreck of the Brewster express on the New York Central railroad are in progress here. One is under the direction of the coroner, a second by the New York state railroad commission, a third by the district attorney's office of New York county and the fourth by the railroad.

At Coroner Schwartz's inquest after examining two witnesses he adjourned the hearing to take the jury to the scene of the disaster.

It was brought out by Superintendent McCormick of the railroad that the time schedule called for nearly a mile a minute at the fatal curve.

Ernest Knoll, a young widower of Mount Kisco, died in Lincoln hospital here. The total number of those killed in the disaster was thereby increased to twenty-three. The injured number 146.

The hospital authorities sent for Coroner MacDonald to take Knoll's ante-mortem statement, but that official arrived too late.

At White Plains the bodies of five residents killed in the wreck have been received at their homes. The bodies were those of Robert J. Roxborough, Myron Edward Evans, Mrs. Isaac L. Webster, Annie Sizony and Charles Freeman Page. Of the twenty-five residents of White Plains who were injured only four are in a serious condition. Miss Mabel Clark, a teacher, the most dangerously hurt, had one of her legs crushed and sustained a fracture of the skull. She was sitting in the train with Miss Jubin, a music teacher, who was killed.
