AT "FAIR HARVARD"

President Roosevelt at Cambridge on Visit to Son, SPEAKS ON TRUSTS AND ATHLETICS

Great Assembly of Students at the College Club Are Warned That They Must Not Be Melancholies. BOSTON, Feb. 25.—"Railway corporations," said President Roosevelt in his address at Harvard union, "will gain and not lose by adequate federal control."

"The states have shown they have not the ability to curb the power of syndicated wealth, and therefore in the interest of the people it must be done by national action."

The visit of Theodore Roosevelt, who came not as president of the United States, but as a "grand" returning to meet his fellow Harvard men, including his own son, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., developed into one of the busiest days of his notable career.

"As I emphatically disbelieve in seeing Harvard or any other college turn out mollycoddles instead of vigorous men, I may add that I do not in the least object to a sport because it is rough. Rowing, baseball, lacrosse, track and field games, hockey, football, are all of them good."

"We cannot afford to turn out of college men who shrink from physical effort or from a little physical pain. In any republic courage is a prime necessity for the average citizen if he is to be a good citizen, and he needs physical courage no less than moral courage, the courage that dares as well as the courage that endures, the courage that will fight valiantly alike against the foes of the soul and the foes of the body."
