

J. V. RETTENBURY, WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER, DUSHORE, PA.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—It was learned to-day that the money taken by Silcott will be made good to the members on the House. The special committee on the part of the House have agreed upon a report, by the terms of which an appropriation will be asked to make good the losses of members. And it is a curious fact, but one that could have been discounted in advance, that Mr. Holman, of Indiana, objects. Of course Holman never voted to pay a dollar out of the Treasury directly. Sometimes he votes for an appropriation bill, when he is on the Appropriation Committee, but even that is very uncertain. To show exactly how Holman is constituted the case must be understood. There are two classes of losers—one that had drawn their salaries and deposited the money with the Sergeant-at-Arms; the other, those who lost their November salaries. The first voluntarily trusted the officer and were free to do as they pleased; the second were compelled by the rules of the House to have the money pass through his hands. There are $70,000 in the hands of the office and about $75,000 stolen.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Congressmen have nearly all returned from their holiday festivities and the hotel lobbies have once more assumed the accustomed animation of Washington in winter. The summer of 1890 seems a long way off, but in this great political game of chess moves to be effective must be planned out a long time in advance of being made. So it happens that the political gossips have turned their attention to the next Presidential campaign. One can hardly credit it, but it is a fact nevertheless that the prospect of Mr. Blaine again entering the lists for the Republican nomination is discussed seriously by those who are watching the drift of the press. Mr. Blaine's friends in the press and out are again insistently calling attention to the abundant reports of his being broken in health. And it is true that Mr. Blaine does look much better than he did a few months ago.

ALGER IN THE FIELD. A man much talked about and who undoubtedly has already begun his campaign is General Russel A. Alger of Michigan, now at the head of the Grand Army of the Republic. In a few days General Alger will start out to make the grandest preliminary "swing around the circle" ever undertaken by any would-be or actual candidate. The tour ostensibly is for the regular annual inspection of the G. A. R. post by the Commander-in-Chief, but many features of it would arouse suspicion even if General Alger was never known to have the presidential bee in his bonnet. Firstly, General Alger has arranged to visit every State encampment in the Union before returning to his home in Michigan in May or June. To enable him to do this the encampments have been so dated that he can begin in Maine and go West through the States without much doubling on his track or loss of time spending a day or two at each State encampment in his progress. Alger is a man of great wealth, and will make his great tour in his own private palace car, and during his various stops he will no doubt contrive to make it very pleasant for the leading G. A. R. men for the different States which he visits. The General is a man of much personal magnetism and these meetings, full as they usually are of soldiery enthusiasm and good fellowship afford the most favorable atmosphere for campaigning.

Mrs. Silcott is dying of grief over the conduct of her husband. Her son had her removed to his home, in hopes of her being out of sight of their pleasant room at Congressional Hotel, would benefit her.

ATTEMPTED OUTRAGE. A Lonely Farm House in New Jersey the Scene

BORDENTOWN, Jan. 5.—A lonely farm house on the Jobstown turnpike, a few miles from here, was the scene of a desperate struggle yesterday between a young woman, about 25 years of age, and a burly negro tramp, who attempted to assault her.

The woman whose pluck and nerve probably saved her life is Mrs. Harry Harker, who has been married only a few months, and lives with her husband in a farm house just off the public road. She is a slight-built, frail-looking woman, but has more courage than most men. Yesterday morning her husband went away at an early hour, expecting to be absent all day.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock, Mrs. Harker heard a knock on the rear door. As she stepped into the adjoining room she was surprised to see a strange negro in the room, a short, thick set man, very dark and of villainous countenance. He was not at all disturbed at being detected, and on being asked what his errand was said:

"Mr. Harker sent me to do some work." The woman mistrusted him and feared there was trouble ahead. The nearest neighbor was several hundred yards away, and out of hearing. So she resolved to put on a bold front and tell the fellow to leave. He refused to go. He said he wanted his breakfast and was willing to cut wood enough to pay for it.

There was no alternative but to prepare the meal. The negro watched her all the time, and as she attempted to leave the room he sprang toward her. Quick as a flash she slammed the door, and seizing an iron poker hit the fellow several times. A blow from his fist sent her reeling, followed by a kick which hurt her terribly. Still she fought with the energy of desperation. Finally she gave vent to a series of screams that alarmed the intruder. He threatened to kill her if she did not desist, but she kept on, at which the negro became alarmed and made his escape. No trace of the rascal has been obtained.—Ex.

Starting Rescue of Imprisoned Men.

