AGAIN THE DOUMA
Opening of Russian Assembly Fills Streets With Rioters.

CZAR NICHOLAS WAS NOT PRESENT
Czar Nicholas was not present at the opening of the Douma, or lower house of the Russian parliament, was made the occasion of a great revolutionary demonstration by the St. Petersburg proletariat and the students of the city, which resulted in several encounters between the police and the populace and more or less serious injury to a number of the latter.

The situation became such that the authorities finally were forced to fill the streets with military patrols, as in the ominous days of the Troppoff regime. None of the members of the imperial family were present, with the exception of the Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, son of the Grand Duke Michael, who is said to be regarded with distrust at court owing to his sympathy for political doctrines of an advanced character.

The first ceremony was a religious service, in which the metropolitan of St. Petersburg, Antonius, the higher clergy of the diocese and a full choir participated.

Mr. Goluboff, vice president of the council of the empire, called the house to order and in a colorless speech invited the members to sign the oath of allegiance to Emperor Nicholas. The Conservatives cheered the mention of the name of the emperor, but the opposition members present remained silent. The Social Democrats did not enter the hall until Mr. Goluboff had finished speaking, when they came in in a body demonstratively.

After signing the oath balloting for president commenced.

Feodor Golovin, president of the Moscow zemstvo and Constitutional Democratic member of parliament from Moscow province, was elected.

After the adjournment of the session of the house a tumultuous crowd, by this time estimated to number close to 40,000 persons, with red banners flying and accompanied by the music of revolutionary chants, started, like the followers of Father Gapon on Jan. 22, 1905, toward the central quarter of the city, where the Winter palace of the emperor is located. Few elements of the prelude of "Red Sunday" were lacking, and the command "Fire!" would have precipitated a similar massacre. But the present prefect of St. Petersburg, General Drachevski, followed another course and dispersed the procession by charges of mounted-gendarmes armed with whips, and by an imposing display of force he prevented the demonstrators from reforming.

During the long hours of the session the police, appearing in the Tauride palace acted with great forbearance, giving the spectators a free rein in singing and cheering and only interfering to prevent the people from forcing their way into the palace.

ILLNESS HALTS TRIAL

Philip Strother, Charged With Murder of W. F. Bywaters, Has Grip.
CULPEPER, Va., March 6.—The illness of Philip Strother, charged jointly with his brother James with the murder of William F. Bywaters, brought the trial to an abrupt stop. Just as the proceedings were to begin John L. Jeffrey, senior counsel for the defense, announced that Philip, the younger of the Strother brothers, was too ill to appear in court for several hours. He asked Judge Harrison to hear a statement from Dr. H. T. Chelf relative to Philip's illness. The physician said that the defendant was suffering from grip, aggravated by the trying ordeal of the trial, and incident to the malady was suffering severe nausea.

FAST MAIL WRECKED.

Freight Acted as Buffer, Keeping Central Train From Hudson River.
TIVOLI, N. Y., March 6.—The New York Central fast mail from Chicago for New York was partially derailed while passing through Tivoli, and ten persons were injured, all but one sustaining only slight bruises. The cook of the dining car suffered a broken leg, and three passengers and six other employees of the Pullman cars suffered scalp wounds and minor bruises.

The train consisted of a dining car, four sleeping cars and a dining car. At a point 800 feet south of the Tivoli station, while passing over an interlocking switch on a straight track, the three rear cars, two sleepers and the dining car, were derailed. The rest of the train remained on the tracks.

The derailed cars crashed into a string of freight cars standing on a siding between the southbound track and the bank of the Hudson river, along which the track runs at that point. The freight cars were overturned, but the passenger cars remained upright. Only the presence of the freight cars prevented the passenger cars from going over the embankment into the Hudson river and possible loss of life.

One of the Pullman cars turned partly crosswise of the tracks and crashed into a signal tower, tearing off the side of the tower and smashing in the end of the car. There were two signalmen in the tower, but both of them escaped injury.

The front end of the fifth car, the Pullman sleeper Boston, struck against a lumber car, and the end of the Pullman was badly smashed. Mr. and Mrs. John Sherwin of Cleveland, O., were in a berth in that end of the car, but when pulled out of the wreckage were uninjured. Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin were on their bridal trip.

HE SCORES JEROME

Judge, Angry, Rebukes District Attorney in Court.

JURY MUST DECIDE THAW'S SANITY
Fitzgerald Asks Delmas in Protection Defendant's Witness From Unfair Treatment—Refused to Argue With Prosecutor.

NEW YORK, March 6.—So strenuous was District Attorney Jerome in the trial of Harry Thaw that he aroused the indignation of Justice Fitzgerald, and received from him several stinging rebukes.

The prosecutor was bent on trapping Dr. Charles E. Wagner, assistant for Thaw, into an admission that the prisoner is insane now or was insane at the time he shot Stanford White. He accused the witness, who did not answer questions to suit him, of "ducking for the defense." This called out the first show of wrath on the part of the judge, who ordered the remark stricken from the record.

Dr. Wagner was proceeding at some length to state the position of the defense when Mr. Jerome interrupted with the remark that the argument did not call for a stump speech. Mr. Delmas protested against this "offensive language by the learned district attorney." Justice Fitzgerald interposed in the discussion, and Mr. Delmas was soon lost to view because of the turn affairs took.