WILKESBARRE, Jan. 6.—A terrible accident was narrowly averted at the Nottingham mine in Plymouth this evening where the disastrous cave-in occurred last week. About 7 o'clock a terrific explosion of gas occurred. There had been a heavy fall of coal, and this forced the gas towards the shaft, but on its way it was ignited by the naked lamps of the miners and exploded. The brattice work and timber at once took fire and burned furiously. Five men were caught between the cave-in and fire, and all manner of exit was cut off. About half an hour after the fire broke out John D. Humphreys and John Richards were lowered into the mine to ascertain the state of affairs. When they reached the fire they heard cries and shouts on the other side.

Putting their hands before their faces they rushed through the fire and dragged the five imprisoned men out one by one injured. When they reached the anxious crowd the rescued men and heroes were received with shouts and welcome.

Thomas Richards who was in another part of the mine was severely burned by the explosion, and it is feared that he cannot recover. Part of the workings of the mine are located under the Susquehanna River, and the miners state that the water is oozing through near where the cave-in occurred last week. They fear the river may break into the mine. If this should happen the damage would be enormous, many miners would be drowned out beyond the hope of reclaiming them, and operations would have to be suspended.—Ex.

MR. EDITOR:—The parade of Camp No. 344, P. O. S. of A., at this place, New Year's day was a good success. All that could be expected making allowance for the storm and wind, there was a good turnout and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The Eiler Cornet Band of Picture Rocks gave us some splendid music and an excellent time which is the beauty of music for a parade. The boys from the Rocks are splendid fellows also the visiting brothers from 158 and we hope to meet them again upon similar occasions.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows:

- Pres.—M. L. Keller; V. P.—D. H. Lorsch; M. of F. and C.—Geo. Houseknecht; R. S.—Harry Phillips. Treas.—Geo. Simmons. F. S.—H. C. Boatman. C.—James C. Boatman. I. G.—Monroe Painton. O. G.—J. M. Boatman. Trustee—A. W. Sones. Chaplain—J. W. Harvey. R. S.—Wm. Robbins. L. S.—Augustus Mencer. Ast. S.—Frank Magargle.

Which Will Win?

The Hill-Cleveland for supremacy in New York is uncovering some interesting secrets of the campaign of 1884. The Albany Times, Hill organ, reveals some of the methods employed by the Democrats in 1884 to carry the State for Cleveland, and charges him with hypocrisy in his professions of honesty contained in his Boston speech. "When rogues fall out, honest men get their due." Here is an extract from the Times' revelations:

"Cleveland knew, or was privy to the fact, that vast sums of money were used in this State to elect him president in 1884 and to re-elect him in 1888, and Mr. Cleveland himself personally exhorted in 1884, while governor, the rich men of the party, such as the Hon. Roswell P. Flower, William C. Whitney, Frank Jones, the brewer of New Hampshire, William L. Scott, of Pennsylvania, and George Ehret, the brewer of New York, to come here, and through his persuasive influences these men did come, and to him personally pledged large sums—for what? Not for legitimate expenses, for those in part had already been assumed by the office-holders and by subscriptions from Democrats who had the success of the party at heart. The sum raised by the above named gentlemen was vast, and probably never will be known unless they choose voluntarily to tell it. Mr. Cleveland knew the great exigencies which demanded his summoning these men to Albany in 1884, and had they not come to the rescue in the nick of time this State would have been lost to Cleveland that year. The inference is plain enough as to how the money was used. Mr. Cleveland was in the fight to win in 1884, and probably he did not hold such convictions then as to the use of money as he professes to hold now after his defeat in 1888. He may not have dispensed the money with his own hands, but he knew the political hands which that money went into—knew how it was to be used, and winked at its use. Ancient history is not altogether a pleasant retrospect, but in this case it is applicable as a sort of delightful comparison of Mr. Cleveland in 1884 and Mr. Cleveland in 1889."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—A report by Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt of the result of his recent investigation of the affairs of the Philadelphia Custom House, will have an important bearing on promotions in Government offices. Some time ago the local Civil Service Reform Association complained to the Civil Service Commission at Washington that the law was being violated by Collector of Customs Cooper, of this port, in the matter of removals and appointments.

Commissioner Roosevelt came here and investigated the cause of two men named Cunningham and Webb, who had been appointed laborers in the Custom House, and almost immediately promoted to clerkships without undergoing the Civil Service examination. Roosevelt made his report to the Commission ten days ago, and the local association to-day received permission to make it public. It is to the effect that such promotions are clearly illegal, but that the commission has not the power to prevent them anywhere except in Washington where the commissioner has full control of all appointments. In other cities officials possessed of the power similar to Collector Cooper can evade the civil service law by appointing men laborers and afterward promoting them to higher positions.