During the course of his argument District Attorney Jerome placed himself on record by saying that the legal assumption before the court is that Harry K. Thaw is insane. He declared the alienists for the defense have shown Thaw to have been insane as late as Sept. 22 last, and in the absence of proof to the contrary the assumption is that he remains insane.

Justice Fitzgerald declared that the present jury only has to do with the question of Thaw's sanity or insanity on the night that he shot and killed Stanford White.

The witness was asked regarding Thaw's will and could not say he would not characterize the insanity they indicated as paranoia. He admitted, however, that the delusions might be somewhat paranoic in type.

A little later the district attorney fell into a pit that he had dug himself and before he was out of it had aroused a storm in Justice Fitzgerald that burst forth in a fashion that is seldom seen in a courtroom.

"I want to show," declared Jerome, "that the evasions and quibblings of this witness constitute an extraordinary proceeding."

KILLED ON BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

Mrs. John W. Tumblebridge Thrown From Auto in Front of Trolley.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Mrs. John W. Tumblebridge, wife of Major Tumblebridge, of the Second brigade staff, New York National guard, was killed in a ghastly manner on the north roadway of the Brooklyn bridge by being hurled from her husband's automobile under the wheels of a trolley car, which cut her in two and frightfully mangled her slender body.

Major Tumblebridge and his father, Captain William Tumblebridge, proprietor of the St. George hotel, Brooklyn, in the motor car, witnessed the killing, but were powerless to raise a hand to aid the helpless woman. Wallace ("Wally") Owen, the well known automobile and expert driver of racing cars, was driving the car from which Mrs. Tumblebridge was thrown and was trying to pass a wagon on the narrow roadway of the bridge, on one side of which are the trolley tracks. Michael Meagher, motorman of the trolley, was arrested.

The car was nearing the Brooklyn tower of the bridge and was going at a rapid rate. A delivery wagon was just ahead of the machine, and the chauffeur swung the car to one side in an effort to get past the wagon.

A dozen feet behind the automobile came a Graham avenue car. In trying to pass the wagon the wheel of the automobile grazed the vehicle, which had the effect of giving the machine a sharp jolt. It was sufficient to throw Mrs. Tumblebridge out of her seat in the automobile, and she fell across the trolley tracks and in front of the rapidly moving car.

YANKEE GIRL AT NEW ORLEANS.
Two Derby Candidates Fought Out Feature on City Park Track.
NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—There were many starters in nearly all the races at City Park. In the steeplechase over the short course Aules, one of the well played horses, unseated his rider at the second jump, and Arabo, the favorite, ran out at the fifth. Two of the candidates for the Derby, Tling and Yankee Girl, fought it out in the fifth race, at a mile and an eighth, Yankee Girl winning.

The first event was for two-year-olds to go over the three and a half furlong route. Prince Bowling was the lucky one in this event. J. F. Hackler's colt had an easy time getting the honors from the large field that faced the starter. Bucket Brigade was an easy second over Bitter Sir, who was third. Flyn was the favorite. Summaries:

First Race.—Prince Bowling, first; Bucket Brigade, second; Bitter Sir, third.
Second Race.—Little Wally, first; H. A. Schroeder, second; Naran, third.
Third Race.—De Oro, first; Warner Griswell, second; Sagapanu, third.
Fourth Race.—Douna, first; Monochord, second; Evie Green, third.
Fifth Race.—Yankee Girl, first; Tling, second; Anna Day, third.
Sixth Race.—Ivanhoe, first; Heart of Hyacinth, second; Kara, third.
Seventh Race.—Spider Web, first; Coltness, second; Chase, third.

Gardner and Mial Won.
NEW YORK, March 6.—Two games were played in the national amateur billiard championship tournament at the Liederkreis club here. Both were interesting, the first, between Conklin and Gardner, because of its closeness. Gardner making 300 to 299 scored by Conklin, and the second, between Mial and Poggenburg, for the surprise it furnished in the defeat of the former national amateur champion. The score for this game was: Mial, 300; Poggenburg, 200.

TO SAVE HIS SOUL

General Booth Vows to Convert Japan's Emperor.

ARMY CHIEF GOES ABOUT DOING GOOD
Great Salvationist at New York Says He Will Accept Any Kind of Money For Their Work to Save Those Who Are Down.

NEW YORK, March 6.—En route to Japan to try to convert the Japanese emperor and with the avowed intention of telling the mikado that his religious beliefs are all wrong, General William Booth, commander in chief of the Salvation Army, was interviewed here.

One of the first things that the veteran soul saver said was that he was on his farewell trip and that he never again expected to leave England when he returned to London in July.

He explained that he was approaching his seventy-eighth birthday and that he thought that the strenuous duty of a Salvation Army life required him to slow down.

"But I am not going to retire," added the general, with a wave of his hand. "There is a great deal of work left in me. I can assure you."

"It might be imagined," he continued, "that I had a fine rest coming across the Atlantic in the Minneapolis, but as a matter of fact I worked ten hours each day over my correspondence and details for my trip to Japan. I have great hopes of the laud of the mikado, where there has of late been an awakening of Christianity."

"All my time while in New York, which will be perhaps two days, will be devoted to a visit to my daughter."

"I want to complete experiments of placing the people in possession of small holdings and to prove that the people can be taken back to the land and made to support themselves."

"My plan is this: Give a man five or six acres near a market town and I am satisfied that the average man can support himself and family from the product of that land. I have a tract of land at Colchester, England, and it has been a glorious success. Recently we were given $500,000 to go on with the work."
